14-Day War Ends, New Nation Born

Times News Services

The war between India and Pakistan ended today, with the new nation of Bangla Desh established in East Pakistan. In 14 days of fighting more than 2,000 Indian soldiers had died, at least that many Pakistanis and uncounted civilians.

Money To Aid Exports

OTTAWA (CP) — The trade department announced Thursday new measures to help businesses increase exports and to protect industry from "foreign import surtaxes or other actions of a like effect."

To help businesses move into world markets, the government will pay up to $50,000 for each company to help them undertake market surveys and adapt their marketing measures to meet the demands of foreign markets.

The grants, which are expected to total $1.5 million in the 1972-1973 fiscal year beginning April 1, and $250,000 over the three months before then, are for markets outside Canada and the U.S.

INCREASE IN LIMIT

The other measure is an increase in the limit on loans available to businesses under the general adjustment assistance program originally designed to help businesses adapt to worldwide tariff reductions under the Kennedy Round agreement.

The ceiling for loans insured by the federal government is being raised to $250 million from $100 million, while the ceiling for direct government loans goes to $20 million from $14 million.

Allotment of increased amounts to the loan program was made public in November when the government sought authorization from Parliament for the increase in its supplementary estimates for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

TRUDEAU, HEATH TALK

OTTAWA (CP) — British Prime Minister Edward Heath arrived here today for talks with Prime Minister Trudeau that are expected to deal largely with economic matters.

Trudeau said he hoped Heath would support Canada's position regarding revaluation of international currencies.

Brief talks were scheduled here today before Heath meets President Nixon in Bermuda.

NEWS BRIEFS

McCarthy Runs

BOSTON (UPI) — Former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota formally announced his candidacy today for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972. McCarthy said papers would be filed within two weeks to enter his name in the April 25 Massachusetts primary.

Compulsion Imposed

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta cabinet today imposed compulsory arbitration on a strike by 613 rural school teachers and Labor Minister Bert Hohol said he expects the 12,000 students involved to be back in class no later than Monday. (See also Page 19.)

Gold Price Dips

LONDON (Reuter) — Gold prices tumbled on the European bullion markets Thursday as fears mounted that the new price of official gold will not be as high as the market had expected. The biggest price fall was in Paris, where $134 was knocked off the bid price, bringing it down to $142.25.

Death on Main St.

GRIMSHAW, Alta. (CP) — A 35-year-old woman died of exposure on the sidewalk of the main street in this community of 1,800, the RCMP reported Thursday night.

The victim was identified as Shirley Kilgik of Grimshaw, 250 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The RCMP said she was walking from "one friend's home to another Tuesday night in temperatures 20 degrees below zero and drifting snow.

She apparently weakened, curled up in a ball and lost consciousness on the sidewalk and was covered with drifting snow and debris blown by the wind, the RCMP said.

Police said a pedestrian had passed near her on Tuesday night but had thought her curled-up body was only a pile of debris.

ROBBERS GUN DOWN MONTREAL POLICEMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — A veteran motorcycle policeman, who was putting a routine parking ticket on a car, was shot and killed Thursday night by three fleeing gunmen who robbed a department store and then dropped a sack containing $50,000.

Constable Jean-Guy Sabourin, 35, was caught in a burst of machine-gun fire by the trio as they ran from the Robert Simpson Co. department store at St. Catherine and Metcalfe streets.

He died later in hospital from two bullet wounds near his heart, the seventh Montreal policeman to be wounded by gunfire in the last three months and the second to die.

Police said the bandits entered the store after it closed at 9 p.m., apparently using keys they had for the outside doors. Inside, they held up accounts office employees who were sorting out the night's receipts and fled down several flights of stairs with the money in a canvas sack.

Final Slam At Tax Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Inciting the Senate to rebel against any government pressure to rush its study of the tax bill, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield issued a final denunciation of the bill in Commons debate a few hours before its passage under the guillotine rule.

The government was not only cutting short Commons debate today with the guillotine, Mr. Stanfield said, it was also trying to ram the bill through the Senate.

The Conservative leader said that if he were a Liberal senator, he would be concerned about his reputation and his record of independence.

The Senate's Liberal majority defeated a Conservative motion Thursday that would have delayed debate on the bill until Jan. 10, delaying passage until well after the Jan. 1 date the government has set for the new law's implementation.

The Senate was to accept the bill for debate as soon as it was passed by the Commons.

Mr. Stanfield also reiterated his criticism of the bill, repeating his proposal to split the legislation—implementing personal tax cuts immediately and delaying other provisions until after further debate.

NOBODY UNDERSTANDS

He said nobody in the House understands the bill.

Government House leader Allan MacEachen said it was untrue that the government was trying to put a deadline on the Senate's study of the bill.

On the eve of third and final reading in the House, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons in a rare intervention in debate that the Conservatives have displayed indecision and confusion on the issue. He said the majority of the public likes the bill and wants it passed. (See also Page 9.)

Skagit Study Urged by Davis

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis said today that there must be more study of possible effects before any additional flooding of the Upper Skagit Valley in British Columbia is permitted.

He told the Commons that this position is the main recommendation contained in a report by the International Joint Commission.

Proposals have been made to raise the Ross dam in the state of Washington, thus causing more flooding in the B.C. portion of the Skagit Valley.

Mr. Davis said the commission found that raising the dam would flood 10 of the 15 miles of the upper reaches of the Skagit Valley, which comprised the "best recreation area in that part of the province."

More than 5,000 acres in Canada would be flooded, or 40 per cent of the best flatland in the valley.

The commission also found that the valley is an "uncommon and non-restorable area" with important social values.

Mr. Davis said the commission did not have time to estimate costs of mitigating the affects of flooding.

Measures for mitigation must be fully studied before the Ross dam is raised, the commission said. This study should take up to three years.

Mr. Davis said Ottawa, Victoria and Washington will review the commission report and then discuss again the valley's future.

Belfast to Form Vigilante Groups

Times News Services
BELFAST—Prime Minister Brian Faulkner said the government would help organize a force of unarmed civilian vigilantes to help protect people and homes from guerrillas.

But he stressed the vigilantes must operate under a strict code of practice which he would draw up with the British Army, which has 14,000 troops in Northern Ireland, and police chiefs.

Faulkner's action gives official recognition to a host of small vigilante outfits which have been formed in bomb-scarred streets of Belfast, the capital, in recent months.

Citizens have banded together to provide 24-hour surveillance on their streets and raise the alarm at the approach of suspicious-looking strangers.

The groups have been mainly Protestant since the insurgent warfare is being waged by the Roman Catholic-based Irish Republican Army.

LISTS CONDITIONS

Faulkner listed three conditions under which the vigilantes would be allowed to operate with official blessing: They would have no legal rights above those of ordinary citizens and must "under no circumstances" be armed, they would have to accept without reservation instructions from the army and police, and each group must allow free movement within its protectorate of official security forces and give them maximum support and co-operation.

There was no immediate reaction from the Catholic-oriented republican community to the proposals.

But independent observers were convinced the minority Catholics would regard the move as a concession to the Protestant right wing.

Many Catholics already regard the police and army as biased against them. They could regard the unarmed vigilantes as the thin edge of a third hostile force.

Meanwhile, a British soldier shot, in the stomach by a sniper in a Belfast street died today.

He was Pte. Anthony Aspinwall, 22, married with three children. The ambulance which took him to hospital Thursday also was sprayed with bullets, but nobody was hit.

His wife, flown from his regiment's base in West Germany, was at his side when he died. His death brought to 198 the death toll since the Northern Ireland troubles began in 1969.

In London, Prime Minister Edward Heath said his government would accept a united Ireland only if the people of Northern Ireland agreed.

"If, by agreement, the North and South should decide to come together," Heath said in an interview, "not only would the present government raise no objection, but I cannot conceive of any future government which would want to stand in their way."

"All we say is that a united Ireland cannot be brought about by force and that we cannot usurp the right of choice of the people of Northern Ireland."

Benson Stresses Trade Questions

WASHINGTON (CP) — The finance ministers and central bank governors from the 10 richest Western nations started concerted efforts today to settle world currency values, with Canada's Finance Minister E. J. Benson stressing beforehand that action on trade questions is also essential.

Benson told reporters before entering the conference at the Smithsonian Institution that he couldn't indicate whether he thought the Group of Ten could settle their monetary differences today or Saturday at the meeting.

"There will have to be some movement on the trade side," he said, referring particularly to United States negotiations with Japan and the Common Market countries over trade barriers to American exports.

A group of Canadian officials who held negotiations with their American counterparts Thursday will continue the talks today, Benson said.

But he insisted that Canada-da-U.S. trade differences are "more symbolic than major" and a settlement of currency questions does not depend on resolving trade issues between the two countries.

Benson said Canada will be maintaining its previous position that the Canadian dollar must be allowed to float on foreign exchange markets until currency values settle down after the changes in value being worked out now by the Group of Ten.

FEELINGS MIXED

The ministers resumed their negotiations on the value of the world's currencies with a mixture of qualified optimism and sober caution among the delegations.

As bargaining began, the Bank of England removed its support from the dollar, which plummeted to a four-year low of $2.5282 to the pound on the foreign exchange market, an effective devaluation of 5.36 per cent from the official rate of $2.40.

NO MORE—U.S.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The United States no longer can afford to be so generous to foreign nations, U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally said Thursday night.

"We try to conduct ourselves as good friends and good neighbors and good trading partners. But at long last, we've reached the point where we can no longer be completely and entirely generous, giving of ourselves, of our material resources, or our strength, and of our money that other nations might prosper," Connally said.

Connally, whose speech was taped and played for the Houston Chamber of Commerce in the state where he used to be governor, said other nations rely heavily on U.S. markets and trade.

"Without the markets of the United States, there would be a depression among all industrial nations of the world," he said.

But he said the United States is not looking for any special favors.

"We must speak for ourselves, defend ourselves and insist that we receive, not advantages, but equity in our dealings with other nations."

Japan, Ready to Apologize to Peking

TOKYO (WP) — Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda said Thursday that Japan is prepared to make a formal apology to the Chinese people for "what they suffered during the Sino-Japanese war," as a precondition for establishing diplomatic relations with Peking.

In a strongly worded statement viewed by Japanese leaders as a major gesture to China, Fukuda told a Diet (parliament) committee that "mutual trust must be established before we can begin negotiations, and it is for us to make the first move by apologizing formally and publicly to the Chinese people for the war. We must clarify our deep feeling of regret for having caused them such grave troubles and disturbances. This is the key point involved in opening contacts with the Chinese government."

The apology issue has long been regarded here as one of the most sensitive obstacles in the way of eventual Tokyo-Peking diplomatic ties. Memories of wartime Japanese brutality are still vivid in China.

Returning visitors tell of countless popular films and plays depicting heroic resistance exploits in the face of the scorched earth tactics used by Japanese troops during their unsuccessful effort to subdue north China from 1937 to 1945.

Until recently, Peking has suggested that Japan should pay war reparations totalling $50 billion to compensate for property damage and casualties.

This demand has now been superseded by statements to Japanese business delegations that China does not want to impose hardships on postwar Japan and would accept "moral" in lieu of "material" restitution for war crimes.

Haddock Hopes For Tax Drop

Out-going Mayor Courtney Haddock said Thursday he hopes to see a tax reduction next year in the city.

In his final address to council, Haddock said the tax increases last year were "beyond council's control" but after examining the city's preliminary budget for next year, "I would ask council to seriously consider a reduction this year in the mill rate."

Causes of last year's tax increase, Haddock said, were a provincial increase in assessment throughout the residential sector, unexpected welfare costs and increases in wages to city employees.

"A broader base of assessments plus other factors" should make a mill rate decrease possible, Haddock said.

"We must remember the residents in our city are of modest income and many are on fixed pensions."

Haddock admitted making "more than a few mistakes" during his two-year term as mayor, "but I think that I can say that, even when I spoke too quickly or too incautiously, I always had the best interests of the city of Victoria at heart."

Haddock's term ends Dec. 31.

Before his farewell address, Ald. Ove Witt moved a motion wishing the outgoing mayor well, calling him "one hell of a fine guy to work with" despite "the battles we've had up and down."

The motion was seconded by mayor-elect Peter Pollen.

Ottawa Approves Saanich Projects

Two Saanich winter works projects have been approved under the federal government's local initiatives program, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis announced today.

Total cost of the projects is $130,950 and they will employ a total of 29 men.

Work on one of the projects, employing 14 men for four months, starts Monday. The $49,625 program involves clearing undeveloped park areas and beach accesses.

The other project allots $81,325 for beautifying publicly-owned sections of Colquitz Creek and Swan Lake Creek. It will employ 15 men for six months.

Curtis said no word has yet been received on a third proposal submitted by Saanich. This program, employing 27 men for five months, will include a study of the municipality's storm drainage system, roadside brush clearing and removal of rock outcroppings.

Telephone Calls But No Evidence

Contractor Hans Hartwig said today he has received a few phone calls but no "actual evidence" following an offer of $5,000 for anyone seeing or knowing about property damage at an Esquimalt building site.

Hartwig, owner of Wignar Construction Ltd., made the offer after someone poured water into the gasoline tank of a backhoe earlier this week at the Esquimalt Road-Fraser Street site.

Esquimalt police said they don't know if the damage was malicious or the action of children but thought it was more likely the latter.

Hartwig's company has been a main target of a union organized drive launched two months ago by the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, which represents all building unions.

He said the dispute with the unions "is not settled by a long shot." He had no change of opinion about preferring to run a non-union company.

New Book Traces Railroad History

A new book being sold in Victoria stores tells the history of the pioneer Victoria and Sidney Railway.

The third edition of Cordwood Ltd. came off the press this week.

The British Columbia Railway Historical Association discovered the pictures in the book and is responsible for the publishing.

The BCRHA is working on an historical thesis of the E and N Railway during the Dunsmuir era. It is also working on a study of the B.C. Mills, Timber and Trading Company, one of Vancouver Island's earliest logging railways.

Hugh Fraser was elected president at a recent BCRHA meeting. Also elected were vice-president Elwood White, treasurer E. W. Hanning, recording secretary Patrick Hind and corresponding secretary David Wilkie.

the weather

The Pacific frontal system which produced a strong onshore flow of mild air that broke the extended cold spell over B.C. has stalled across extreme southern B.C. and Washington. As a result rain is general over Vancouver Island. Skies are clear over the northern B.C. coast well to the north of the frontal system and this clearing will spread slowly southward through today and Saturday as the Pacific disturbance edges southward to Oregon.

Santa Sweats, Flowers Bloom

NEW YORK (UPI) — A shrub grew in Brooklyn Thursday and the natives turned out in droves to observe the phenomenon.

Outside Macy's in Manhattan, Joe Bartholmew, 65, perspired in his hot Santa Claus suit while sweat oozed from his ersatz whiskers.

Up in Central Park Zoo polar bears sought relief in their pool while not far away humans lolled on the grass.

Nature's thermostat had somehow gone awry and produced the highest temperature ever recorded in the city for the date — 63. The previous record for Dec. 16 was 60 in 1891.

The U.S. Weather Service attributed the unseasonal weather to southerly winds bringing warm air into the area.

The official explanation was "little comfort, however, to Bartholmew, attired in a heavy wool, red and white suit and stocking cap."

"When you're dressed for the cold and then it's warm it's terrible," he said. "Ringing this bell and bending down to talk to all the kids in this weather, it's terrible."

The shrub in Brooklyn was a forsythia which brought forth golden flowers. "I could hardly believe it," said a horticulturalist.

agreement with government economic policy, predicted the bill would maintain an unfair tax burden on individuals, encourage foreign ownership of industry and cause greater concentration of economic power in a few corporate hands.

The Commons vote today was forced by government use of a debate-limiting rule—used twice in the debate—which cuts off discussion by MPs at 3:45 p.m. EST.

SENATORS FORCE VOTE

Meanwhile, Senators fought an unusually heated debate Thursday and staged two votes on whether to speed the 707-page bill through by Christmas, or hold off debate until after the Christmas-New Year recess.

The government has sought parliamentary passage by the Jan. 1 implementation date.

The Senate's Liberal majority succeeded in passing a resolution suspending rules so they could accept the bill today when it is passed by the Commons and go immediately into debate—without the usual one-day notice.

And it defeated a motion by Jacques Flynn, Opposition leader in the Senate, to have the Senate adjourn until Jan. 10 so the bill could be carefully studied without the pressure of a deadline.

But in the 44-14 vote, three Liberals supported the opposition.

Standing in the Senate: Liberal 66, Conservative 19, Independents 2, Independent Liberal 1, Social Credit 1, vacant 13.

Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the chamber, denied that the government was applying pressure on the Senate to forgo scrutiny of the bill in order to pass it.

But Senator Gratton O'Leary (P.C.-Ontario) said a vote against the motion to delay debate was a vote for the death of the Senate, which would be exposed as a mere rubber stamp for legislation if it met the deadline.

HIJACK DEATHS

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — A hijacker and the pilot of a Bolivian airliner were killed and the co-pilot was wounded after security agents boarded the hijacked plane during a refuelling stop.

The Lloyd Aereo Boliviano plane was commandeered after it took off from Sucre. It was ordered to fly to Chile, but the passengers were allowed to get off when the pilot stopped at Cochabamba for fuel.

Officials said it was unclear whether the pilot and co-pilot were shot by the hijacker or were hit by the security agents shooting at the hijacker.

SNOW can be a shoveller's nightmare or an ecological necessity, depending on your point of view.

If You Can't Beat 'Em, Join 'Em—To Advantage

Snow, or the threat of it, has been big news in coastal sections of British Columbia for a couple of weeks now. Whether it's been good or bad news depends on your point of view.

Certainly kids, skiers, snow-tire and chain emporiums and hardware stores long on snow shovels have been celebrating. Drivers, mothers of small children and even the constabulary, on the other hand, have greeted the arrival of the white stuff with a notable lack of enthusiasm.

But like it or not, snow and winter are synonymous. Mind you, they're more synonymous in some places than in others. For example, folks up Prince Albert way can expect to have their snow cover from November to April in an average year, while here in Victoria, we're probably no worse off than putting up with it for a couple of brief spells each winter.

ADAPTATION

These patterns of winter snow-cover have produced some interesting adaptations among the wild things that must live with them on a regular basis. On the assumption that "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em," many kinds of animals have not only learned to live with the snow, but to use it to their advantage.

Best known of these adaptations is the seasonal color change, from summer brown to winter white, which mammals like weasels and hares, and birds like ptarmigan have evolved for protection. In both worlds. Not so well known is the fact that all weasels do not turn white at winter's onset. Those in southern parts of North America, where snow is relatively rare, may assume a slightly paler winter pelage but nothing like the immaculate ermine of their northern relatives.

There is no sharp dividing line between the two but white weasels get progressively more numerous as you move closer to the line of permanent snow.

BURROW UNDER

Darwin would have had a field day applying his ideas on natural selection to this familiar North American mammal.

The ruffed grouse, a relative of the ptarmigan, and one which does not turn white in winter, has found another interesting use for snow. Somehow they have discovered its insulating properties, which can make a difference of 30 or 40 degrees between the air temperature and the temperature a few inches beneath the surface of the snow. On very cold nights ruffed grouse will frequently burrow under the snow to escape the severe temperatures.

In their little igloos they may be exposed to danger from ground predators such as foxes but it is a short-lived grouse that doesn't sleep with one eye open ready to burst from its snow house when danger threatens.

OLD HANDS

Grouse are old hands at adapting to snow. One of their best ideas — and one we have adopted — was snowshoes. In the millennia of evolution some species of grouse developed scaled frills on their toes, frills that appear each fall and wear off in spring and which enables the birds to move about freely on fresh, deep, soft snow.

Up to now I've talked about life on or above the snow but under that clean, white blanket, an equally varied and exciting struggle goes on with few signs to show for it.

Under several inches of snow, where temperatures usually hover close to freezing, as much as 60 degrees warmer than "outside," shrews, meadow mice and voles play out of their lives, occasionally "surfacing" and then only for a brief look around.

LITTLE DANGER

For these mammals their normal winter coat, similar to their summer garb, would make them conspicuous targets against the snow. So, for the most part, it's a life of comparative safety in their silent, sound-proofed, snow world, free from danger from most predators.

At least this is so for the carnivorous shrews. Despite their diminutive size, shrews can easily handle small mammals like meadow mice and frequently add them to their normal diet of large insects, their larvae, earthworms, snails and sundry other fauna of the soil. For the various kinds of mice and voles, who share the snow tunnels with the voracious shrews, it's a matter of choosing the lesser of the two evils — shrews beneath the snow or foxes and owls above it.

Often, a couple of days after a snowfall, when the loose snow has had a chance to settle, a walk in the woods will reveal the tunnels of the mice. Originally pushed-out in cores now lie exposed by the settling snow, and form a delicate tracery across its surface.

Yes, there's more than one way to look at snow.

Terms Improved For Property

Mayor-elect Peter Pollen convinced Victoria council Thursday to try to improve terms for the Ocean Cement property which the city wants for an urban renewal park.

The change may mean only a small difference in the amount the city will pay for the property, but Pollen said the new deal, if accepted by the company, will encourage Ocean Cement to move out quickly.

Pollen told council he talked Wednesday with Ocean Cement officials and believes they will agree to the change.

The agreed price for the property is $370,000 which the city earlier agreed to pay in three instalments: when the contract is signed, after nine months, and the balance after 18 months.

Under the new terms Ocean Cement will receive a third when the contract is signed and the balance when the firm delivers the property, no later than 18 months from signing date.

Pollen said holding back the money would encourage the company to relocate its operations as soon as possible.

Pollen had earlier complained the city wrote a bad deal by promising most of the money before the land was vacated. He also had said the city should have insisted on a better new location for the new factory. At present Ocean Cement plans to move farther up the Inner Harbor.

At Thursday's council meeting, planning chairman Ald. Harold Olafson introduced a motion to alter the deal. Another motion to pay Ocean Cement only 10 per cent of the total price upon signing was defeated.

Under urban renewal agreements, the federal government will pay $500,000 and the province will pay $250,000 of the total cost. The final cost to the city is estimated at $350,000.

$5B LINE URGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public Works Minister Arthur Laing called Thursday for the "biggest investment in Canadian history," a proposed $5-billion energy corridor from the Canadian North to the United States border.

Laing said the corridor should be built primarily to sell natural gas to the U.S. and to move Alaskan and Canadian oil to the international boundary.

The minister, who plans to retire at the end of his current term, expressed confidence that alternative sources of energy, such as nuclear power, will be used.

He told a city service club Canada is soon likely to find substantial oilfields in the Mackenzie Delta and the Arctic coast, making necessary a Canadian oil line to Edmonton.

"We shall need northern pipelines shortly," he said. "If the trans-Alaska pipeline is approved for oil to Valdez, the incidental gas is bound to move through Canada by a pipeline down the Mackenzie."

"Even at this late date there is sense in bringing oil from Prudhoe Bay (Alaska) through Canada in a corridor that will provide both oil and gas transmission and a service road."

Laing said such a corridor would be "a magnet for both capital and population to the western provinces."

A Matter of Legal Procedure

The controversy over the behavior of some Vancouver City policemen during the Gastown street riot last August has been complicated by Attorney-General Peterson's announced intention to review the cases of five members of the force who were to be charged with assault as a result of their actions. Pending the review no charges will be laid, although legal action was recommended by Vancouver's prosecutor.

Some of the charges that police used excessive force in trying to control the crowd were serious and led to a study of the incidents by a Supreme Court justice. The policemen involved are apparently open to civil and criminal charges as well as to disciplinary steps within the force.

There has been considerable discussion of the effects which might result from laying charges. The morale of the force, the possible restriction of police effectiveness which might occur in future cases of emergency action, the question of injustice to men placed in a hazardous position while carrying out orders, are items that have been mentioned. It is generally agreed that policemen sent into crowds should not be made to feel that they cannot take firm measures when an emergency obviously makes them necessary, provided those measures are within the regulations and orders.

These are all pertinent matters, but they are incidental to the main issue. Surely, if the policemen may have broken a law, then they should be tried through the usual procedures and if found guilty, penalized, just as any citizen would be. If they broke departmental regulations, then they should be disciplined according to those regulations. If they are innocent, they should be cleared. Problematical effects on morale, future public demonstrations, and other attendant issues should not be allowed to nullify the main point.

In any case, the morale of the police force and its esteem in public eyes should be enhanced, rather than diminished, by clear evidence that officers must obey the law in performing their duty of ensuring that other persons obey it too. Where individual officers fall short of what is expected or permitted, then the law should take effect — both for the protection of the police force and the public. And the proper place to determine guilt or innocence is in court, as with any citizen. That is what democracy is all about.

Follow-Through on the CDC

The first meeting of the directors of the Canada Development Corporation recently led to the formal approval of the government's choice of chief executives for the company: Mr. M. A. Crowe as president and Mr. Anthony Hampson as chairman. It is assumed that the new corporation will follow through on another government plan: to locate the head office in Vancouver within two years. The move to the West would be a belated recognition of this province's growing role in the Canadian economy.

Although Mr. Hampson (a businessman with governmental experience) had difficulty putting the philosophy of the CDC into words when questioned by reporters, the term "development finance" was used to describe the ambitions of the fledgling company. Its object will be to attract equity capital eventually from the public, and to place that capital in suitable areas of the economy where profits will be the keynote. CDC will not be another Crown Corporation or, according to the official view, in competition with private business.

Mr. Marshall Crowe (a top level civil servant with experience in business as an economic adviser) emphasized that the role of the CDC is to build up strong "Canadian-controlled corporations." He made clear that the CDC could work in consortia with foreign enterprises from time to time. "National interest," he said, "really isn't itself a specific criterion of the legislation," although he adds, that "In the general sense, certainly what we're doing is in the interest of Canada. We'll be looking at investment situations where we think we can make a useful contribution with other elements in the Canadian market."

In the cabinet struggle over the role of foreign capital in Canada the moderate approach represented by the CDC will probably prevail. It will set a quiet tone for future action in the aftermath of the sensational leaks concerning foreign investment.

Nearing 80, but Hanging Tough

Some weeks ago, Prince Juan Carlos, heir apparent to the mantle worn by Generalissimo Franco, used a visit to the Basque country to speak as his own man, reminding hearers of the traditional links between the monarchy and the Basques and notably failing to mention Francisco Franco.

The incident, probably over-magnified, was seen as an encouraging trend by liberals in Spain — the suggestion that after the long dictatorship, a new head of state would find it possible to initiate a less repressive regime.

As if in reply, the aging Caudillo, now moving into his 80th year, reasserted his position. He is head man. He says there is no place in Spain for political parties and, in the year now closing, he has shown a tougher attitude to dissenters than had been the case in his earlier 70's.

Whatever hope liberals of Spain may hold for a future under Franco's eventual successor, they face one fact of life here and now. Franco is still the boss and, despite advancing years, he shows little inclination to let anyone else call the tune.

MONTREAL — The rising expectations of Progressive Conservatives in recent weeks have been nowhere more pronounced than in traditionally Liberal Quebec.

Six months ago, even the most optimistic Quebec Tories conceded another Liberal sweep of their province in the next federal election as a virtual certainty.

Now they are hoping that even if the Conservatives are unlikely to capture a majority of Quebec's 74 federal seats, they may at least spoil Liberal attempts to form another majority government.

Liberals were victorious in 56 Quebec ridings in 1968, while the Creditistes won in 14. The Tories won only four seats, and a defection has since cost them one seat.

"We might win as many as 15 or 20 seats," notes Andre Lalonde, chairman of the Quebec wing's policy committee.

"It depends mainly, I think, on getting good candidates."

Mr. Lalonde, like many Tories across the country, believe that party leader Robert Stanfield's patient — seemingly plodding — style is beginning to pay off.

He believes the Conservatives would be wisest to concentrate on attacking Trudeau government policies, not Prime Minister Trudeau. They should also pay most attention to ridings outside Montreal.

Predictions Echoed

Mr. Lalonde's optimistic predictions are echoed by people throughout the province, with MP Georges Valade suggesting that the Conservatives could win as many as 40 seats if Mr. Stanfield enlists a charismatic Quebec leader like Claude Wagner.

Mr. Lalonde and other people in the party believe that while Mr. Wagner, a former Quebec Liberal justice minister, might be an asset on the hustings, the Tories should avoid the superstar syndrome.

"What we really need are good candidates. We should concentrate on that first. One superstar can't accomplish much, as we saw in 1968."

At that time, Mr. Stanfield recruited the help of Montreal financier Marcel Faribault as his Quebec lieutenant. However, Mr. Faribault's help was more of a hindrance, as his controversial "two nations" theory was roundly rejected in Quebec and other parts of Canada.

Mr. Stanfield officially buried the "two nations" policy in a speech in Quebec City last May, but he has been moving with more than his customary caution in looking for a replacement for Mr. Faribault.

The national Tory leader is reported to be worried that Mr. Wagner's appeal in Quebec might be countered in other parts of Canada because of his hard line on such issues as abortion law reform and the treatment of narcotics users.

Mr. Wagner had been actively sought by the Conservatives until several weeks ago. However, party sources indicate now that he has been offered financial backing if he will run as a Tory candidate, although he would not be officially given the title of Quebec lieutenant.

There has been no indication from Mr. Wagner whether he would accept such an offer.

One thing Quebec Conservative candidates will have in their favor in the next election that they have never had before is the backing of a permanent organization.

Heading the operation is Yvon Stirois, a former Chamber of Commerce secretary in the remote community of Ma-

Any gains by the Conservatives in the next federal election would cause deep concern among federal Liberals.

Although Prime Minister Trudeau controls 155 of the Commons' 265 seats, Quebec accounts for 56 Liberal MPs. Ontario contributed 64 and British Columbia 16. All the other provinces combined account for only 19 seats.

If, as some observers suggest, Liberal strength in Ontario and B.C. peaked in 1968 — and the Trudeau government is unlikely to pick up many more seats in the Maritime or Prairie provinces — then a sweep of Quebec is extremely important.

A small loss of seats to Conservatives or the Social Credit in Quebec — combined with Liberal losses in Ontario, the Maritimes or B.C. — could result in a minority Liberal government.

Regardless of how the Conservative optimism translates into votes in the next election, the current euphoria among members of the Quebec wing is strikingly different from the scene only six months ago.

Public Dispute

The president of the provincial Conservative association, Fernand Allie, had just resigned following an embarrassing public dispute with his own executive and Mr. Stanfield over a demand that the party recognize Quebec autonomy. Days later, Joliette MP Roch LaSalle bolted party ranks to sit as an independent over the same issue. And many of the fewer than 200 delegates who showed up for a convention of the Quebec wing were still questioning the wisdom of retaining Mr. Stanfield as leader.

At the party's recent national convention in Ottawa, it appeared for a time that Mr. Stanfield's problems with the Quebec wing might still be simmering.

A former vice-president of the national party association, Paul Trepanier of Granby, Que., and MP Martial Asselin presented a resolution calling for Quebec's right to self-determination.

However, it apparently received little support from among the 125 Quebec delegates and, perhaps more important, less attention from newsmen covering the convention.

Mr. Stanfield, who now speaks a workable brand of French after four years of intensive study, has apparently resolved major differences with the Quebecers. While rejecting the "two nations" theory and the idea that any one province should have special status, he impressed many delegates with his support of a convention resolution suggesting Canada is composed of five major regions whose differences must be taken into account.

Mr. Stanfield may not have permanently solved his problems with the Quebec wing. But, for the time being — at least — most Quebec Tories have decided to put aside differences in the hope that they may help put out the Trudeau government.

tane, Que. He has been travelling almost constantly throughout the province setting up permanent constituency organizations and ten regional councils.

Party organizers point out that despite the traditionally small number of seats won by Conservatives in Quebec — except during the Diefenbaker upset of 1958 and the 1962 election — Tory candidates have usually drawn at least 300,000 to 400,000 votes.

In 1958, John Diefenbaker led the Tories to victories in 50 Quebec ridings. In 1962, the Conservatives retained 14 seats, while the Liberals won 35 and Social Credit 26. But, by 1963, the old pattern had returned and the Conservatives elected only eight MPs in Quebec. In that election, the Liberals moved up to 47 seats and Creditiste strength was reduced to 20.

The Monetary Prop for NATO

BRUSSELS — Joseph Luns, the enormous Dutchman who is NATO's new secretary-general, has a big enough sack of troubles to suit some sombre kind of Santa Claus, but, as he made clear at the Alliance's current ministerial meeting, the most urgent among all these is monetary.

For him the question can be simply stated: If the existing currency and the economic crises in the allied world cannot be settled — and quickly — the whole defence structure threatens to fall apart.

In such a negative case the following things might be expected to happen. Mutual commercial and financial rivalries between individual NATO members would lead to retaliatory measures among them and an end to allied cohesion. This would completely undermine the American position in Washington's negotiations with Moscow on mutual and balanced force reductions between East and West.

cow's extraordinary accomplishment during the last 12 or 13 years. In that brief span of time it has managed to construct a huge and sophisticated new fleet, gain in relative military strength in Europe and assemble and station an enormous armed force along its Chinese frontier to the east. This investment in swift action heading away from the slough of currency crisis and the menace of widespread recession. The United States presidential election comes next year and after March, 1972, and the New Hampshire primary, he fears that American preoccupation with politics could hamper further international discussion.

But if at least the monetary problem can be resolved by then — obviously accompanied by revaluation of some currencies and devaluation of the U.S. dollar as announced — the way would be opened to accord on other matters. Then one could count on a perceptibly larger European contribution to NATO defence. But the latter is contingent on the former.

Currency First

"There is no chance — unless the currency question is settled first," he says. "But even before that happens we have seen a comprehensive decision that finds the European allies pledging about $1 billion more for NATO, half in money and half in services."

He points out that 80 per cent of all troops now in Europe to defend the alliance come from European allies, that the British have added $250 million to their defence budget, that Holland is already spending more and may revise its budget upward.

However, final implementation of all this is contingent upon one thing — that members of the alliance, who comprise so important a percentage of world finance and world trade, come to prior agreement on economic matters. If they cannot find a satisfactory formula for living happily together in peacetime it is unlikely they will find a similar formula for either deterring war or winning one.

This meeting has, in effect, been forced to devote itself to dollar diplomacy. That is to say, devising means for the dollar to survive and thereby to sustain the United States, NATO's ultimate prop.

(C) New York Times Service

military matters of an excess proportion of the U.S.S.R.'s annual budget has strained civilian development.

Nevertheless, Luns insists, the "minimum" strength required by NATO to maintain its basic strategy of flexible response continues — if barely. Flexible response means initial reliance on conventional defence except against all-out nuclear aggression. But there is not a millimetre of fat left on this "minimum."

For all these reasons Luns urged allied foreign and defence ministers this week to prod their governments into

Lose Interest

The Russians would simply lose interest in any such mutual deal. They would prefer to sit back and watch a unilateral Western force reduction develop as the alliance came apart. This certainly would be the case if financial and trade arguments in the West were not speedily settled.

There isn't the slightest doubt, Luns points out, that the NATO position vis-à-vis that of the Soviet Union has been steadily deteriorating during the last four years. Russian naval power has advanced by leaps and bounds both in submarines and surface vessels.

Its strategic position has zoomed in the Mediterranean where base facilities were made possible in the vacuum opened by the Arab-Israeli war. Finally, the massive Soviet naval force at Murmansk has now been backed up by an impressively large assemblage of land forces breathing dangerously down the back of Norway in the far north.

The secretary-general makes no bones about being impressed by Mos-

Equal Opportunity

Please accept my personal thanks for the splendid coverage of the Greater Victoria civic elections by the Victoria Times. Each candidate was given equal opportunity to display his wares.

If at all possible I would like to extend, through the medium of your press, my appreciation to those voters who elected me to Saanich Council on December 11. — Wm. A. (Sandy) Noel, 4301 Cedar Hill Rd.

VOW Tag Day

Volunteer taggers collected $534 on the Voice of Women's annual Tag Day for the benefit of the Canadian Aid to Vietnam Civilians Children's Committee. This money will buy medical supplies and clothing for young victims of the now largely aerial war in Vietnam and Laos. The Voice of Women wishes to thank Victorians for their generous support of the Tag Day, with special thanks to those who worked on the campaign and made the day possible. — Pat Greene, Acting President, Victoria Voice of Women, 3021 Craigowen Rd.

Mayoral Pledge

May I use your column to express appreciation to the voters of Saanich who supported me at the municipal election on Saturday. The extent of the mandate given at that time was particularly satisfying.

I should also like to respond to the many individuals who offered their best wishes and encouragement in the days preceding the vote. More than a dozen gave up their time to drive residents to the various polling stations while others assisted by encouraging friends and neighbors to turn out.

I pledge myself to continued service, to the best of my ability, for the people of Saanich and the Capital Region. — Hugh Cuptis, Mayor, 3936 Shorncliffe Road, North.

From the Times of Dec. 17, 1911:

COLOGNE — The Rheinisch Westphalian Zeitung publishes a story of the alleged discovery of a plot on the part of Great Britain to blow up Wilhelmshaven harbor. The postal authorities, becoming suspicious of many money orders in favor of the dock officers and chief mates, finally secured one of the letters. They showed, according to Zeitung, that the plans to the entrances of Wilhelmshaven harbor, as well as plans of the supply and contents of the secret code-book, had been betrayed to the British Admiralty.

Marxist Split Puts Squeeze On Neutrals

By ANDRE FONTAINE
Le Monde

That the bipolar world came to an end the day the People's Republic of China was admitted to the United Nations may well be a self-evident truth.

What is perhaps not so obvious is that this vanishing act could lead to another — the disappearance of the Third World, which since the 1955 Bandung conference has played such an important role in international affairs.

The Third World in fact signified a refusal to choose between the two camps in the Cold War. One wonders whether this refusal has any meaning today, now that the Cold War has subsided and a new one is developing, a little more sharply with each passing day, between the two biggest Communist nations.

There was a time when the Americans and the Russians could agree on but one point — the immorality of being neutral. Subsequently, the two superpowers set out to dispute the favors of the very nations they had condemned.

Then, as the Cold War lost momentum, they came to terms, while each side continued to support those of its wards, whether in Indochina or the Middle East, involved in war with the other side's proteges.

This is how states with such widely varying governments as India, Yugoslavia, and Ethiopia have been able to draw on help from both camps. The time came when in order to obtain aid from one of the superpowers it was no longer necessary to break with the other.

They Will Have to Choose

One of the first acts of the Chinese delegation at the United Nations was to make it clear to the non-aligned nations that this game was no longer possible. It is for this reason therefore that China is so ferociously opposed to the world disarmament conference proposed by Moscow.

When the proposal comes up for UN approval, the Third World will have to choose — sooner perhaps than it had expected — not between the Soviet Union and the United States, but between the Soviet Union and China.

There is no conceivable area of accommodation today between Moscow and Peking, in contrast to what is happening to American-Soviet relations. Their improvement permits Chairman Mao's spokesmen in the UN to indulge in day-long denunciations of collusion between the Kremlin's "social imperialists" and imperialists without particular qualification.

Peking and Washington would seem to have similar views on the subject of the proposed disarmament conference, a fact which has not gone unnoticed by the head of the Soviet delegation to the UN, Jacob Malik.

But this departure from the general rule is not enough to make much of an impression on people who found out years ago — after Khrushchev's fall from grace — that the motherland of socialism is not prepared to shoulder any great risk in order to fight capitalist domination.

This observation is incomplete without another: like all Great Powers, and not a few small ones, the Soviet Union applies the rule of non-interference only in cases where its application is in Moscow's interest, or at least in keeping with what it believes its interests are.

Much more provocation than this will be needed, however, to make the Third World nations go sour on the Soviet Union and send them scurrying behind the Chinese banner.

The material means which the Kremlin has at its command for aiding developing nations is vastly superior to what Peking can offer. A Palestinian resistance delegation to Peking discovered this last year; it came back with more exhortations to caution than arms or money.

What the Third World would really like is to remain the Third World — and to be able to draw upon support from both Moscow and Peking (as the Vietnamese revolutionaries are still doing), while at the same time taking advantage of the split between the two superpowers to avoid domination by either.

China Promised to Help

This is what happened in the Sudan last summer. When General Nemeiry found his relations with Moscow strained because the Russians were worried about the impact of the execution of Sudanese Communist leaders on the world labor movement, he unhesitatingly turned to Peking. A Chinese promise of help, in addition to the Sudan's strategic interest to the Russians, was enough to persuade Moscow to ignore the Khartoum killings.

Similar leeway has not been afforded other countries, and it is significant that two of the three nations which in Nehru's and Nasser's time were the leaders of the non-aligned world — India, Egypt, and Yugoslavia — have signed treaties of assistance with the Soviet Union. These agreements are hardly compatible with the idea of strict non-alignment.

The third of these countries, Yugoslavia, is the object of regular overtures from Moscow, which holds that it left the Socialist fold only as the result of a stupid misunderstanding.

The Yugoslav episode is far from over and there is a strong likelihood that this country, with the passing away of Marshal Tito, who now personifies the national will to resist, will go through difficult times.

China's UN delegate Chiao Kuan-Kua condemns disarmament talks

India and Egypt, however, are far too dependent on Soviet goodwill not to take Moscow's strategic concepts into consideration in defining their policies.

The Kremlin has long taken an interest in India. In 1962, when India was at war with China, Moscow did not hesitate to give diplomatic backing to New Delhi and step up military aid to the Indians.

Four years later it was Alexei Kosygin who mediated the Indo-Pakistan quarrel when he got the two parties to sign the Tashkent agreement, which ushered in a brief period of reconciliation after bitter fighting.

Apart from the main published clauses of the Indo-Soviet treaty of friendship and co-operation, no one knows exactly what else was agreed to. In the view of more optimistic observers, the Soviet Foreign Minister strongly counselled Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to be conciliatory towards Pakistan.

The fact remains, however, that since the treaty was signed, Soviet arms shipments to India have increased considerably, although the balance of forces was already in New Delhi's favour.

India has always, rightly or wrongly, regarded Pakistan as its traditional foe, or at least as a foe bequeathed by the colonisers. It has therefore made no great effort, particularly over the question of Kashmir, to investigate the possibility of co-operation with its neighbor — a co-operation which is, however, absolutely necessary.

The result was that Pakistan first lined up with the United States by joining SEATO, then with Britain, Iran and Turkey (Cento), and subsequently moved closer to China on the principle that your enemy's enemy has a good chance of being your friend.

Looked at in this light, it is hard to dissociate the present trial of strength between India and Pakistan from Sino-Soviet rivalry. If Mrs. Gandhi's forces succeed in routing those of General Yahya Khan, without China being able or willing to do anything to prevent it, it would not be just a victory for Delhi, but a victory also for Soviet Secretary Leonid Brezhnev over Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Can't Make a Mistake

The Soviet Union may well be thinking that it needn't be quite as circumspect in this case as it might have to be if it were dealing with the United States. The Soviet-Chinese clashes that took place in 1969 along the Ussuri River and in Turkestan apparently didn't go Peking's way. What better means therefore to silence the Chinese delegates at the UN than to show up the uselessness of Chinese friendship when it is put to the test in the field.

What is important in Soviet eyes, of course, is not to make a miscalculation. It shouldn't be forgotten that in 1962 Chinese troops gave the Indians an unexpected drubbing in the Himalayas, and that three years later Peking warned Delhi it wouldn't allow Indian troops to invade East Pakistan.

Yet today India wants nothing less than to prise this territory from the hands of the Pakistan government. It is not surprising that Peking should shower promises of support on Islamabad without committing itself irrevocably.

The implications of the current Indo-Pakistan conflict, the first in a quarter of a century to question really seriously the political boundaries of the Indian sub-continent, are far-reaching, but it's enough to note that it is hard to believe the two sides are free to act entirely as they would like.

The Middle East conflict presents certain similarities. Now that President Sadat has jailed Moscow's most outspoken partisans and helped his friend General Nemeiry to win back power from the Communists in the Sudan, no one pretends any longer that Egypt is just a Soviet satellite.

But without Moscow's arms and money, Egypt would be at the mercy of Israel. This is why on May 27 Nasser's successor had to agree to a treaty which President Podgorny brought with him from Moscow all ready for signature. It contained, among other disturbing clauses, one providing for close co-operation between the two countries in order "to maintain the economic and social conquests of the two peoples."

When you consider what the Russians thought they had a right to do in Czechoslovakia, you can't help shuddering.

Fortunately or unfortunately for the Egyptians, in its relations with countries outside the Communist bloc Moscow has always placed greater stress on strategic interests than on ideology.

As long as Egypt remains militarily dependent on the Soviet Union, Sadat can continue with his task of rapidly restoring the capitalist system destroyed by his predecessor.

The Struggle Is Individual

By BOB HUNTER
The Sun

What I have been saying about female chauvinist pigs, female sexism, and female contempt for men and dehumanization of men amounts to a mirror being held opposite the pages of books by people like Germaine Greer and Kate Millett.

Though I might pick nits from the backs of specific parts of their arguments, in essence their works strike me as being right on. Certainly, women are exploited, trapped, jammed through psychological meatgrinders, and generally thrashed by a power-crazed male hierarchy. Sister, you've been done to.

And will I ever be glad when the whole horrific sexual imbalance is righted, though I doubt that women will automatically save the world from itself. Stateswomen — Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and Mrs.

women. We must all do it for ourselves or it will never happen.)

So the only kind of revolution I believe in is the one in which each person becomes free. No one can be truly freed by manipulation, coercion, force or even by being stampeded in one direction or another.

It is this vague — or maybe tortured — position from which I have been spouting out my views on Women's Lib. I am not against what they are after. I am for it. But to attack the male and ignore those females who are oppressors in their own right is to only half-succeed at best. What sort of progress has been made if women simply come to boss the men around or if male personalities are torn on some Procrustean bed of dismemberment in the place of women?

The overthrow of one foul system, only to have it replaced by another, no less corrupt at its centre, is an overthrow we need like a hole in the head.

Writing about relationships between the sexes has become as tricky, as painful, as tortuous as writing about race relations in a volatile atmosphere of near civil war.

What I have been saying is that there are women around who are moral pigs in the matter of relations between the sexes and that they can be at least as corrupt as the worst male mouth-breather — is simply something which I think needs to be said.

I am told, by a female person whose judgment I have much reason to respect, that I've got it all wrong, that I am missing the point entirely. But let me be stubborn. Let me insist that if things are ever truly to be fair and equal, if there is ever really to be a point where the sexes meet on level ground, then there will have to be some heavy changes on the other side. The changing cannot all be with the men. In short, sister — if you want me to stop dominating, you're going to have to stop your damned manipulating.

Last of Series

Golda Meir of Israel come to mind — will not likely immediately smother the population bomb, shut down the smog-producers, wave a wand that will make the skies and rivers blue again, and bring an overnight end to murder, sadism, madness, terror and war. But at least the oppression of women as a class will begin to end — and that's just as good news as the ending of oppression of any class, race or minority of any kind.

But the struggle finally, is individual. People must free themselves. If someone does it for them all that has changed is the guard.

This applies no less — and perhaps no more so — to the struggle for the liberation of women. It is 'without' doubt a critical struggle. For upon its success or failure may depend the general direction of our society in its future. Towards greater human dignity or less. (This said despite the fact I am not banking on any one class or race or group to save us, including

Nightmarish Realities

It has led to their quarrels being taken up by big Powers for whom the nightmarish realities of the nuclear age have eliminated every last shred of disinterested concern.

Several times in the course of this century, Europe has engaged in this kind of activity, and today pays for it with its political schisms and its lack of influence in international affairs.

The wise course for non-aligned nations to follow, it would seem, is to make every effort to present a united front to the outside world. When they have succeeded in doing this, as in the campaign to end colonialism, or, more recently, to revise petroleum prices, they have obtained spectacular results.

But quarrels between poor countries serve no other interests than those of the Big Powers and the merchants of death that, to mankind's great shame, they have become.

By tearing one another to pieces over illusory vital issues, the nations of the Third World have in the past served only too often as cat's-paws to pull the Big Powers' chestnuts from the fire.

About Eggs and the Good Life

By J. B. PRIESTLY
New Statesman

Here in England most of us, all ages, prefer brown eggs to white eggs. In America, brown eggs are despised, sold off cheaply, perhaps sometimes thrown away.

Can any sense be made out of this queer difference in taste? I believe it can. But will it take us anywhere? Yes, I believe it will.

Not only that — behavioural sciences, please note — it will move us almost at once from the visible world of white eggs and brown eggs into the vast invisible realm where our lives are shaped.

We English prefer brown eggs because they seem to us to have a more reliable look of rusticity. They are closer to nature, and appear to promise us a richer and more sustaining interior.

A brown egg, we feel, has come to us, magically perhaps, straight out of the ancient pastoral world. Unlike the white egg, it has escaped factory farming, machines and mass production, higher productivity.

It belongs to the enduring dream of the English, who ever since the Industrial Revolution have created wretched towns chiefly because they never really accepted urban life, always hoping to move sooner or later into the country.

What we English want is to live in the country, with some splendid free-range fowls just down the road, none of your deprived and pallid prisoners of the battery, desperately ridding themselves of smaller and smaller white eggs; and then to enjoy every morning a big brown egg.

Any public man in England who does not understand this cannot understand the English, and should retire from public life — into the country.

The Americans, well outside the ghettoes, despise brown eggs just because they do seem closer to nature. White eggs are much better, especially if they are to be given to precious children, because their very whiteness suggests hygiene and purity; for which Americans have a passion that we English do not share.

It is as if nature, after being taught some hard lessons, had been forced to attempt some progressive hygienic packaging with that white shell.

It is a mistake — and one that is all too common — to accuse Americans of being "materialistic." They are far less so than, for example, the Chinese and the French, the best cooks in the world.

The weakness of American civilization, and perhaps the chief reason why it creates so much discontent, is that it is so curiously abstract. It is a bloodless extrapolation of a satisfying life.

For all those thick steaks and gammon rashers, all that Scotch and bourbon, a melancholy enchantment seems to turn it into statistics and mere images of good living.

You dine off the advertiser's "sizzling" and not the meat of the steak. Sex is discovered in manuals and not in bed.

And as soon as guaranteed egg-substitute has been packaged and marketed, from a huge factory in New Jersey called "Old Mother Giles" then real white eggs will be even more sharply despised than brown eggs are now.

Montreal Port Reports Drop in Cargo Tonnage

MONTREAL (CP) — The Port of Montreal reports an increase in shipping tonnage but a slight decrease on cargo tonnage handled this year compared with 1970.

The port estimates that 5,790 ships with a net registered tonnage of 25 million will have used the port by the end of the year, compared with 5,456 ships last year with a tonnage of 23.4 million.

Of these, 3,647 were ocean-going vessels compared with 3,187 in 1970, Nicholas Beshwaty, acting port manager, told a news conference Thursday.

The port expects that 155 million bushels of grain will be handled by the year's end, down from 158.3 million bushels last year. It also estimates 8.5 million tons of petroleum products will be handled this year, a decrease from 9.4 million in 1970.

Import-export of general cargo will increase to 3.9 million tons this year, from 3.65 million last year, but over-all cargo tonnage will drop to 24.3 million tons from 25.04 million tons last year.

Mr. Beshwaty said container traffic will amount to 1.18 million tons, compared with last year's total of 901,718 tons.

The passenger shipping season, already ended, shows that 49,320 persons passed through Montreal compared with 46,777 last year.

A record 287 ships arrived in Montreal during the 1970-71 winter navigation season, the worst in terms of weather in the 20th century, compared with 263 arrivals in 1969-70.

Harlequin Buys U.K. Firm

TORONTO (CP) — Harlequin Enterprises Ltd., a Canadian publisher of paperback novels, announced today it will acquire all the outstanding shares of Mills and Boon Ltd., of London, England.

Mills and Boon publish general and educational books as well as popular romance fiction.

Purchase price, subject to approval by regulatory bodies, will be $3 million and five-year warrants entitling the holders to acquire 100,000 common shares of Harlequin at $4.50 a share.

Alcoa Cuts Production, At Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — A second major aluminum company has announced a substantial production cut-back in the U.S. Northwest.

Alcoa Aluminum said it will shut down one of five potlines at its Vancouver plant Jan. 7, putting 100 employees out of work.

The shutdown will follow by about two months Reynolds Metals' closure of its Troutdale, Ore., plant last Nov. 5.

The Alcoa announcement also represented the second economic blow to Vancouver in 24 hours.

Diamond Fruit Growers announced it will close its Vancouver operations and discharge more than 400 workers.

R. W. Anderson, Alcoa's operations manager in Vancouver, blamed the shutdown on a slackening demand for aluminum. He said the plant had a 60,000,000-pound surplus of primary aluminum on hand.

Less Competition

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Transport Commission reserved decision Thursday on an application by Canadian Pacific Ltd. to purchase up to 50 per cent of Commercial Solids Pipe Line Co. of Toronto.

The hearing lasted nine days — three in the second session which started Tuesday. The commission's three-man commodity pipeline committee heard six days of testimony during late October and early November.

Eight petroleum-sulphur companies and the governments of Alberta and Saskatchewan objected to Canadian Pacific's bid.

The objectors stressed the purchase would lessen competition between various modes of transportation.

Commercial Solids, controlled by Shell Canada Ltd., is researching the pipeline movement of sulphur but has no immediate plans to construct a sulphur slurry line.

Record High Through Seaway

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp. reported Thursday that a record high of more than 51.2 million tons of cargo passed through the waterway during the 1971 navigation season.

The figure was current through Dec. 7, five days before the official closing of the seaway.

Last year the total was 51.1 million tons.

N.S. TAX BITE CLIMBS 10.5%

HALIFAX (CP) — The personal income tax rate in Nova Scotia will be increased by 10.5 percentage points effective in 1972 to meet rising costs of provincial services, Finance Minister Peter Nicholson said Thursday.

Nicholson said in a statement issued by his office late in the afternoon that the rate would increase to 38.5 per cent from 28 per cent of the basic federal income tax.

The statement said revenue growth this year and next was projected at less than seven per cent annually and the resulting deficit in 1972-73 "would be of a magnitude that no responsible government can or should finance through capital borrowing."

Pint-Sized Sark Undecided on ECM

SARK, Channel Islands (Reuter) — Sark, sometimes called the smallest "state" in Europe, is undecided whether to succumb to the lures of the European Common Market.

The parliament of the pint-sized island—population about 550—decided Thursday to accept entry in principle, as the bigger Channel Islands of Jersey, Guernsey and Alderney have done, but to put off a final decision until it sees how things go with Britain's application.

If Sark stays out, the parliament was told, it would mean complete independence from Britain, with complications about defence, the Commonwealth and the United Nations.

Sark is one place that hasn't besieged Britain with protests about what would happen to its exports when Britain joins the market. It hasn't any exports.

Collection Firm Hired By Library

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — A collection agency has been engaged by the Guelph Public Library Board to handle overdue books.

The board voted Thursday night to engage the agency as suggested by the Guelph Credit Bureau, which had prepared a report on the financial loss suffered by the library on overdue books.

In 1970 the value of the non-returned books was $1,216. In the first six months of 1971 the value was $867.

Library trustees said their new program will start with a week in which all overdue books may be returned without fine.

MAN TO BE CHARGED IN CHABOT ACCIDENT

City police said a man will be charged with leaving the scene of an accident following a two-car collision Wednesday night in which the wife of Labor Minister James Chabot was injured.

Chabot was driving his car, which was stopped on Quadra and Hillside when it was struck from behind by another vehicle.

He was not injured but his wife, Grace, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, treated for whiplash and released.

"I LIKE THIS CAT 941 LOADER

very much," says Len Pare, of Pare Contracting, Merritt. He uses the machine to build right-of-way and access road and to backfill and level on irrigation pipeline projects in the Okanagan. He states that the 941 "is the right size — has lots of power — can do all the jobs I need it to do. I tried a smaller machine but it couldn't handle the work." The 941 is small but it has a lot of big loader features. Plenty of horsepower from its 70 fly-wheel hp diesel. Lots of production in its 1 1/4-yd. bucket. Fast cycles with single lever, on-the-go full power shift. Easy operation with optional pedalsteer. Long life and availability backed by Finning's unmatched parts and service support in your area and 32 other B.C. locations. These are the features that make the 941 a profitable machine for Len Pare and other owners like him. If you are looking for a small track loader, see your Finning sales representative about the Caterpillar 941 loader. FINNING, your CATERPILLAR Dealer.

did not indicate how many pharmacists were involved but said the charges of "improper conduct in the professional sense" were laid in regard to prescription prices.

The release said those charged had been summoned to appear before the discipline committee of the college council and, if found guilty, their names "and the results of the hearing" will be published in a college news letter.

This would be done after the statutory period for filing appeals had passed, probably about the end of February.

The release said no further details will be made public until that time "since the matter is, in effect, before the courts."

Mercedes-Benz announces a most unusual sale

This is an unusual sale because, unlike most manufacturers, Mercedes-Benz do not normally hold sales of any kind. But, right now they are offering for sale a limited number of executive driven 1972 company cars. All models at considerable savings, all on an immediate delivery basis.

The reason for this special offer is that, since their initial introduction the demand for our 1972 models has, in many cases, exceeded available supply. They are therefore placing their own immaculately maintained staff cars on the retail market—effective immediately. Your local dealer has a complete list of all cars available.

So, if you have ever considered owning a Mercedes-Benz, the car that has long been acclaimed "one of the world's finest cars", then now is the time to act.

Sample the superb performance and handling. Enjoy the luxury and security of a fine automobile. Test drive a Mercedes-Benz today.

Chevalier Under Close Watch

PARIS (Reuter) — Entertainer Maurice Chevalier is under round-the-clock watch by a special camera and a battery of electronic equipment as he lies seriously ill in a Paris hospital with kidney trouble.

An artificial kidney machine also is at hand for emergency use.

The 83-year-old music hall and film star entered hospital Monday with an ailment which, before the kidney machine was invented, generally led to coma and death.

His life-long friend and secretary, Felix Pacquet, who saw Chevalier Thursday, said his kidneys were blocked and it was undeniable that his condition was serious.

But experts said it was unlikely his life was in danger. It was possible for him to live a perfectly normal life providing he continued with regular hospital treatment.

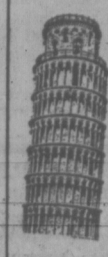

Pacquet said Chevalier, whose latest recording—a version of the theme song from the Walt Disney film The Aristocats—is becoming a Christmas hit in Paris, was in fine spirits and good heart.

He is suffering from a too-high urea count in the bloodstream. This is a compound normally filtered by the kidneys from the blood into the urine.

Order Honors 37 Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert A. D. Ford, Canadian ambassador to the U.S.S.R., and composer Hary Somers are among 12 prominent Canadians, today appointed Companions of the Order of Canada.

Walter Shaw, former premier of Prince Edward Island, and Jean Vanier, son of former governor-general Georges P. Vanier, were among 25 other persons named recipients of the order's medal of service.

Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener, whose office made the announcement, will invest the recipients at a later date.

Companions are picked for "outstanding merit of the highest degree, especially service to Canada or to humanity at large." The service medal is awarded for "excellence in all fields of endeavor in Canadian life."

The selections for the order are made twice a year by an advisory council acting on suggestions from individuals and organizations.

In a diplomatic career spanning 31 years, Mr. Ford 56, has served as ambassador to Colombia, Yugoslavia, the United Arab Republic and the Sudan. He was named ambassador to the U.S.S.R. in January, 1964.

Mr. Somers, 46, of Toronto, has gained an international audience with his compositions.

SERVED AS PREMIER

Mr. Shaw, 83, served as premier of P.E.I. from 1959 until the 1966 general election when his government was defeated. Retaining his own seat, he was Conservative house leader until he retired in 1970.

Dr. Vanier, 43, is perhaps best known as the founder of L'Arche, a village for mentally retarded adults in Trosly-Breuil, France, where he resides. He also has founded several other communities for the retarded, including one at Richmond Hill, Ont.

Other companions:

Thomas J. Bata, 57, Don Mills, Ont., an industrialist and head of various Bata shoe companies around the world;

Robert E. Bell, 53, a nuclear physicist and principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University;

Roy Daniels, 69, professor of English literature and language at the University of British Columbia;

Louis-Philippe de Grandpre, 54, Montreal lawyer and president-elect of the Canadian Bar Association;

J. M. Harrison, 56, assistant deputy minister of the federal department of energy, mines and resources;

Margaret Laurence, writer and novelist who won the Governor-General's award in 1967 for her novel A Jest of God, later made into the film Rachel, Rachel. Mrs. Laurence, who lives in England, was writer-in-residence at Massey College, University of Toronto, in 1969-70.

Rev. Louis-Marie Regis, 67, Montreal, former dean and director of studies, faculty of philosophy, University of Montreal;

Escott M. Reid, 66, Ottawa, former high Canadian high commissioner to India and ambassador to Germany, and first principal of Glendon College, York University;

Guy Rocher, vice-president of the Canada Council and chairman of the research committee, University of Montreal;

Lucien Saulnier, 55, chairman of the Montreal Urban Community, and a former Montreal municipal executive.

Other service medal recipients include:

Lawrence J. Wallace, 58, Victoria, deputy provincial secretary of British Columbia;

Dr. Lennox G. Bell, 67, Winnipeg, dean emeritus of medicine, University of Manitoba;

Ralph P. Bell, 85, Mahone Bay, N.S., industrialist and chancellor emeritus, Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B.;

Leslie Cliff, 16, Vancouver, holder of three gold medals for swimming victories at this year's Pan-American Games at Cali, Colombia;

Rev. Raoul Cloutier, 63, Quebec City, founder of the Trois-Saumons Study Camp, established to promote culture exchange between young English and French-speaking Canadians;

Thorvaldur Johnson, 74, Winnipeg, retired plant pathologist who specialized in research work with cereal diseases, particularly rusts;

Iby Koerner, Vancouver, who has spent much of her life in various activities to improve Canadian art and music;

Isabel MacNeil, Mill Village, N.S., first superintendent of the prison for women at Kingston, Ont.;

Helen G. McArthur, Vancouver, former national director of nursing services for the Canadian Red Cross Society. She served in Korea in 1954-55, and was awarded the Florence Nightingale Medal, highest international nursing award of the Red Cross, in 1956.

Rev. William Wyte Moore, 75, South Burnaby, B.C., former missionary on Mistawasis Reserve in Saskatchewan;

Omer Parent, director of the Laval University school of visual arts;

Chief James Sewid, 58, hereditary chief of Kwakwaka'wakw and former chief councillor of the Albert Bay, B.C. band.

Winifred M. Stewart, Edmonton, founder and principal of the Winnifred Stewart School for Retarded Children in Edmonton.

The new selections to the Order of Canada bring to 442 the total of companions and service medal recipients named since the order was founded in 1967.

CITY TO SHARE IN SALARIES

Victoria council has agreed to share the salaries of two health specialists who will detect hearing and speech defects in children of pre-school age.

The Greater Victoria metropolitan board of health has been stalled in its attempt to hire the specialists because of disagreement over cost-sharing of the services.

Under the agreement passed by the city Thursday, the Greater Victoria school board will pay about 25 per cent of an audiologist's salary and 40 per cent of a speech therapist's pay. The city, Oak Bay and Esquimalt would pay the remainder of the two salaries which total $19,200.

Oak Bay and Esquimalt have yet to give approval. Ald. Peter Pollen told council the health board considers it important to discover speech and hearing defects in children before they enter school.

Wreck's Gear in Good Shape Access Pact Signed

After being submerged under water in Barkley Sound for more than 40 years, the wreck of HMS Thetis still has some of her gear in fairly good shape.

Sidney doctor Ian Buckingham has revealed some of the discoveries when he joined a diving expedition in November, organized by the University of Victoria Diving Club.

"We found four stone jugs of rum. The jugs were in perfect condition but the rum had deteriorated," he said. "We also found valves till able to turn in the engine room of the ship, plates with inscriptions still intact, and portholes in good condition."

Buckingham salvaged the ship's mast light and said the portholes were in such good shape they could be used on a ship today.

A naval vessel attached to the fisheries department, the 125-foot Thetis sank in a storm in February after hitting an uncharted rock in the passage which now bears her name.

No hands were lost and salvage was ruled out because of the cost. She was built in 1918. Various diving clubs have explored the wreck, beginning in the 1960s.

One of the most recent expeditions was made in 1966 by members of the Alberni Valley Skindivers. They brought back many items from the ship, including storm lights with the glass intact and an unchipped ironstone plate.

BONN (Reuter) — East and West Germany formally signed a transit agreement today regulating access to Berlin from the West.

It is the first major political agreement between the two states since the Second World War and is designed to end a perennial source of international friction in the divided country.

The agreement, thrashed out in protracted bargaining over the last 13 months, was signed in the Palais Schaumburg, Chancellor Willy Brandt's official residence.

Riding Academy Time Extended

The deadline for entries in Oak Bay's continent-wide competition for purchase and development of the 9.3-acre Victoria Riding Academy site has been extended to Dec. 30, Mayor Frances Elford announced Thursday.

The original terms of the contest for architect-developer teams interested in over-all development of the site set Dec. 15 as the deadline for submitting entries, asking questions or suggesting revisions to the council's tentative specifications for the site.

Mayor Elford said the initial two-month period had been extended because "we had indicated we were willing to consider any questions and we were late in getting replies to the firms that had asked about the contest. They really wouldn't have had time to consider them if we closed the first stage at Dec. 15."

Ten applications have been made to date, compared to nine that made applications when the first contest was held last year.

Although nine applications were made in 1970 no firms came forward with definite proposals.

After the Dec. 30 deadline, the firms will be given three months to submit a proposal.

Any such proposal will then be judged by Ald. Brian Smith, Ald. Douglas Watts and two architects, Alan Hodgson and Fred Hollingsworth.

FLOATING TREE SET FOR ISLANDS

For more than 1,200 children at 10 isolated centres on the Gulf and San Juan islands, Christmas will come in the form of a floating Christmas tree.

Lit up with hundreds of Christmas lights, the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce Santa Ship departs tonight at 7:30 from the Canadian Forces Base diving school dock at Colwood.

Commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. A. R. Horner, the 115-foot-long HMCS Porte de la Reine will pass Clover Point at 8:15 and Cattle Point at 8:45 as it heads for Sidney for an overnight stay before taking Santa to the islands on Saturday morning.

MB Studies Haven For Trumpeters

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. has begun an ecological and land use study of the Somass River delta at Port Alberni, and one objective will be a sanctuary for rare trumpeter swans which winter there.

D. W. Timmis, the company's executive vice-president, operations, said the study will examine land use needs of the Port Alberni community and company operations as well as develop an over-all plan to preserve habitat.

Howard Paish and Associates, an environmental and resource management consulting firm, has been hired by MB to undertake the study.

Part of the plan will be construction of a dike basin on Johnstone Island to hold sand, gravel and bark dredged from the Port Alberni harbor and entrance. This project has already been approved by the federal environment department and the provincial pollution control branch.

While the study will be conducted over a full year to cover all aspects of tidal and weather conditions, most of the physical work will be done over the next four months, while the swans are using the tidal area, Timmis said.

An interim report on the project will be ready for MB by June.

"The MB study is a completely new approach to the inter-related problems which exist in a delta area. The objective is to meet the community, industrial and environmental requirements of the region. We are determined to develop a viable land and water use plan for the whole estuary."

Santa in Sidney

Santa will arrive by helicopter at Sanscha Hall in Sidney at 9:15 Saturday morning.

The traditional Christmas program, sponsored by the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce, will include a parade down Beacon Avenue with the Kinsmen Air Cadet band and a free movie and treats for all children at the Gem Theatre at 10 a.m.

TOUGH DECISIONS NEEDED TO CURB MEDICARE COSTS

OTTAWA (CP) — Tough decisions must be faced in order to cut costs through new kinds of hospital and medical care services, says a report to the conference of federal and provincial health ministers.

Closer check must be made of who is admitted to hospital, how long they stay and when they must be discharged.

Determined efforts must be made to shift patients who do not really need expensive acute hospital beds to less costly institutional, ambulatory and home-care services.

Corrective action in medical care must recognize that use of doctors' services is being stimulated by some of the present methods of paying practitioners under medical care insurance.

These were major points in an interim report by the community health centre project, a study group set up by the health ministers under Dr. John E. F. Hastings of the University of Toronto school of hygiene.

The report says any proposals to encourage community health centres as a cost-limiting device "will have to be made at the expense of some other part of the health services system if the rate of increase in costs is to be reduced."

Politicians must be willing to make hard decisions about priorities in spending and in manpower allocation such as reducing the number of general hospital beds and the supporting staff and facilities. This also included closing hospitals no longer required in the medical care system of a region.

At the same time, it must be recognized that community care means the development of a whole range of new local ambulatory care services such as nursing or convalescent homes and home care.

This kind of care would require doctors and medical and social service professionals to work much closer together. Several imaginary and real barriers existed to medical groups and other integrated forms of practice.

In addition, fee-for-service payment of doctors, based on provincial medical association fee schedules, were producing more and more evidence that "payment mechanisms" may stimulate utilization.

This meant realistic appraisal of such payment systems as experiments and innovations could be encouraged. Barriers to development of integrated medical groups and health centres would have to be dealt with.

A Serene, Slate World For Every Rain-Lover

Being some selected excerpts from a man's personal diary:

Dear Diary: The Allens, our Toronto friends, here for a brief visit en route to Hawaii and, sure enough, it rained incessantly through the 48 hours of their stay.

Somehow it always does, a reminder that nothing — not language, not politics, not even economics — is quite so divisive in a nation as climate. The Allens, Ontario-born, verge on a state of panic when the rain continues. Yet I, forced to endure the deep freeze of one Toronto winter, fled westward to the coastal downpour, knowing I couldn't endure another so cruel.

"I shall continue to praise the English climate till I die," Chesterton said, "even if I die of the English climate." And Allen, in his way, and I, in mine, are just as irrational.

There is only one way to beat the coastal rain, just as there's only one way to beat the rain in England: Love it, get out into it, under it, revel in it, be like a duck. What seems the most dismal kind of weather from your living room window will be the most exhilarating, if you are dressed for it.

I know of no more therapeutic exercise than to walk along the shore by the Esquimalt lagoon when the straits are leaden-grey and dimpled by raindrops, and you are absolutely alone in a slate world without horizon. Or, if time allows, to take the wet trail through the East Sooke Park, a leafy, chlorophyll tunnel washed and fresh, a canopied landscape that's totally invigorating. "Get out," as Pauline Johnson used to say, "whatever the weather."

Another of my favorite women writers, Katherine Whitehorn, once ventured the opinion that weather should never be anticipated, simply accepted. "People get a bad impression of it," she noted, speaking of the English climate, "by continually trying to treat it as if it was a bank clerk, who ought to be on time on Tuesday next. Instead of philosophically seeing it as a painter, who may do anything so long as you don't try to predict what."

Dear Diary: Out to Ernie's place tonight for our regular poker session and I arrived shaken and trembling, this being my first time at night traversing the new Patricia Bay highway out past Beaver Lake Park.

In all my years of driving I have never seen such a scandalous, nightmare death trap, a maze of unit black-top with conflicting markers or no markers at all. Only an act of God prevented me from following one white line that leads directly into a concrete wall.

Those who have become familiar with the highway, including truckers, drive it boldly at bullet speed in the blackest of nights while the newcomer gropes his way in total bewilderment, a sure-fire formula for an appointment in Samarra. The road has already taken its toll and, as surely as Russian Roulette, it will take more. Let it be on the heads of the provincial highway department and the contractors.

Shook my savoir-faire so thoroughly that I dropped the bundle at the poker table.

Dear Diary: Had a little whimsy in the paper tonight about how kids learn the truth about Santa Claus and an elderly gentleman who had known Robert Service phoned me to say that the Bard of the Yukon had once written eloquently on just such disillusionment. The poem was titled "The Skeptic" and went thusly:

My Father Christmas passed away
When I was barely seven.
At twenty-one, alack-a-day,
I lost my hope of heaven.

Yet not in either lies the curse:
The hell of it's because
I don't know which loss hurt the worse—
My God or Santa Claus.

Dear Diary: In the mail today a nicely autographed copy of "The Emperor's New Clothes" by Norman Alcock, director of the Canadian Peace Research Institute, a man I've admired these past 10 years, not merely because of his dedication to his belief that science may prevent future wars by isolating the causes of war, but because he gave up a high-paying career to devote his life to that uncertain notion.

Those of us who lead more programmed lives are always impressed and envious when a man's sense of mission causes him to make a clean break with success, as Norman did, yet we seldom concern ourselves with what that means to the women in their lives.

When I put the question to Patricia Alcock, Norman's attractive wife, a mother of four, she said that many women had asked her the same thing.

"Often they'll say, 'How you've sacrificed!'" Pat explained. "Mostly they're talking about money. But the fact is that although our income was slashed about 65 per cent by Norman's decision to set up the institute in 1961, we don't live very differently. We really haven't given up anything that matters."

"So many people, you see, tell me that they're discontented with what they're doing and they want to make a change, but they can't face the social and economic drop in status. I know now that's just rationalizing."

"What I have discovered is that money doesn't matter nearly as much as having a husband who is concerned and excited about a challenging job."

It may not be true that behind every great man there's a great woman, but it seems to fit the Alcocks.

Careless Smoking Likely Caused Apartment Blaze

Careless smoking is believed to have caused a fire early today which did about $1,350 damage to an apartment building at 1063 Foul Bay on Oak Bay five department officials said.

He said the blaze was confined to the suite of Mrs. Alice Wetmore who was awakened by another tenant in the building before firemen arrived. The fire started in a chestfield.

Firemen received the alarm about 4:15 a.m.

Cadets Carol For Vets

Military men young and old got together at Veterans' Hospital Thursday night as Royal Roads Military College choir, led by senior cadet Stuart Robertson, presented a 90-minute program of carols, moving throughout the hospital to sing in every ward. Choir, which includes bell ringers, has members from every province. It will present traditional carol service at college tonight.

BYELECTION ON JAN. 29

Saturday, Jan. 29, has been set as the date of a byelection in Victoria to elect one alderman to city council.

The seat on council is vacant due to the death Dec. 7 of Ald. Robert Ford. Term of the seat will end Dec. 31, 1972.

Council approved the new election date Thursday.

Nomination day is set for Monday, Jan. 17. Nominations must be filed between 10 a.m. and 12 p.m. in Committee Room 1 at city hall.

Only one polling station will be open for the byelection — at Senior Citizens Activity Centre off Centennial Square.

7 Years' Jail For Drug Haul

Richard V. Bird, 23, was sentenced today to seven years in prison for importing marijuana into Canada, the minimum penalty for the offence under the Narcotics Control Act.

He was convicted earlier this month by Judge Edmond St. Jorre of importing 74 pounds, one ounce of marijuana Aug. 29 concealed in the camper-truck he was driving that arrived in Victoria from Port Angeles on the Black Ball ferry.

St. Jorre said today the accused took a "calculated gamble" spurred on by the profit motive and lost.

He said Bird was viewing the venture as a businessman hoping to make money.

The judge noted that the accused arrived at Customs accompanied by his mother and younger brothers and sisters in the truck believing a family group would have a better chance of entering the country without suspicion. The family had come from Mexico.

St. Jorre said the presentence report presented the accused as something of a "crusader" for the legalization of marijuana but added that there were right and wrong ways of achieving law reform.

Defence counsel Edward Pollard said he urged "most strongly" the minimum sentence because Bird had no record.

He called his client "a pawn and friend" of Donald Harper who travelled to Mexico with the Bird family but did not return with them.

Pollard said Harper allegedly drowned in a swimming accident in Mexico although his body was never found.

The lawyer said the importation was "masterminded" by Harper but because of his death, he was not before the courts.

Prosecutor Mike Hutchison, appearing for senior counsel Cecil Brunson, said the importation was a "carefully contrived plan" and not "a spur of the moment spree."

Revamping Studied For United Appeal

Greater Victoria's United Appeal, which looks as though it will end its 1971 drive more than $100,000 short of its goal, may be entirely revamped.

Community Chest president Allan Cox announced at a press conference this morning that a special committee of ex-chairmen of the campaign was formed Thursday "to look at the campaign and re-examine its aims and whole administrative structure."

The committee, headed by 1971 chairman Eric Charman, will meet almost immediately and prepare a report for submission to the chest's directors late in January, Cox said.

The committee was formed at a directors' meeting Thursday which received a preliminary report from Charman on the results of the 1971 campaign, and included several of his personal recommendations for administrative and operating changes.

Also at today's press conference, Cox confirmed a report that the chest's executive director, Henry Bennett, submitted his resignation earlier this week, effective Dec. 31.

But Cox said Bennett's resignation was for personal reasons, and had no connection with the proposal to examine certain aspects of the appeal's administration.

Bennett himself, questioned on his decision today, said he had no comment.

Full Quotas to Be Met

Cox said that despite the shortfall this year, the 23 agencies involved would have their 1972 quotas met in full, by dipping into the Community Chest's contingency fund.

But he stressed this would be the last time they could make good any deficit, as most of the modest reserves had been used up.

In his preliminary report to the directors Charman said the 1971 total to date stands at $620,000 but known donations still to come in should swell that to about $635,000. Other contributions trickling in during the wind-up stages of the appeal could put the final figure close to the $650,000 actually raised last year.

Charman noted this was far short of the "enormous" $758,723 target, which had been set on the basis of the agencies' minimum requirements.

It was a departure from the previous practice of drastically pruning their demands to a realistically achievable goal, because it was felt that if the requirements could be met "there would be a far greater feeling towards the appeal with an increased participation by the agencies' representatives."

But Charman added, "This theory has been overwhelmingly disproved."

Among his recommendations for reshaping the structure and operations of the appeal were:

● Appointment of a "first-class public relations campaign director" to run a year-round campaign.

● A complete reappraisal of those agencies included in the appeal, with a view to eliminating those which "should obviously be creatures of the Crown."

● Possible consolidation of the chest's administrative structure with that of the Community Council, to avoid duplication of effort and expense.

'VIOLIN PLAYER' HERE APRIL 20

Comedian-violinist Jack Benny will perform here on April 20 with the Victoria Symphony, it was confirmed Thursday.

John Addicott, symphony society general manager, said a committee will be set up to promote the performance, from which it is hoped $40,000 will be raised to pull the symphony out of debt.

Addicott hopes to sell at least half the seats at McPherson Playhouse for $100 a couple. This "golden circle group" will be entitled to meet Benny at a champagne and caviar reception after the concert.

The rest of the tickets will go for $5 and $10.

Addicott said that Benny will be charging a nominal fee of $1,000.

Oak Bay Gets Work Subsidy

Oak Bay has received confirmation that one of its three projects submitted for federal assistance under the local initiatives program has been approved.

Mayor Frances Elford said today the federal government will pay $21,411 out of a total of $46,000 for a practice tennis court at Windsor Park; installing curbs, draining, paving and landscaping of the parking area for the new senior citizens' centre and library, and installation of curbs at Oak Bay Marina's parking area.

The project will provide 10 jobs.

The mayor said the federal government's grant would be based on $100 per week per man plus 17 per cent for other costs, such as materials.

She said she understands confirmation of a second project will soon be made.

This is for construction of sidewalks on six Oak Bay streets and the creation of an asphalt cycle path from Cedar Hill Cross Road to Woodburn Avenue. The federal government, if the confirmation comes through, will be contributing $23,400 toward a total cost of $51,200.

The third project, the mayor said, might be delayed. It involves spending $47,100 on replacement of old water mains. The federal government's share would be $25,000.

Shaker Church Rising As His Labor of Love

By PAT MUNSON

A man who was once a bishop in the Indian Shaker Church is now working each day in Brentwood on a new wooden church and community hall being built to his design.

Bert Underwood, 77, climbed down from the shingle roof of the 76-foot square building this week to explain his labor of love.

"It will be somewhere for the young people to meet as well as a place for weddings, funerals and regular services," said Underwood who started work on the building by himself early last summer.

On weekends volunteer help arrives from the Tsartlip, Tsawout and other Peninsula Indian bands and lately non-Indian students from high schools in the district have turned up to work.

The original Shaker church

burned down on the same site about two years ago, according to the local minister, Theresa Sam, who has ministered to the congregation for eight years.

Services meanwhile are held in private homes and attended by members of the Shaker faith from Greater Victoria. Often, says Theresa Sam, everyone travels to Duncan where there is a large Shaker church.

The Indian Shaker Church embodies the teachings of Christ with emphasis on racial equality, passivism and faith healing. The Shakers, a matriarchal movement, gained their name from the congregation's habit of shaking in moments of religious fervor.

"I haven't had a chance to count lately because we meet in small houses," said the minister "but I think there would be about 30 members on this reserve and about 300 on the lower island."

The Shaker Church was organized in the United States about 1910 and services are conducted in the local Indian language.

On Vancouver Island, the service is most often spoken in Cowichan.

"There are hardly any ministers using the Sanich language," said Miss Sam. Instead of music, bells are used in the church ritual.

A provincial government grant of $10,000 enabled the church to be built.

Interest Extends Past Election Day

An unsuccessful candidate in the recent election for school trustee in Central Saanich, Claudia Whipple of 8898 Marshall, has not relinquished her interest in education.

Mrs. Whipple says she is fighting for the child with learning difficulties and is trying to organize Peninsula parents to help children both in school and at home.

"Statistics show that a minimum of 12 per cent of the average student population has learning difficulties and in Saanich district there are 272 such students who are given special help by a remedial staff which numbers three-and-a-half," said Mrs. Whipple.

These children are in regular classrooms and are assisted during visits to the school by specially-trained teachers.

"Ten years ago, there was little interest in learning difficulties," but if sufficient numbers are interested in helping, resource speakers and materials are available, she said.

Mrs. Whipple said she is meeting the head of the Saanich school district remedial staff and will discuss the possibility of properly-trained volunteer parent help with principals.

Teachers Blame New Act

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's 22,000 teachers, and the school trustees who employ them, are licking their wounds and remembering 1971 as one of the toughest years for contract negotiations.

Since April, there have been four teacher walkouts which have left about 150,000 students without instructors for periods ranging from 50 minutes to three weeks.

One of the walkouts has been under way since Nov. 29, keeping 12,000 out of classes in seven rural districts in the Calgary area.

Premier Peter Lougheed called an emergency cabinet meeting for today to deal with the strike of 613 teachers.

Teachers across the province, represented by the powerful Alberta Teachers' Association, blame a new school act and regional bargaining for many of their problems.

LACKED PREPARATION

The new Alberta School Act, approved by the legislature in 1970, made working conditions negotiable items and allowed the boards to band together and negotiate as units for the first time.

The teachers say the school boards interpreted the legislation as meaning trustees could dictate working conditions. Also, they say, the boards did not prepare themselves properly for the innovation of regional bargaining.

About 10,000 teachers were affected by regional bargaining when 66 school boards formed eight units.

Three of the eight, Battle River, North-Central West and Bow Valley, the unit now strikebound, had walkouts. The fourth strike was against the Calgary public school board which negotiates by itself.

C. E. Connors, a teachers' association spokesman, says teachers were prepared for regional negotiations but the trustees weren't.

This is obvious, he says, because only one of the strikes—Bow Valley—had wages as a main issue. The others were over a variety of working conditions.

STUMBLING BLOCK

"The abused freedoms that trustees took made teachers wary," says Donna Halstead, ATA information officer. "As a result, they went for consultation clauses."

The consultation clause, requiring boards to consult teachers on changes in working conditions, was a stumbling block in many negotiations. The boards claimed the teachers were trying to take a large slice of autonomy from trustees.

Mrs. Halstead says that with all but one group of the 1971 contracts now signed, about 14,000 of the province's teachers have consultation clauses.

Mr. Connors says the interesting aspect of regional bargaining is that all eight trustee units rejected conciliation board recommendations.

U.S. PONDER'S SOLAR ENERGY

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—To solve a growing power crisis on earth, man is studying how to use orbiting satellites to convert the sun's rays into pollution-free electrical energy.

The air force, the space agency and some industrial concerns have looked into the possibility of placing a network of satellites in stationary orbits.

The idea would be to have their banks of solar cells capture solar heat and transform it to electricity. Generators then would convert the electricity to microwaves, which would be beamed to an earth station for reversion to electricity.

The studies show such a system could be developed in the United States. It initially would be costly, but proponents say the eventual saving to the environment might make it worthwhile.

Peter E. Glaser of Arthur D. Little Inc., a leading research organization, said "energy is being recognized as the limiting resources in an industrial society" and that the world's supply of fossil fuel will be exhausted within a few centuries.

"Commerce Growth Savings Certificates.

It's the one Christmas present my nephews won't outgrow."

"Gift-giving at Christmas is primarily for the kids. And yet they are the ones that are the hardest to shop for. Many of the toys they get, they'll be too old for in a year. And it's the same thing with clothes. By the time they get used to wearing them, they've outgrown them. So, I give Commerce Growth Savings Certificates. It's the perfect gift. Six dollars and eighty-one cents can grow to ten dollars in 6 years. You can give as many as you want. They're cashable anytime, and after six months you receive interest too. You don't even need to have an account at the Commerce. Put Commerce Growth Savings Certificates on your Christmas list. They're called the gift that grows."

Assignment: Hockey Mission: Delightful

More hockey anyone? If the Cougars are looking for a skating instructor, I've got just the right party for them. And they'll listen, all right!

Perhaps general manager Eric Bishop could even appoint her the team's assistant coach. She could teach the newcomers. Fred Hucul, the senior coach, quite obviously wouldn't mind. And neither, just as obviously, would Mich Pechet, the Cougars' managing director.

And that's right. "Her".

It was Wednesday night, late, at the McPherson Playhouse when the story broke. And Hucul and Pechet had better not deny it either. Besides, how could they?

Denise Lalonde was being interviewed for what seemed the longest time; and if the reasons why were quickly obvious, the name "Lalonde" rang a bell, and got an introduction, too.

Any relation to Bobby Lalonde, the second round draft choice of Vancouver Canucks of the National League? He was from Montreal.

No, but taller... and prettier... and if you ever believed in that old adage that, like the lamp post to the drunk, statistics are more to lean on, than illuminating, forget it. Denise had hers with her.

Don't take my word alone for it. Ask Hucul and Pechet. They suddenly became true believers in Denise because of her talents. Why not? She was telling them things they wanted to hear.

A Captive Audience—In Line of Duty

Believe it, it's true. Denise was busily explaining to Hucul and Pechet what was good and what was bad about the Cougar hockey team.

They were smiling at first, (make that all the time). Because after all, Denise was easy to smile back at and, if they didn't, someone else would; and besides she knew what she was talking about. Honest.

"That number 20 — what's his name," she said. (It was Carl Cureatz). "What was he doing skating right in front of his goal like that the other night? You don't do that. You lose the puck. He lost the puck. It's not right."

Not word for word, mind, that would be too much. Besides, Denise had long, dark eyelashes that fluttered when she spoke; a delightful French Canadian accent with which she was doing much for Canadian unity; long, dark eyelashes, a flowered mini, which might have been painted on; long, dark eyelashes... and after all, she was only trying to tell Fred and Mich how to get a winner.

If there is the merest hint that this thought had crossed their minds, too, they weren't letting go. Not until Denise had told them more. About the Cougars, that is! And herself.

And it turned out (I think) that she has been with Ice Capades for five years now, enjoys the travel that goes with it, the people she meets, receptions like this, and didn't really think that Victoria was "wild."

She made it sound homey when she said: "It's a nice, little town."

Fred and Mich, meanwhile, listened intently. "More," they hinted. "I'll be right back," said Fred. Denise obliged.

...If I Was Coach of a Hockey Team

"That No. 17 is a good skater; you should play him more," she explained of winger Wayne Bianchin. Hucul promised he would, and agreed that Bianchin had a good game against Edmonton, and indeed could skate very well.

"She knows her hockey," Pechet added.

"But that No. 3," said Denise, "he plays around with the puck too much... and loses it."

"It may be because he has contacts," explained Hucul.

"Sometimes, it's hard to find the puck quickly, and by the time he gets it under control, he's being checked."

Which was an interesting bit of information on Blake Robinson, Denise agreed.

"He did get a goal," suggested a listener. "He has a good shot," said Denise. "Your goalie is good — has fast hands," she added.

She had more to offer, and did. "Some of the players need skating practice," she said, and quickly Hucul and Pechet noted the chief offenders.

It was getting late, and finally Denise was claimed by other interested parties; or was it Hucul and Pechet who were reclaimed? The point is not clear.

At any rate, assistant arena manager John Bate happened by, and when he was informed that Ice Capades had a Montreal oriented hockey instructor and analyst in the group, Bate said he already knew.

"There were several of them from Ice Capades at the game on Tuesday," he said. "And Denise was one who was giving it to the Cougars."

"Of one player," she said, "he skates like a constipated hot dog."

He's Ready For Rondon

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The issue of who should rightly wear the light heavyweight boxing crown should be settled soon, possibly within the next two months, Bob Foster and his manager said Thursday night after Foster had disposed of Brian Kelly with a technical knockout in the third round.

"I'm ready for Rondon," Foster beamed after the fight in which he dazzled Kelly with a flurry of punches — sending him to the canvas three times.

Foster referred to Vincente Rondon of Venezuela, who is recognized as champ by the World Boxing Association. Foster, stripped of his title by the WBA for failing to meet the then-top challenger, Bobby Dupree, is recognized in several states, including New York.

Lou Viscusi, Foster's manager, was contacted after the fight and disclosed that Florida promoters are trying to arrange a bout with Rondon for sometime in late January or February.

He said a promoter at Orlando has offered to put up $100,000 for the fight, with Foster and Rondon splitting the take.

Foster had an easy time of it Thursday night against Kelly, who was ranked No. 1 by Ring Magazine and No. 10 by the WBA. It was Foster's 29th knockout in 46 victories. He has five losses to heavyweights.

After a first round which featured little action, Foster went to work, knocking down Kelly twice in the second round then burying the challenger with a bevy of assorted punches in the third round.

Foster caught Kelly with a blazing left hook that sent him down for the third time with 1:56 gone in the third round and referee Bob Earle stopped the fight.

He said a promoter at Or-

SKI QUEEN PADS WORLD CUP LEAD

SESTRIERE, Italy (AP) — Annemarie Proell, the Austrian ski queen, triumphed today in the Sestriere women's downhill race to increase her lead in the 1972 World Cup tournament over the strong French team.

Miss Proell, 18, defending World Cup champion, mastered the 2,050-metre Banchetta course in one minute 44.8 seconds, clearly beating her French archrival Jacqueline Rouvier, who clocked 1:45.28.

The French team also took third place with Francoise Machi, who clocked 1:45.45, and fourth place with Isabelle Mir, who had 1:45.54.

Swiss rookie Marien Therese Nadig came in fifth in 1:47.13. With her success here, the second in three World Cup races, Miss Proell jumped to 70 points in the cup standings. Miss Rouvier trailed her with 60 and Miss Machi was third with 50.

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa placed seventh in 1:47.33 and Lori Kriener of Timmins, Ont., rounded out the top 10 in 1:47.82.

Burrows Paces Win Over Mets

Bob Burrows struck for 29 points Thursday night to lead Independents to an 87-59 victory over Metropolitans and to within two points of second place in the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League.

Victory lifted Independents to a stronger third-place position, four points ahead of Restoration Services and just one win behind Robertson's Men's Wear who have played one more game.

Burrows, Independent's top scorer this year, connected for 14 first-half points as the

Riddled Ranger Knows How Routed Gump Felt

By The Canadian Press

Riding a crest as the National Hockey League's No. 1 goaltender has its pitfalls. The descent, when it comes, can be sudden and embarrassing.

Gump Worsley held the dubious leadership last weekend. Then, Chicago Black Hawks raked him for four goals in just over 12 minutes en route to a 5-1 win over Worsley's Minnesota North Stars.

Eddie Giacomin, who replaced Worsley as the league's premier goalie, took his lumps Thursday night, allowing four goals in the first period as New York Rangers, East Division leaders, fell 8-1 before the aroused Boston Bruins.

The win gave Boston 42 points, three behind New York, and a second-place tie with Montreal Canadiens.

In the only other game, Philadelphia Flyers climbed into a share of third place in the West with California Golden Seals while blanking Buffalo Sabres 5-0. The Sabres trail the seven-team East.

Giacomin can at least claim a moral victory over Worsley. The Gumper exited after the fourth goal Sunday. The New York goalie didn't depart until the end of the first period after Bruins' centre Phil Esposito had picked up his fourth point of the game, assisting on Ken Hodge's score at 19:15.

Fighting Erupts in Second Period

Esposito, who last year set a points record of 152 and is the current points-leader with 55, earlier had scored his 24th goal and assisted scores by Bobby Orr and Dallas Smith.

Gilles Villeneuve, who came on in Giacomin's relief, allowed the other four Boston goals, facing only 17 shots in two periods.

Rangers' Ted Irvine and Boston winger John McKenzie were ticketed with fighting majors in the first period, but their battle turned into a preliminary of the feature donnybrook at 18:37 of the middle period.

Rod Gilbert, New York's high scoring winger, and Bruin defenceman Dallas Smith started the fireworks in front of Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers.

The ill feelings spread to other players and New York defenceman Brad Park started to take the measure of Ted Green in another attraction.

All four players received fighting majors and misconduct penalties while Ranger Vic Hadfield and Hodge were given game misconducts each for being the third man in the separate altercations.

"This just has to be our best game of the season," said Boston coach Tom Johnson. "There was nothing holding our guys back tonight," he added in reference to the aggressive play of his Bruins in front of the hometown Garden fans.

Johnson elected to go with power against power, matching up the Esposito line against New York's Hot Line of Gilbert, Hadfield and Jean Ratelle.

The Boston line, including Hodge and Wayne Cashman, set an NHL record of 336 points last season. The New York trio leads this season with 143 points in 29 games.

Cats Find Winger, But . . .

Victoria Cougars finally contested Rod Loynachan, but he won't be around to help the team in tonight's Western Canada Hockey League engagement against the Vancouver Nats in Kerrisdale.

Perhaps later... maybe. Tonight, the Cougars will call on three players from the affiliated Junior "B" Cubs.

Joining the Victoria lineup will be goalie Kelly Hunter and forwards Earl O'Hara and Al McLaren. With Cougar regular Darryl Fedorak scheduled to write university exams today, Hunter will be the backup man to starting goalie Dave Maynard.

Now about Loynachan, the winger who walked out of camp Tuesday after being acquired from Flin Flon Bombers. . . .

NOT HAPPY

He played one game and appeared in one practice but Thursday informed general manager Eric Bishop that he "doesn't like the coach or the management."

Commented coach Fred Hucul: "He must be a very, very wise young man if he can make judgment about everything after only one practice and one game."

Bishop said he will give the player "some time to think it over." Loynachan will remain in his home at Thompson, Man., until after Christmas. If he fails to return, he will be suspended or be offered for trade.

In action Thursday, New Westminster-Bruins solidified their hold on fourth place in the Western Division by blanking Edmonton Oilers 3-0 while Brandon Wheat Kings slipped into second place in the hotly-contested Eastern Division race by defeating Swift Current Broncos 6-4.

Tuition Fees Support Education of Juniors

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hockey Association Junior A teams pay a staggering amount toward tuition fees for their players, Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz of Walkerton, Ont., said Thursday.

Schmalz, the OHA president, was defending the educational standards of Junior A players as he commented on a report that a federal-provincial conference on sport had decided, with Health Minister John Munro's agreement, to investigate "some of the abuses prevalent" in amateur hockey.

"We have statistics to prove that the scholastic averages of our Junior A players are above the averages of students in almost every city in the league. Any boy who isn't doing well is provided with a tutor."

Schmalz said when a player is transferred from one city to another to play hockey, his team pays his tuition in the new city. His parents continue to pay education taxes in his home city.

DOUG PEDEN — EDITOR

OBVIOUS GLEE is displayed by embracing Bruins Phil Esposito (7) and Ken Hodge (8) after latter scored on New York Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin in Thursday's National Hockey League meeting. Bruins went on to win, 8-1.

Although he stopped 29 shots, Richardson saw several deflections skitter by the goal post and in the second period Edmonton forward Curt Shockley fanned on an attempted shot from 10 feet in front of an open net.

Don Martineau, Bernie Lukowich and Bob Stumpf were Westminster's scorers.

At Brandon, the line of Robbie Neale, Glen Mikkelsen and Don McLaughlin scored four goals, McLaughlin getting two and Neale and Mikkelsen one each.

"In some cases the amount a team pays is staggering—as much as $1,000. This way the government gets in both ways."

"Ottawa says there isn't enough liaison between the governing bodies of hockey and the youth and recreation department," Schmalz said. "This may be true in other provinces, but it certainly isn't true in Ontario."

He said the OHA was hiring a technical director to tour towns and conduct coaching and referee clinics.

Schmalz said neither the federal government nor the public was aware of the problems that exist in amateur hockey.

Gallery of Two Watches Leader

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Bernard Gallacher, watched by a gallery of two, took a one-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the inaugural Moroccan international grand prix golf tournament.

The 22-year-old Scottish Ryder Cup player, with a 71, and Jean Garraide of France, with a 72, were the only players in the 25-man international field to better the par 73 on the new 7,501-yard Royal Rabat course nearly void of spectators.

The major drawing card in the 72-hole, $50,000 tournament, Billy Casper, commanded 10 onlookers as he fired a 77.

At par were Americans Lanny Wadkins, a former United States Amateur champion, and Jerry Heard.

Rozelle New Christmas-Stealing Grinch?

NEW YORK (AP) — Protests against the playing of the National Football League's post-season playoffs on Christmas Day appear to be mounting and one legislator says he will introduce a bill to prohibit any repetition in the future.

In Minneapolis, where Minnesota Vikings will play host to either Dallas Cowboys or Washington Redskins Christmas Day, the club said it had received numerous complaints, both by phone and letter, and revealed that of 83,000 tickets offered for sale last Sunday, about 5800 remain unsold.

In Kansas City, where the Chiefs will play either Baltimore Colts or Miami Dolphins the same day, a columnist for the Kansas City Star said NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle was being equated in many households with the "Grinch who stole Christmas."

A state legislator said he would introduce a bill to ban any such games in the future.

"More people," said Rep. Tim Ryan, "have raised hell about Chiefs' playoff game on Christmas Day than I've ever heard before. I've heard a lot of comments like, 'If I go my wife will divorce me.'"

In New York, Jim Kensil, executive director of the NFL and Rozelle's chief aide, acknowledged that the league also had received complaints.

"We didn't want to play on Christmas any more than anybody wanted us to," Kensil said. "We didn't feel we had any alternative."

The playoff schedule, released at the same time as the over-all NFL schedule in late April, has two playoff games scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 25, and two on Sunday, Dec. 26.

On each day, one game will begin at 1 p.m. EST, and the second at 4 p.m. EST, allowing for national telecasting of all four games. Times in Victoria will be 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.)

"We told the public they would see four games every year," Kensil said.

"Obviously television is involved, but we also have a commitment to our fans and we feel we have to keep it. If we played all four games Sunday, people could see only two of them and they expect to see four."

"We're also committed to deliver one game each day from each conference for television."

Steelheaders Should Be Getting Gear Ready

Vancouver Island steelheaders should set a little time aside from celebrating over the next few days to get their gear in order — because early indications show that it might be a pretty good season for those hefty sea-run rainbows.

Good returns of steelhead are coming in from a number of Island rivers and streams for the early-bird anglers.

The majority of steelheader, however, usually prefer to wait until the final week of December or the first in January to begin activities when chances of catching spawning salmon are slimmer.

Cowichan River is yielding some fine catches of both steelhead and sea-run cutthroat trout in the lower reaches to anglers using spin-n-glos.

The Koksilah, which starts producing a little later than the Cowichan, is already reported to be a favorable choice.

Further north, the Nanaimo River contains a few steelhead, but fishing pressure remains light.

A little stretch of water below the Port Alberni-Tofino highway bridge on the Somas River is highly productive about two hours after high tide. Steelhead landed there are tipping the scales in the eight to 10-pound range.

"Eight to 12-pound" fish are being taken from the Puntledge River while other anglers are striking it lucky in the Campbell, Salmon and Gold Rivers.

As for salmon fishing, south Island waters continue to lead the way in both angler participation and returns.

Saanich Inlet waters are still good for blues, winter springs and jack springs.

Fishermen using lake troll and a little bit of weight are landing blues near Willis Point, The Boulder and Indian Bay. Winter springs up to 19 pounds are coming in from Tod Inlet, along the Wall to Willis Point and down to The Boulder while jacks are ending up in fish-boxes in McKenzie and Indian Bays as well as deep off the Bamberton shore.

Other catches of winter springs were reported between Dock and Coal Islands off Sidney but a planer and 100 feet of wire line are required to reach them.

Fiddle Reef, Discovery Light, Ten Mile Point and The Gap have proven lucky locations off Oak Bay where winter springs have been hibernating on large herring and burnt-orange octopus lures trolled with eight ounces to a pound-and-a-half of weight and 60 to 80 feet of line.

Large winter springs ("up to 25 pounds") may be found "just before noon" off the kelp bed in Pedder Bay and near Bentinck Island using one pound of weight and about 100 feet of line.

NIBBLES: A report just in from Halifax states that the catch of Atlantic salmon by anglers in Maritime rivers has dropped nearly 50 per cent this year... blame for the decline was attributed by the federal environment department's fisheries service to commercial overfishing in the ocean, pollution and environmental changes... total salmon catch in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick rivers amounted to 4,131 fish this year, compared to 7,050 in 1970.

Resident B.C. hunters are being reminded by the fish and wildlife branch to retain their 1971-72 hunting licences... when the new regulations come into effect April 1, 1972, any person 19 years of age or older who has not previously obtained a licence will be required to pass an examination before being issued with the permit... present licence holders will experience a minimum of inconvenience if they retain the old licence while applying for a new one next year... anyone unable to produce the old licence will have to sign a sworn declaration stating that he was a former licence holder.

Fox Tops List

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Charlie Fox, pilot of the National League's Western Division champion San Francisco Giants, has been named manager of the year by the Sporting News.

Fox won the title in a poll of 24 major-league baseball managers. Second place went to Bob Lemon of the Kansas City Royals.

Herve Skips Holiday

BOWLER OF WEEK

Hitting list of winners for first time is John Dyer, who topped men's tenpin section with 690 series in ninth-annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. John collected 10th weekly award and a berth in the Bowler-of-the-Week rollofs next April with games of 244, 213 and 173 in Northridge League at Mayfair Lanes.

OTTAWA (CP) — Herve Filion would like a holiday from harness racing. But the world record-holder from Angers, Que., says he "can't afford it right now."

Can't afford it?

"No, no, don't get me wrong," the wealthy, 31-year-old horseman added quickly on the phone from Yonkers Raceway in New York Thursday. "It isn't the money." "I can't afford to take time off for another couple of weeks because racing has been so good to me all my life. This is a chance to put something back into it."

That's why Herve will drive in all 10 races at Connaught Park near Ottawa Saturday afternoon. Then he'll delay his departure for a Miami holiday with his wife, Barbara Anne, while he handles some trotters and pacers at Windsor Raceway on Dec. 26.

Filion polished off another fantastic racing year Wednesday night when he won three races on the closing program at Yonkers. The triple victory gave him a new individual record for winners in one season — 530. And he topped veteran Bill Haughton's lifetime mark of 3,448.

Both records, of course, won't stand too long, with at least two more racing days on Herve's calendar this year.

From Aug. 9 through the end of November, Filion raced both afternoon and evening.

"It's a rough grind but the only way a fellow can get in as many races as I need for a record try."

Herve said he is tired. But then, laughing, he added: "Actually, a winner's never really too tired. It's nice to know I've achieved some of my ambitions."

Cardenas Set Record

Only 11 Errors In 722 Chances

BOSTON (AP) — Leo Cardenas of Minnesota Twins set an American League fielding record for shortstops last season, according to official league figures.

Cardenas, now with California Angels, fielded at a .985 clip, making 11 errors in 722 chances. The former record was .982 set in 1950 by New York Yankees' Phil Rizzuto.

Jim Spencer, first baseman for the Angels, was the only repeater among the defensive leaders from 1970. Spencer had a .996 mark, committing five errors in 1394 total chances. His league-leading percentage last year was .995.

Other league leaders were:

- Second base — Cookie Rojas, Kansas City, .992;
- Third base — Rico Petrocelli, Boston, .976;

Only 11 Errors In 722 Chances

- Catcher — Thurman Munson, New York, .998;
- Pitcher — Jim Perry, Minnesota, Bill Parsons, Milwaukee, and Denny McLain, Washington, all 1.000.

The Yankees' Roy White and Detroit's Al Kaline topped the outfielders with 1,000 per cent. Oakland's Joe Rudi was next at .996 with one error in 255 chances.

Boston's Carl Yastrzemski led the outfielders for a record sixth season with 16 assists while teammate Reggie Smith and Oakland's Reggie Jackson tied for second with 15.

Kansas City's Amos Otis and Baltimore's Merv Rettenmund tied for the league lead among outfielders by participating in four double plays. It marked the second straight year Otis has led the league in that department.

Detroit Tigers led in club fielding with a .983 mark, after finishing tied for seventh last year.

Grapple Meet Set Tonight

Approximately 30 young competitors from S. J. Willis Junior High School will play host to 20 of their counterparts from Stevens Junior High in Port Angeles in the first part of the second annual home-and-home invitational wrestling meet series tonight at the school gymnasium.

S. J. Willis, which won the inaugural competition last year, visits Stevens for the final part of the contest on Jan. 7.

Action begins at 7 p.m. tonight with admission $1 for adults, 50 cents for students and free for children under 12 with a parent.

GOLDEN EAGLE OWNER HAS SURVIVAL PLAN

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Salt Lake City Golden Eagles Owner Dan Meyer said Thursday the picture for the Western Hockey League is not as bleak as WHL president Bill MacFarland had painted it a day before.

MacFarland was quoted in Seattle as saying the league has to somehow attain major league status to survive.

Meyer said that in the next three weeks or so a plan will be submitted that will be helpful in bolstering the league's status. He offered no details of the plan.

Meyers did outline three directions he thought the league could go — become part of the National Hockey League, join the fledgling World Hockey Association or declare the WHL a major league and compete openly with other major leagues.

These Old Timers Can Be Fashionable

The hardy annuals suggested for sowing now are probably old enough to be fashionable again in next summer's garden, yet I'll wager two of them will be little known to gardeners.

Choose one of these annuals — larkspur, godetia or clarkia — to make a gay feature in your garden from early June until September.

You sow the seeds an inch apart now in flats of sandy compost, keep them in a coldframe until early April, and transfer the young plants to their flowering places at that time.

During heavy rainstorms and freezing periods the glass cover will be on as protection; otherwise treat these three annuals as the hardy plants they are.

Larkspur seed is listed in many catalogues under separate colors for growing in groups for better effects. The flower spikes are much finer when grown in the cooler weather and flowering in early summer before it gets too hot.

Two shades of blue, a lovely pink and pure white make fine cut flowers for home weddings. Side branches form when the central stem is cut before seeds are set.

How often have you seen a good planting of satiny godetia flowers or the rosettes of smaller clarkia blooms clustered on tall thin stems?

Thirty years ago — yes, so it's time to grow them again. Give them the same sowing treatment as larkspur. If you have a number of the small fibrous root pots, pack them close together in rows in the flat and sow three seeds of godetia or clarkia in each.

At planting-out time, cut off at soil level all but the strongest seedling in each pot. They do not like root disturbance, and this is avoided by using the pots which are easily stripped off at planting time. I prefer to do this, and not put them into the soil for they take a lot of moisture from the plant.

Clarkia colors have a delightful range into pale and rich pink, mauve, red and white. The stems, which bear the narrow leaves as well as the entire flowering spikes, go up to about 18 inches. This is a dainty plant, effective in groups of one color in places shielded from summer afternoon sun.

More solid in flower form, the godetia comes in the same range of colors as clarkia, and in two heights, one foot and two feet. Some doubles are listed in an English seed catalogue.

Also like the clarkia, the flowers will last longer when planted where summer afternoon sun does not reach.

The improved modern varieties of these old annuals will add a touch of originality to your garden.

You can grow them from seed, but you cannot buy the plants in spring because of the root upheaval in transplanting.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It has been said that experts often play out a hand as though the opposition's cards were an open book. By and large this statement would be true if the word "often" were deleted, and the words, "at times" substituted.

In today's deal, an expert South was able to learn the exact distribution of the opponents' cards at the completion of trick two. And this knowledge enabled her to fulfill an apparently hopeless game contract. The hand arose in the 1970 Masters Team-of-Four Championships. The South declarer was Dr. Lois Wiley, a blind life master. She was playing with Braille cards.

Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

The bidding:
East South West North

Opening lead: Queen of ♣.

South's three-no-trump overall was unquestionably over-aggressive, and even though North came up with quite a few cards, the contract was a very poor one.

West's opening heart lead was taken by dummy's king. East discarded a club. Having but six winners, Dr. Wiley, at trick two, tried to build-up her diamond suit by leading a low diamond towards her jack. East followed suit with the six spot. South played her jack, and West dropped the ten. Now came the pause for reflection.

With East having made a vulnerable three-club opening bid, West's failure to have led a club at trick one indicated that he was void of clubs. And East's failure to follow suit in hearts on the original heart lead showed that West had been dealt six hearts.

With West dropping the diamond ten (on South's jack) at trick two, it was certain that West had no more diamonds. Hence West's remaining six cards had to be six spades.

Thus East was dealt seven clubs, four diamonds and two spades — and declarer was able to utilize this knowledge to guarantee her contract.

To tricks three, four and five, declarer cashed her top spades. To trick six she led a low diamond, dummy's eight being taken by East's nine. East was now forced to lead either a club or a diamond. He chose to lead a club, South's queen winning.

Next came a diamond to dummy's king, which East won with the ace. Then he cashed the diamond queen — and was now forced to lead a club. South's jack taking the trick. So South made three spades, two hearts, one diamond and three clubs.

26 House Break-Ins In Saanich

Saanich has had 26 house break-ins since Dec. 1, far more than the usual increase during the Christmas season, police said Thursday.

Inspector John Post said items stolen from the homes include cash, liquor and stereo component equipment, all easily convertible to "ready cash" by the thieves.

Post said the thefts are likely committed by persons who need money for drugs.

He said the break-ins are being done in the early hours often and are not confined to one area.

He suggested people leaving their homes even for a few hours ask neighbors to keep an eye on their residence and leave a light on.

"A dark house is an invitation."

Neighbors who have suspicions aroused by persons in the area should contact police who will check.

Post added the municipality has had 27 Christmas tree light and spotlight thefts in the past week.

He said children are involved mostly and asked that parents be aware of their youngsters' whereabouts.

Council Disbands

WINNIPEG (CP) — Metro Winnipeg council was treated to eulogies from its 10 members Thursday as it held its last regular meeting before being disbanded.

TWO PLAYERS BOUGHT BY TROUBLED TOTEMS

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Totems, who set a Western Hockey League consecutive loss record with No. 15 Wednesday night, announced the purchase of two players Thursday in an attempt to bolster their tumbling fortune.

The two, who will be on hand for tonight's game here with Salt Lake, are Don Westbrooke, a right winger, and defenceman Dave Dufin.

Westbrooke, 28, scored 22 goals and had 19 assists last year with Springfield. He played three years in the International League, scoring 50, 59 and 58 goals.

Dufin, 23, is sixfoot-four and weighs 215 pounds. He played three games for the Totems earlier this year, scoring one goal and assisting on another. He was a rookie with Rochester last year.

'We Want Them to Stay Down When They're Shot'

CROP DAMAGE PAYMENT

CALGARY (CP) — City police requested more powerful revolvers Thursday because, a sergeant said, "we want someone to stay down when we shoot him."

The police commission gave its approval to the purchase of the necessary weapons over a three-year period instead of over 10 years as planned earlier.

The commission was told that the request stemmed from the shooting of Constable John Ogilvy Saturday night following the fatal shooting of a 19-year-old drugstore clerk.

The constable was in satisfactory condition after being shot in the groin.

"It was what might have happened rather than what did happen," said Sgt. Phil Crosby-Jones. "The man was hit in the chest by a bullet from a Webley Scott and it didn't stop him. He was thrashing around trying to reach his rifle when he was shot in the leg."

He told the commission a more powerful revolver using longer bullets is needed.

"We're not out to blow holes the size of houses in people," the sergeant added, "but we want someone to stay down when we shoot him."

REGINA (CP) — More than 5,000 cheques worth close to $500,000, are being processed and mailed to farmers whose rapeseed crops were damaged by an invasion of Bertha armyworms last summer.

A. J. Webster, director of the department of agriculture's production and marketing branch, said most of the claims received involved between 50 and 150 acres of rapeseed and steps are being taken to ensure similar problems are not repeated in the future.

The government promised following the infestation that it would pay farmers a third of the cost of the chemical laminate used to fight the worms.

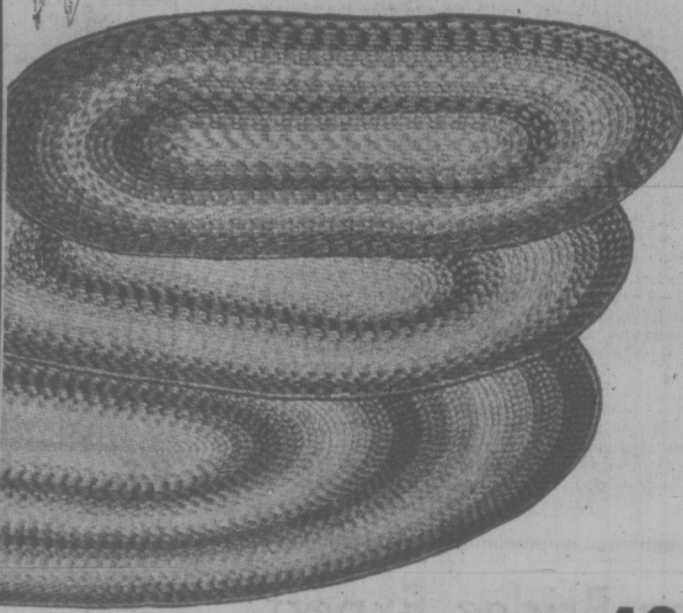

Webster said the government will finance a more intensive program next year to count moths and give advance warning to farmers if another outbreak threatens.

Christmas — The Easy Way

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

The first Christmas was a comparatively simple affair. Those three kings expected no gifts in return.

Times have changed. What was once a simple religious feast has become a sentimental binge guaranteed to leave nearly everyone exhausted, overfed, and in most cases, broke.

In most families, it's women who take on the work and worry behind today's "traditional Christmas."

As well as tackling their usual chores, they must cope with extra shopping, gift-wrapping, special baking and entertainment for jaded visitors.

Reckless Hostess

Some brainwashed hostesses are reckless enough to invite all the relatives for Christmas dinner. The result can be a family fight that will last the whole year through.

Victoria Times
THIRD SECTION
WENDY DEY - EDITOR

Anyone determined to arrange the traditional gathering under her own roof this year can at least take steps to stay in fighting shape.

More and more services are available to lighten the Christmas workload. All they take is money.

Christmas shopping tops many people's "unpleasant chores" list. Larger department stores now offer "personal shoppers" who will select gifts, have them wrapped, and look after delivery.

The service itself costs nothing extra — if customers can resist the more expensive gift wrappings. Store employees have a head start over the average housewife wandering the aisles in search of a nice travel rug for Uncle Bruce. They know, for example, where everything is located and what items are in stock.

All the housewife has to do is set a financial limit and list the age and sex of everyone on the receiving end.

Personal shoppers are in a better position than, say, most maiden aunts picking a gift for an eight-year-old boy.

They know from experience. They have the Spirit of Christmas at their elbow to remind them of the items that came back for exchange in former years.

Mrs. Eileen Hooper, supervisor of personal shoppers at a local department store, says that "some customers just can't be bothered with Christmas; but most of them are elderly people or mothers with young children."

Liquor No-No

Mrs. Hooper will buy anything on a customer's list except liquor. If the store doesn't stock an item she will have it sent from a larger branch, or do some shopping of her own.

One exotic item requested by a customer in San Francisco had to be ordered at Fort Churchill on Hudson Bay.

Another Californian customer orders the most expensive English china for his friends every Christmas. "His bill reaches $700 every year," Mrs. Hooper said.

One customer places an annual order of hams and turkeys for his relatives.

Sweet Substitute

"He always asks me to include a bottle of wine in each shipment," Mrs. Hooper said. "And I send him back a letter of explanation every year after adding chocolates instead."

Once your gifts are taken care of, there's still the problem of Christmas dinner. When Dickens wrote in praise of the Christmas feast, he must have assumed that everyone who could afford such a meal could also afford a cook.

Many women dread the annual kitchen ordeal and would rather be enjoying the fun with everyone else. They can get out of the kitchen and into the action by reserving a table for Christmas dinner at a restaurant.

Or, of course, you could just take off by boat or plane

This disposes of the work — and the leftovers that haunt the refrigerator until New Year's Eve.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Wilson of Victoria recommend this approach. They have relaxed over Christmas dinner at the Empress Hotel for the past six years.

Wilson says that eating out at Christmas "should be done by anyone who wants to give his wife a chance to enjoy herself."

"I plan to eat my money's worth again this year," he added.

Many Victorians join a Christmas rush out of town.

Local travel agents report that December ranks with early summer as one of their busiest times.

"We have our share of cranky old men who think Christmas is humbug and want to get away from it," one agent said, but another suggested many travellers may want to flee memories of happier years.

Mexico and Hawaii are favorite destinations.

Sailing Away

For 500 British Columbians, this Christmas and New Year will merge into a long holiday at sea. They'll be aboard the liner Oriana when it sails from Vancouver Dec. 23 for a month-long cruise of the Caribbean.

Stay-at-homes can dine as though they were at the captain's table — if they find the right caterer.

Catering takes the pain out of parties. Best of all, it takes away the after-party mess, too.

It's one of the best ways of saving the family's dishes and the family cook's self-respect. Caterers may seem expensive, but they're still a lot cheaper than a nervous breakdown.

Bank Begins 'Teach Yourself Spending' Course

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada this week unveiled a consumer education program, aimed mainly at high school students, that explains everything about money from cash to credit card.

The bank, which has found one loan in three going to consolidation of personal debts, has developed a teaching aid kit and four films to promote knowledge of money management.

David Grier, the bank's senior public relations man, said in an interview that "a side-effect" of the program could be increased business for the bank, through exposure to youth. But the overriding object was consumer education.

President W. Earle McLaughlin emphasized this as well in a speech to about 40 high-level public servants, social welfare agency officers, and officers of area boards of education.

"Like it or not — and we don't — we bankers must face the reality that banks are among the last places that many, many people — particularly today's young people — go for help and guidance in money matters."

Mr. Grier said pilot programs with the Protestant School Board of Montreal and the Montreal Catholic School Commission are under way.

A course of money management, developed by bank officials, teachers and students, was now being given at the Grade 10 and 11 levels at a couple of Protestant schools. By the fall of 1973, a course should be developed that could be offered at any high school in Canada.

In the Catholic system, in-service training was being given teachers to provide them with more knowledge about cash, credit cards and budgets.

Mr. McLaughlin, acknowledging that some people may still agree with Stephen Leacock's phrase, "banks rattle me," made it clear the bank is doing its best not to do so.

HER FUTURE INSURED

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Isabelle Kirchner began work as a clerk in a Brooklyn branch of Prudential 30 years ago and, when the right man came along, she quit her job to get married.

A familiar story — except that marriage was more a beginning than an end to Mrs. Kirchner's business career. She has now become the first woman officer of the 97-year-old insurance firm.

The directors of Prudential, a company with assets of $30 billion, elected Mrs. Kirchner to the post of vice president and secretary.

A brunette who keeps her age to herself — "because I'm female in that respect," Mrs.

Kirchner remains active as a housewife — at least according to her son John, 12, who said: "All I ever see her do is clean." She also has helped raise two children by her husband's previous marriage, Bill, 19, and Joan, 18, both of whom attend Indiana University.

Born in Brooklyn, Mrs. Kirchner said her first job with Prudential in 1941 involved "very basic secretarial work as a clerk in the district office." But while working there she attended St. John's University at night to obtain bachelor's and law degrees.

This, she explained, was done on the advice of a priest. "He told me I was sacrificing the present for the future. And now, I know he was right."

'Something I Picked Up For Xmas'

By HELEN MELNYK
Times Staff

Store owners are all for the yuletide custom of giving... As long as the gifts aren't on them.

This reporter went out to test the defences of a local department store and found herself a shaken but wiser woman.

Half an hour of shoplifting netted the following booty: a skirt, a blouse, a sweater, a pair of gloves, one scarf and an Eskimo carving. I had to stop because my coat and pockets were so stuffed that I was beginning to look more laden than the Santa Claus in the store's window.

Gleeful at having gotten so far undetected, I decided to sneak the things back. This done, I smugly started to hunt around for the head security officer to report how I had outfoxed his staff.

That's when a woman confronted me and sternly but politely inquired whether I had any goods on my person that I hadn't paid for. Despite my "no," she suggested I better come along to the security office.

Two Waiting

As the office was already occupied by two suspected male stuffpockets, I had to wait outside. Then the two men, both in their mid-twenties, were led away handcuffed by a police officer and it was my turn in the hot seat.

My lady escort and a co-worker started to ask some awkward questions. Telling them the truth — that I'd stolen just to see what it was like — was like crying wolf. They'd heard that line too many times before.

Just when I was beginning to wonder whether legal aid was part of my employment contract, the store's head security officer verified first, that I was a reporter, and second that the whole affair was an assignment.

Four major local department stores increase their security surveillance each Christmas season. Three of the stores report that shoplifting doubles in the months of Nov. and Dec. The store mentioned above was the only one that felt no increase.

The security staff of six, hand-picked and trained, had cracked down on local fleet fingers. "We have a reputation around town," said the head security officer.

Detected Early

He said that I had been detected from the first swipe and observed by half the staff while making my rounds. One woman, to avoid recognition, had changed her coat three times while tailing me.

The staff is cautious in apprehending anyone, because it is necessary to distinguish between the "careless" shopper who shoves something in his pocket with the intention of paying for it later, and one who sets out to steal.

Stores' officials said that the type of articles pilfered — cosmetics, sweaters and sporting goods — indicates that they are destined to be put under the Christmas tree.

The security officer at one store said that last week a 19-year-old girl was picked up with a gift list of all the items she was going to steal and from where. She was on welfare and had no money for family presents.

Though the security officer sympathized with her intentions, he said there still was no excuse for her action.

"If she had explained to her parents that she had no money, they would have understood," he said.

Some of the have-nots feel little guilt about helping themselves to the goodies displayed on store counters, he said. "They figure that we're a big corporation and can afford it."

"Younger kids are sometimes sent off to their Christmas shopping with three dollar bills from their parents. That doesn't go far, so they steal knick-knacks when the money runs out."

Some kids not only exhibit clumsiness in their shoplifting methods but poor taste in what they choose to hock, he said. He quoted one girl who was picked up with 10 packs of a "horrible stinking" brand of incense.

Elderly people have also been caught stealing little things, the guard said. Their limited incomes cannot always be stretched to accommodate the expense of Christmas gifts.

One elderly woman had set her mind on a pair of gloves for her husband's present. She didn't realize that they cost $11.98 until she was to the end of a long line-up before the cashier. The price was too steep, so she stuffed the gloves into her purse on impulse.

Wasted Effort

The woman might have spared herself the trouble.

"The gloves didn't even match," the security guard said. "They were of two different colours and sizes."

"People are more tempted to steal this time of year, he said. "Christmas suddenly comes upon them; they have so many gifts to buy and not enough money to pay for it all.

"Many don't intend to steal when they come in the store, but the opportunity to do so presents itself and they take advantage of it," he said. A customer may opt to skip off without paying rather than standing at the end of long line-ups at the cashier desks.

Women shoppers sometimes take without paying as an "economy measure," he said. "By lifting a pair of pantyhose, a woman may have saved herself $3. That can mean a bigger roast on the supper table that evening."

"There is no such thing as a Christmas shoplifter," said a security guard in another department store. "A thief is a thief. A person doesn't suddenly become dishonest one week every year. He just steals more around Christmas time."

Surgery Improved

EUREKA, Calif. (UPI) — A urologist in this small northern California city has developed a technique that gives men who have vasectomies another chance to father a child.

Dr. Stanwood S. Schmidt says that about 25 per cent of the men he has performed vasectomies on and later want to regain fertility, have conceived children. Fifty to 75 per cent have been able to send sperm through their unblocked ducts.

Schmidt says he has been perfecting his new operation method for more than 15 years in Eureka, a community of about 28,000.

Dr. Donald R. Smith, chairman of the department of urology at the University of California medical center in San Francisco, said Dr. Schmidt's new technique is extremely effective.

Schmidt's operation severs the sperm duct but instead of removing a segment and tying off the ends he cauterizes the duct's lining with an electric needle.

Forecast for SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1971
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on career, ambition, standing in community. Promotion, recognition appears due. Check details. Key is to be observant. Set sights; go in straight line, not circles. You will comprehend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect now coincides with better chance to get views across. Write, communicate. Gain indicated through written word — and travel. Broaden horizons. Avoid the petty, including gossip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Frank money discussion with male partner is in order. Act accordingly. Improve conditions at home. Do so by ensuring safety measures, purchase of luxury item. Make conciliatory gesture.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Perceive what is obscured. Let others reveal their plans. Be discreet. Work quietly behind scenes. Don't chide — or threaten. Male partner is trying to convey message. You learn by listening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Moderate actions. Sharpen timing. Get basic chores completed. Older individual offers aid through experience. Accept. Capricorn is likely to be involved. Keep medical, dental appointments. No excuses!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Release from restrictions indicated. You get chance to pursue creative endeavors. Dividends from past investments come due. You complete cycle. Tie loose ends. Modernize concepts. Gain is shown.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may not like everything you do now, but what you do is apt to be necessary — and beneficial. Realize this; don't brood about what might have been. Outline future goals. Take firm, direct steps.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Hunch plays dominant role. Follow it. Learn by teaching, which means share knowledge. Ideas now can be developed. Throw off tendency to live in past. Study Libra message. Short journey is on agenda.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Expand activities. Opportunities also will multiply. Emphasis is on area of finances, personal possessions. Check accounts. More may be going out than is coming in. Find out why.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lunar cycle high; personal magnetism soars. Dress in manner which stresses best features. Don't be afraid of a little ego. Take new steps in new directions. Highlight independence, originality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep promise made to one who may be temporarily handicapped. Practice golden rule. The more you give now — the more you eventually receive. Co-operate in project that aids hospital, other institution.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on friends, special desires. Plan with family member. Co-operation, support are available. But you must ask — which means raise pride is to be tossed aside. Gift purchase, now could work wonders!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a humanitarian, willing to aid those who seek help. You are attracted to law, medicine and the arts. You have been "on the move." Now enter cycle which is more settled. You can work from a more solid base. And you can make some significant gains.

Is Divorcee Doctor Just a Professional?

DEAR ABBY: I am strongly attracted to my doctor. He is divorced and I am a widow. I have a hunch he feels something for me. He is very kind and gentle. He is also very ethical. He hasn't expressed any special interest in me, but he frequently brushed lint, or what have you off my clothes? Could this mean anything?

He seems concerned about my welfare in a professional way. He touches me a lot. Friendly gestures. On the arm, shoulder and hands. He listens to me attentively, however trivial my conversation.

Am I just lonely, or do you think this could develop into something more than just a doctor-patient relationship? And if so, how?

DEAR PATIENT: Since he is, as you say, "very ethical," you will have to find out outside his office. The next time you need an escort, invite him to do the honors. If your hunch is right, and he "feels something for you," the next move will be his. If your hunch is wrong, you haven't lost anything, and you've saved a lot of time.

DEAR ABBY: Is it normal for a boy who is in the 8th grade to kiss his mother good-bye every morning before he goes to school, and then wave a couple of times as he goes down the street?

I have two sons, and they stopped kissing me good-bye in about the 2nd grade. Sign me... Wondering.

DEAR WONDERING: The boy's behavior in this one instance could suggest that he has a rather strong attachment to his mother. But that doesn't necessarily mean there is anything abnormal about it.

Jet-Age Balloon

LONDON (WNS) — Melissa Lackertsen, only 5, let her toy balloon go up in the big charity balloon race near Heathrow Airport but never expected to win a prize. But the balloon, caught on a jet plane taking off from the airfield, didn't come down until the plane did — at Speke Airport in Liverpool, 200 miles away. "It's not only the farthest, but also the fastest, toy balloon in history," noted the chief judge and awarded Melissa a special $12 prize.

Old Folk's Centre Has Young Image

The municipality of Oak Bay has a reputation for doing things in a different way—even when it comes to decking out its new senior citizens' centre.

Where else but in the "bedroom municipality" of Greater Victoria would you find a women's bathroom gussied up with raspberry-colored counter tops, pink fixtures and lilac walls?

Needless to say there's a woman behind these and other colorful innovations in the centre, due to be officially opened at 3 p.m. Saturday.

The woman in question is Ald. Shirley Dowell. Given a free hand with ordering drapes, colors, furnishings and fixtures for both the new library and centre, she's managed to give both an air of warmth and individuality seldom seen in such public institutions.

Preview Tour

This week, Mrs. C. J. Bunbury, who is to open the centre, had a preview tour and put the seal of approval on the alderman's choice of decors—even down to the paddy green, chartreuse and pumpkin wall sections.

Mrs. Bunbury should be an authority on what senior citizens' look for in a centre.

She'll be celebrating her 100th birthday on Christmas Eve.

Spry as her middle-aged counterparts, she inspected every nook and cranny—down to the giant-sized freezer in the ultra-modern kitchen.

She also approved Oak Bay's decision not to make the centre a "ghetto" for the elderly.

Open to Retired

Run by Maybelle Murphy and Rosemary Matthews of the municipality's recreation department, the centre will be open to residents who are retired, whether they're 50 or 90.

Mrs. Murphy explains: "In all our programs we find the elderly want to take part in activities with other-age groups. Take table tennis, for example. One of our stars, George is 85."

Centenarian Mrs. Bunbury intends to be an active participant when the centre opens, particularly at bridge sessions. When asked if she plays for money, she's quick to say that's the only real way to make it interesting.

"I pay my losses," she says, "and donate my winnings to charity." She said with a quick smile.

Ald. Shirley Dowell and Mrs. Bunbury are well satisfied

U.K. Wine—A Sour Grapes Case?

LONDON (UPI) — Mais naturellement, said the gentlemen of Brussels, English sausages to garnish the European's continental breakfast, cheddar cheese after his dinner. Whisky from Scotland most anytime.

But English wine? In Beaujolais France or Mosel Germany? C'est impossible!

It wasn't exactly a decision capable of stemming the flood tide sweeping Britain toward membership in an expanded European Common Market. But the vehemence with which it was framed was as audible in London as the pop or a cork.

"The Common Market has its agreed definitions of what wine is and what it is not," a spokesman for the Six said with finality. "And the British efforts generally just do not qualify."

"The Common Market would rather these products be called beverages or whatever," he said.

Many Britons responded with predictable anger. After all, wine-making—or rather, perhaps, the brewing of fruit-flavored alcoholic beverages—is one of Britain's oldest family circle traditions. In many homes, fermentation of elderberry, rhubarb or dandelion wine goes on 12 months a year in preparation for Christmas, New Year's and other feasts.

The firm of Merrydown in Horman, deep in rolling Sussex hill country south of London, specializes in a wide range of berry-flavored table wines. Other companies advertise "port-type" reds and "Rhine-flavored" whites.

Most of them, said the Common Market spokesman, are based on imported grape juice. Real wine is made only from freshly-gathered grapes—at least according to Common Market definition.

Insist on Ban

"Britain agreed during entry negotiations that it would bar British wine producers, what few there are, from calling their produce wine," he said. "We must insist on this."

British winemakers hit the ceiling. "Damn cheek!" said Tom Heyvitt, a director of the firm which markets Britain's large line of Barchester fruit wines.

"They're just trying to protect their own interests."

Jack Ward, director of Merrydown, said his firm has its own vineyards for producing "light table wines similar to the German. There can be no real argument; that these aren't real wines. And that goes for our fruit wines as well."

For Stanley Sleeman, director of another firm which sells 30 flavors of dessert wines, the Brussels edict was "outside interference in a British tradition. Wine has been made here for centuries. A royal warrant was granted in one case back in 1632."

Ministry of agriculture officials are to discuss the matter further with the gentlemen of Brussels next month.

Some Teddies Said a Danger

OTTAWA (CP) — A substantial number of plush toys of the teddy-bear type on sale for Christmas have been found to be below safety standards, says the consumer affairs department.

A printed statement included a warning that manufacturers and importers must comply with the Hazardous Products Act. None of the toys or suppliers were identified and there was no indication whether there would be prosecutions.

The statement said the main lapse found in random checks by the department was that eyes—especially those attached to the toys with dagger-like fastenings—were insecure.

The statement also said that plastic wrappings on some toys fail to include a warning against letting children have the wrapping, other toys failed to pass flammability tests and still others had internal wiring with dangerous, sharp points.

Speed Speaks Out

GLASGOW (CP) — Some may think the family car is noisy enough as it is.

But authorities at the University of Glasgow say they hope to persuade automobile manufacturers to add yet another sound to their products.

One of the university's researchers has invented a talking speedometer.

Not only will the device tell you the speed, say the authorities here, it can also shout the oil pressure, motor temperature and other critical indicators.

In a statement issued Monday night, the university said the new device is the work of a British researcher in the natural philosophy department, John Travers Lloyd. As a speedometer, the model gives verbal, accurate expression to readings from zero to 100 miles an hour, the statement said.

The university said the new device would be helpful to those who find they are distracted while driving by having to look at the speedometer or other signals on the dashboard.

FASHION IN FLIGHT

MONTREAL (CP) — Off with the uniforms, on with a winsome wardrobe is the word for Air Canada hostesses, says 23-year-old Phyllis Amoroso, the airline's first fashion co-ordinator for in-flight services.

Starting next spring, stewardesses will take to the air in a variety of ensembles designed to meet individual lifestyles and incorporating "something suitable for every age-group and figure."

Emphasis will be on excellence in materials, cut and design as well as versatility in mix-and-match outfits highlighted with scarves, jewelry and a personal approach in make-up.

Styles will be modified continuously as different crews experiment with various outfits for comfort fashion flair.

"We are not little girls," says Phyllis, whose background in the airline business includes six years as a stewardess and in-flight supervisor.

Thermometer—Baby Hazard?

MONTREAL (CP) — A group of Montreal radiologists and surgeons says the use of rectal thermometers on newborn babies should be banned to prevent accidental perforation of the rectal passage and the membrane lining the abdominal and pelvic cavities.

The doctors say they reached that conclusion after reviewing the cases of nine babies, five of whom died from complications resulting from rectal perforation.

In an article in the December issue of the Journal of the Canadian Association of Radiologists, the doctors explain that although spontaneous perforations of the digestive tract occur, use of a rectal thermometer set up a needless chance of a mechanical accident.

A thermistor, or skin thermometer, is recommended as a serviceable, safe substitute.

The anal canal and rectum in the newborn infant is so small that any rigid object inserted more than three centimeters in any imprecise way can lead to ulcerations and even perforation, says the article.

Toys for Tots Think of Others

MONTREAL (CP) — Three youngsters from suburban St. Laurent who "thought of the children who don't have anything" at Christmas, have formed a group to collect toys and provide entertainment for needy children.

Toys for Tots began by canvassing "friends and little children who wanted to give toys."

Steve MacLeod, Sydney Dallas and Mauri Haukkaavaara, all 12, have organized a series of vaudeville skits, contests and games and a visit from Santa Claus for some 250 members of an east-end boys' and girls' club.

Toys for Tots was born during Hallowe'en trick-or-treat-ing "because we saw some of the people weren't as dressed up as the others and didn't have very many things."

The three enlisted the help of eight friends and vaudeville entertainer Rosemary Tanner. They began telephoning companies to ask for donations of toys but had little success.

The businessmen "didn't take the kids seriously," Mrs. Tanner said. "They didn't take the time to listen to what they had to say."

She stepped in, hoping that an adult would rate a hearing, and within four days, two firms had donated 150 children's books and 50 small plastic toys.

The show, to be presented Dec. 20, is a 90-minute production called Children's World — A Ton of Fun. Its opening number is a song the youngsters wrote themselves, asking people to "show... children you really care."

PATIENT HELPS SCIENCE

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Don Helling has undergone a painful surgery twice in recent months with no hope for helping himself.

Helling, a 48-year-old former bank president, has given eight sections of muscle, four from each forearm, with each muscle sample about the size of a wooden matchstick.

Because he has undergone surgery with no anesthesia in two occasions this year, medical science may learn more about an effective treatment for a fatal muscular malady.

The disease, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, is popularly known as "Lou Gehrig disease" because it killed the great baseball player in 1941.

But even if Helling's tissue samples prove an effective tool to find out what causes the disease, he will never benefit. Helling has had the illness for almost three years, and it's unusual to live beyond 18 months with it.

Dr. W. R. Kennedy, associate professor of neurology at the University of Minnesota Health Sciences Centre, is supervising the research.

"Don is a truly heroic person," said Kennedy. "He has undergone two operations on his arm, without general anesthesia — the only way we can take out useful muscle — and endured the pain without a penny of pay."

Who thinks about emergencies at Christmas?

At a happy time like Christmas none of us like to think about an emergency but all of us should. Telephone traffic is extremely heavy at Christmas time, especially Christmas Day. B.C. Tel will have a full staff on the job, but... due to the heavy holiday load you could find it difficult to reach an operator immediately. To protect your home and family keep a list of emergency numbers handy by your telephone.

Fire — Doctor — Police — Ambulance — etc. Then should something happen you wouldn't need an operator to help you.

You could dial direct.

To help you be ready for those emergencies, B.C. Tel is mailing cards to each subscriber. Put your emergency numbers on it and keep it beside your telephone.

2 Probe Penal Education

A grant of $35,000 from the Donner Canadian Foundation will enable two University of Victoria researchers to carry out a research project on the effectiveness of penal educational programs in Canada.

Professor J. D. Ayers of UVic's education faculty and Antony Parlett of the Canadian Penitentiary Services, now completing his Ph.D. in educational psychology at UVic, will conduct the study in several B.C. penal institutions.

Other supporters of the two-year $75,000 project will be the Canadian Penitentiary Services, the National Parole Board and UVic.

The aim of the research project is to determine what effects, if any, correctional education has on an inmate once he has left a penal institution.

Five months of individualized instruction designed to increase the inmates' level of education will be given.

Inmates who are eligible for parole in September, October and November of 1972 will take part. After they are released, they will be interviewed and assessed to determine the effects of the education.

Inmates who do not participate in the program will also be tested and the results of the two groups correlated.

The research program is based on a 1970 pilot study done at William Head prison. It showed that individualized instruction led to desirable personality changes in inmates who were tested.

It was also found that the rate of return to prison was much lower for the inmates affected than for the prisoners taking regular instruction.

RAPID LEARNING

The research will be carried out in three types of federal institutions: maximum, medium and minimum security.

The experimental education program differs from traditional prison education in that it uses programmed material allowing more rapid and intensive coverage of the course, allows students more choice in courses and the amount of work to be done, allows prisoners to take material to their cells, and involves group sessions on current events, plays and novels.

Ayers has been at UVic since 1968, before which he taught at the University of Alberta and Carleton University.

Parlett is with the regional headquarters of the Canadian Penitentiary Services. He was supervisor of education at William Head from 1965 to 1971.

Kilian Singers Expand

The Kilian Singers have expanded to include the former Metchosis Choral Group.

The 35-member choir, which will perform under the name Kilian Singers, is directed by Dr. Heinz Kilian, and accompanied by Norma Willing.

The choir will hold its annual house-to-house Christmas carol singing for people who are sick and shut in, on Dec. 21. On Dec. 26, the choir will take part in a Christmas service at St. Mary the Virgin Anglican Church, Metchosis Road.

Sing-Along At Mayfair

The Victoria City Police Youth Band will hold a Christmas concert and sing-along Dec. 21 starting at 7 p.m. at the Mayfair Mall.

The 45-member band is led by Charles Moore and managed by Constable Gerry Cox.

Prowlers Scared Off

Prowlers made a hasty exit from an Uplands home when the owner returned home Thursday evening.

Harold Husband told Oak Bay police he saw shadows through a window of his 3150 Rutland home and went next door to phone police.

Police said entry to and exit from the home was through a forced sliding door about 8:45 p.m. Nothing was taken.

Park Name Row Continues

The name of the national west coast park — Pacific Rim — is still a hot issue with the B.C. Naturalists Federation and west coast Indians who want it changed to Maquinna, the name of a great Indian chief.

Elton Anderson, vice-president of the federation, Thursday accused Ottawa of drumming up the name without consulting the province or people who know the history of the region.

Indians and many non-Indians are opposed to the name because it smacks of commercialization — trade with Japan — and has no connection with the history of the region.

Anderson took issue with John Nicol, director of the National Parks and Historic Branch, who in a letter wrote that the park's name was selected "after considerable thought and consultation with persons with knowledge of the human and natural history of the area."

"What I would like to know, who are these people?" said

Anderson. "I can find no one in the government or out of it on this coast who was consulted in any way on the naming of the park."

He believes the name was imposed by Ottawa.

"If so, it is nothing less than an insult," he said. "It was illogical to name the park without consulting the people supplying the land."

Anderson said he will again ask Nicol to replace the name with an appropriate one — Maquinna.

B.C. Control Urged

The provincial government has been urged to take a strong stand in preserving its jurisdiction in all matters relating to pollution control and reclamation.

The Mining Association of B.C., in a brief to cabinet this week, said the provincial jurisdiction should be accepted without reservation in all matters to come before the public inquiry that will be held by the government in 1972 into pollution control.

"Obviously, the mining industrial or any other industry should not be required to spend large amounts of effort and money to comply with provincial standards or requirements if such expenditures could be neglected by contradictory or conflicting federal requirements," the brief said.

"It is our hope that the government of British Columbia will assert its proper jurisdiction in order that industry does not suffer from the consequences of any conflicts."

Nanaimo Hits Top

Nanaimo high school out-whizzed Oak Bay high Thursday night to take the Island regional championship of CBC's Reach for the Top television quiz show.

Sally Lionel, Sandy Gilmore, Fred Salevsky and Alan Martin amassed 400 points to the 320 of Ken McCarter, John Swainson, Greg Rodney and Scott Lewis.

Nanaimo received a standing ovation from the audience for beating Oak Bay, which won the national championship in 1968, and the Island for the past four years.

Nanaimo now proceeds to the provincial final. The national finals will take place in Toronto in 1972.

Thursday night's contest will be shown on Channel 2 Jan. 15 at 7:30 p.m.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 26-year-old Sooke man convicted earlier of slaying two RCMP officers with a knife Oct. 12 was sentenced to six months in jail Thursday by Judge William Ostler.

Barry S. Billan pleaded guilty Dec. 8 to a charge of assault with intent to wound involving both Constable R. S. Cooper and Constable R. A. Nichol of the Sooke detachment.

The accused said Thursday he intended to stop using drugs, get a job and go to university. He said he hoped to work in medical research.

Prosecutor John Macintyre called the incident Oct. 12 a "serious, unprovoked attack" on the officers.

Court was told earlier that Cooper and Nichol with the detachment corporal went to speak to the accused about 8:45 a.m. at his parents' home in Sooke.

They were investigating reports of someone being unlawfully in homes in the area.

The policeman talked to Billan who became "excitable, disturbed," and attacked Nichol.

The other two officers came to the assistance of the first and during the struggle Nichol received a gash in the throat and Cooper a deep cut over one eye.

A paring knife with a four-inch blade was found nearby after the accused was subdued.

Court was told that Billan was taken to the detachment office, searched, and two more knives were found in his possession.

In imposing sentence Thursday, Ostler said he was taking into the account the time Billan had spent incarcerated since the incident.

Billan said he spent over 60 days in jail.

He spent some time under psychiatric care while in custody.

Ostler told Laurie D. Dujardin, of 1010 Linden, he didn't have much sympathy for someone who cold-bloodedly made out a Christmas shopping list then went out and shoplifted the gifts.

He gave the 26-year-old a suspended sentence with 18 months probation for two counts of shoplifting. She pleaded guilty earlier.

A security officer testified that the woman had a shopping list with some items marked off when she was apprehended Dec. 6 in The Bay.

The accused, court was told, stole sunglasses, a wallet, tweezers, five belts and several pairs of pantyhose, the items belonging to The Bay and Eatons.

Joseph Gyroffy, 27, of 743 Vancouver, was given a suspended sentence with 18 months probation for three counts of false pretences involving the credit card of a dead woman.

Gyroffy earlier pleaded guilty to making purchases totalling $543 at The Bay Dec. 7 using the credit card.

He told police he got the card from an associate at the Churchill Hotel. The woman died about a month before the offences occurred.

David A. Lannigan, 45, of 342 Island Highway, was fined $300 for driving while suspended. He pleaded guilty to driving on Wharf about 2:45 p.m. Wednesday when his licence was suspended Nov. 9.

Bernard Cross, 49, of 2660 Dowler Place, was fined $350 by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for impaired driving and prohibited from driving for four months except when working.

Timothy Michael Turner, 22, of 1827 Chestnut, was fined $250 for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent. He was banned from driving for two months except when working.

Stephen Nagy, 48, of 1026 Johnson, was fined $250 for driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent. He was banned from driving for two months except when working.

Anton Brozuk, 65, of 890 Sayward, was fined $250 by Ostler when he pleaded guilty to stealing three packages of frozen bait from the Canada Safeway store, 2555 Douglas, Nov. 22.

The bait was valued at $2.07.

SOVIETS MAY LEASE VESSEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Russian scientists may get Canada's revolutionary research submarine under lease, a federal fisheries department spokesman said Thursday.

The three-man submarine developed in North Vancouver by International Hydrodynamics Co. Ltd. originally was intended for sale to Russia and an export licence had been approved.

But the defence department cancelled the $2.4 million deal Dec. 1 by withdrawing the licence on security grounds. The department offered to purchase the underwater vehicle for the same price Russia had offered.

The fisheries spokesman said Thursday his department now is considering leasing the submarine to Russia for scientific research — "or to any other country that would want it for the same purpose."

He said the only stipulation would be that while foreign scientists could direct its use, the submarine would have to be operated by Canadians.

INDIAN TROOPS are mobbed by joyous Bangla Desh partisans after troops entered Dacca, East

14-Day War Ends, New Nation Born

The war between India and Pakistan ended today, with the new nation of Bangla Desh established in East Pakistan. In 14 days of fighting more than 2,000 Indian soldiers had died, at least that many Pakistanis and uncounted civilians.

Money To Aid Exports

OTTAWA (CP) — The trade department announced Thursday new measures to help businesses increase exports and to protect industry from "foreign import surtaxes or other actions of a like effect."

To help businesses move into world markets, the government will pay up to $50,000 for each company to help them undertake market surveys and adapt their marketing measures to meet the demands of foreign markets.

The grants, which are expected to total $1.5 million in the 1972-1973 fiscal year beginning April 1 and $250,000 over the three months before then, are for markets outside Canada and the U.S.

INCREASE IN LIMIT

The other measure is an increase in the limit on loans available to businesses under the general adjustment assistance program originally designed to help businesses adapt to worldwide tariff reductions under the Kennedy Round agreement.

The ceiling for loans insured by the federal government is being raised to $250 million from $100 million, while the ceiling for direct government loans goes to $20 million from $14 million.

Allotment of increased amounts to the loan program was made public in November when the government sought authorization from Parliament for the increase in its supplementary estimates for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

LT-Gen. K. P. Candeth, commander in chief on India's western command, said today fighting on the western front came to an end two hours before the start of a 9:30 a.m. EST ceasefire.

The way had been cleared when President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan bowed to an ultimatum from Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and agreed to her call for a ceasefire on the western front. East Pakistan surrendered unconditionally Thursday.

Fighting continued up almost to the start of the ceasefire with heavy fighting on several areas of the 2,000-mile long western front with each side apparently hoping to gain as much territory as possible before the war ended.

Official sources in New Delhi said India suffered more than 10,000 casualties in the war on both fronts — 2,307 killed, 6,163 wounded, and 2,163 missing. Of these, 1,021 were killed in the east and 1,286 in the West.

THINK PAK TOLL HIGHER

The Indian defence ministry says Pakistan's losses are much higher than India's — and few doubt this.

The future of Yahya Khan's military government is in doubt. He had moved recently to transfer control to civilians, and this trend will gain impetus under such men as Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. As deputy prime minister and foreign minister, he says Pakistan should have democratic government soon.

In a speech to Parliament in New Delhi, Mrs. Gandhi said India wants to build its relations with Pakistan on a "basis of friendship."

"This is what precipitated us to call the western ceasefire," she said.

Pakistan President Yahya in a broadcast Thursday before India declared the ceasefire, vowed to fight on "until occupied areas are taken back." He said the loss of East Pakistan was only a temporary setback.

Mrs. Gandhi warned her people that "regardless of what happens on the western front, let us not become complacent."

TO TAKE OVER DUTIES

A government spokesman in New Delhi said the Bangla Desh civil administration, led by four senior civil servants, was expected to take over general administrative responsibilities today in Dacca, but that Gen. Aurora would exercise over-all supervision.

Mrs. Gandhi repeated pledges of no reprisals against the Pakistani soldiers from West Pakistan or the East Pakistanis who collaborated with them. She expressed the hope that Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, the East Pakistani political leader held prisoner by Yahya Khan, "will take his rightful place and lead the Bangla Desh people to peace, progress and prosperity."

In other developments: ● In Calcutta the commander of India's eastern front, LT-Gen. Jagjit Singh Aurora, said defeated Pakistani soldiers are being permitted to keep their weapons.

ROBBERS GUN DOWN TRAFFIC POLICEMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — A veteran motorcycle policeman, who was putting a routine parking ticket on a car, was shot and killed Thursday night by three fleeing gunmen who robbed a department store and then dropped a sack containing $50,000.

Constable Jean-Guy Sabourin, 35, was caught in a burst of machine-gun fire by the trio as they ran from the Robert Simpson Co. department store at St. Catherine and Metcalfe streets.

He died later in hospital from two bullet wounds near his heart, the seventh Montreal policeman to be wounded by gunfire in the last three months and the second to die. Police said the bandits entered the store after it closed at 9 p.m., apparently using keys they had for the outside doors. Inside they held up accounts office employees who were sorting out the night's receipts and fled down several flights of stairs with the money in a canvas sack.

Final Slam At Tax Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Inciting the Senate to rebel against any government pressure to rush its study of the tax bill, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield issued a final denunciation of the bill in Commons debate a few hours before its passage under the guillotine rule.

The government was not only cutting short Commons debate today with the guillotine, Mr. Stanfield said, it was also trying to ram the bill through the Senate.

The Conservative leader said that if he were a Liberal senator, he would be concerned about his reputation and his record of independence.

The Senate's Liberal majority defeated a Conservative motion Thursday that would have delayed debate on the bill until Jan. 10, delaying passage until well after the Jan. 1 date the government has set for the new law's implementation.

The Senate was to accept the bill for debate as soon as it was passed by the Commons.

Mr. Stanfield also reiterated his criticism of the bill, repeating his proposal to split the legislation—implementing personal tax cuts immediately, and delaying other provisions until after further debate.

NOBODY UNDERSTANDS

He said nobody in the House understands the bill.

Government House leader Allan Rock said it was untrue that the government was trying to put a deadline on the Senate's study of the bill.

On the eve of third and final reading in the House, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons in a rare intervention in debate that the Conservatives have displayed indecision and confusion on the issue. He said the majority of the public likes the bill and wants it passed. (See also Page 9.)

Skagit Study Urged by Davis

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis said today that there must be more study of possible effects before any additional flooding of the Upper Skagit Valley in British Columbia is permitted.

He told the Commons that this position is the main recommendation contained in a report by the International Joint Commission.

Proposals have been made to raise the Ross dam in the state of Washington, thus causing more flooding in the B.C. portion of the Skagit Valley.

Mr. Davis said the commission found that raising the dam would flood 10 of the 15 miles of the upper reaches of the Skagit Valley, which comprised the best recreation area in that part of the province.

More than 5,000 acres in Canada would be flooded, or 40 per cent of the best flatland in the valley.

The commission also found that the valley is an "uncommon and non-restorable area" with important social values.

Mr. Davis said the commission did not have time to estimate costs of mitigating the effects of flooding.

Measures for mitigation must be fully studied before the Ross dam is raised, the commission said. This study should take up to three years.

Mr. Davis said Ottawa, Victoria and Washington will review the commission report and then discuss again the valley's future.

Belfast to Form Vigilante Group

Times News Services
BELFAST—Prime Minister Brian Faulkner said the government would help organize a force of unarmed civilian vigilantes to help protect people and homes from guerrillas.

But he stressed the vigilantes must operate under a strict code of practice which he would draw up with the British Army, which has 14,000 troops in Northern Ireland, and police chiefs.

Faulkner's action gives official recognition to a host of small vigilante outfits which have been formed in bomb-scarred streets of Belfast, the capital in recent months.

Citizens have banded together to provide 24-hour surveillance on their streets and raise the alarm at the approach of suspicious-looking strangers.

The groups have been mainly Protestant since the insurgent warfare is being waged by the Roman Catholic-based Irish Republican Army.

LISTS CONDITIONS

Faulkner listed three conditions under which the vigilantes would be allowed to operate with official blessing: They would have no legal rights above those of ordinary citizens and must "under no circumstances" be armed, they would have to accept without reservation instructions from the army and police, and each group must allow free movement within its protectorate of official security forces and give them maximum support and co-operation.

There was no immediate reaction from the Catholic-oriented republican community to the proposals.

But independent observers were convinced the minority Catholics would regard the move as a concession to the Protestant right-wing.

Many Catholics already regard the police and army as biased against them. They could regard the unarmed vigilantes as the thin edge of a third hostile force.

Meanwhile, a British soldier shot in the stomach by a sniper in a Belfast street died today.

He was Pte. Anthony Aspinwall, 22, married with three children. The ambulance which took him to hospital Thursday also was sprayed with bullets, but nobody was hit.

His wife, flown from his regiment's base in West Germany, was at his side when he died. His death brought to 198 the death toll since the Northern Ireland troubles began in 1969.

In London Prime Minister Edward Heath said his government would accept a united Ireland only if the people of Northern Ireland agreed.

"If, by agreement, the North and South should decide to come together," Heath said in an interview, "not only would the present government raise no objection, but I cannot conceive of any future government which would want to stand in their way."

"All we say is that a united Ireland cannot be brought about by force and that we cannot usurp the right of choice of the people of Northern Ireland."

Benson Stresses Trade Questions

WASHINGTON (CP) — The finance ministers and central bank governors from the 10 richest Western nations started concerted efforts today to settle world currency values, with Canada's Finance Minister E. J. Benson stressing beforehand that action on trade questions is also essential.

Benson told reporters before entering the conference at the Smithsonian Institution that he couldn't indicate whether he thought the Group of Ten could settle their monetary differences today or Saturday at the meeting.

"There will have to be some movement on the trade side," he said, referring particularly to United States negotiations with Japan and the Common Market countries over trade barriers to American exports.

A group of Canadian officials who held negotiations with their American counterparts Thursday will continue the talks today, Benson said.

But he insisted that Canada-U.S. trade differences are "more symbolic than major" and a settlement of currency questions does not depend on resolving trade issues between the two countries.

Benson said Canada will be maintaining its previous position that the Canadian dollar must be allowed to float on foreign exchange markets until currency values settle down after the changes in value being worked out now by the Group of Ten.

FEELINGS MIXED

The ministers resumed their negotiations on the value of the world's currencies with a mixture of qualified optimism and sober caution among the delegations.

As bargaining began, the Bank of England removed its support from the dollar, which plummeted to a four-year low of $2.5282 to the pound on the foreign exchange market, an effective devaluation of 5.36 per cent from the official rate of $2.40.

NO MORE—U.S.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The United States no longer can afford to be so generous to foreign nations, U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally said Thursday night.

"We try to conduct ourselves as good friends and good neighbors and good trading partners. But at long last, we've reached the point where we can no longer be completely and easily generous, giving of ourselves, of our material resources, or our strength, and of our money that other nations might prosper," Connally said.

Connally, whose speech was taped and played for the Houston Chamber of Commerce in the state where he used to be governor, said other nations rely heavily on U.S. markets and trade.

"Without the markets of the United States, there would be a depression among all industrial nations of the world," he said.

But he said the United States is not looking for any special favors.

"We must speak for ourselves, defend ourselves and insist that we receive, not advantages, but equity, in our dealings with other nations."

McCarthy Runs

BOSTON (UPI) — Former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota formally announced his candidacy today for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1972. McCarthy said papers would be filed within two weeks to enter his name in the April 25 Massachusetts primary.

Compulsion Imposed

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta cabinet today imposed compulsory arbitration on a strike by 613 rural school teachers and Labor Minister Bert Hohol said he expects the 12,000 students involved to be back in class no later than Monday. (See also Page 19.)

Gold Price Dips

LONDON (Reuters) — Gold prices tumbled on the European bullion markets Thursday as fears mounted that the new price of official gold will not be as high as the market had expected. The biggest price fall was in Paris, where $1.34 was knocked off the bullion price, bringing it down to $42.25.

TRUDEAU, HEATH TALK

OTTAWA (CP) — British Prime Minister Edward Heath arrived here today for talks with Prime Minister Trudeau that are expected to deal largely with economic matters.

Trudeau said he hoped Heath would support Canada's position regarding revaluation of international currencies.

Brief talks were scheduled here today before Heath meets President Nixon in Bermuda.

Death on Main St.

GRIMSHAW, Alta. (CP) — A 35-year-old woman died of exposure on the sidewalk of the main street in this community of 1,800, the RCMP reported Thursday night.

The victim was identified as Shirley Kilgik of Grimshaw, 250 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The RCMP said she was walking from one friend's home to another Tuesday night in temperatures 20 degrees below zero and drifting snow.

She apparently weakened, curled up in a ball and lost consciousness on the sidewalk and was covered with drifting snow and debris blown by the wind, the RCMP said.

Her body was discovered in the morning. Police said a pedestrian had passed near her on Tuesday night but had thought her curled-up body was only a pile of debris.

Japan Ready to Apologize to Peking

TOKYO (WP) — Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda said Thursday that Japan is prepared to make a formal apology to the Chinese people for "what they suffered during the Sino-Japanese war" as a precondition for establishing diplomatic relations with Peking.

In a strongly worded statement viewed by Japanese leaders as a major gesture to China, Fukuda told a Diet (parliament) committee that "mutual trust must be established before we can begin negotiations, and it is for us to make the first move by apologizing formally and publicly to the Chinese people for the war. We must clarify our deep feeling of regret for having caused them such grave troubles and disturbances. This is the key point involved in opening contacts with the Chinese government."

The apology issue has long been regarded here as one of the most sensitive obstacles in the way of eventual Tokyo-Peking diplomatic ties. Memories of wartime Japanese brutality are still vivid in China.

Returning visitors tell of countless popular films and plays depicting heroic resistance exploits in the face of the scorched earth tactics used by Japanese troops during their unsuccessful effort to subdue north China from 1937 to 1945.

Until recently, Peking has suggested that Japan should pay war reparations—totaling $50 billion to compensate for property damage and casualties.

This demand has now been superseded by statements to Japanese business delegations that China does not want to impose hardships on postwar Japan and would accept "moral" in lieu of "material" restitution for war crimes.

A Matter of Legal Procedure

The controversy over the behavior of some Vancouver City policemen during the Gastown street riot last August has been complicated by Attorney-General Peterson's announced intention to review the cases of five members of the force who were to be charged with assault as a result of their actions. Pending the review no charges will be laid, although legal action was recommended by Vancouver's prosecutor.

Some of the charges that police used excessive force in trying to control the crowd were serious and led to a study of the incidents by a Supreme Court justice. The policemen involved are apparently open to civil and criminal charges as well as to disciplinary steps within the force.

There has been considerable discussion of the effects which might result from laying charges. The morale of the force, the possible restriction of police effectiveness which might occur in future cases of emergency action, the question of justice to men placed in a hazardous position while carrying out orders, are items that have been mentioned. It is generally agreed that policemen sent into crowds should not be made to feel that they cannot take firm measures when an emergency obviously makes them necessary, provided those measures are within the regulations and orders.

These are all pertinent matters, but they are incidental to the main issue. Surely, if the policemen may have broken a law, then they should be tried through the usual procedures and if found guilty, penalized, just as any citizen would be. If they broke departmental regulations, then they should be disciplined according to those regulations. If they are innocent, they should be cleared. Problematical effects on morale, future public demonstrations, and other attendant issues should not be allowed to nullify the main point.

In any case, the morale of the police force and its esteem in public eyes should be enhanced, rather than diminished, by clear evidence that officers must obey the law in performing their duty of ensuring that other persons obey it too. Where individual officers fall short of what is expected or permitted, then the law should take effect — both for the protection of the police force and the public. And the proper place to determine guilt or innocence is in court, as with any citizen. That is what democracy is all about.

"... not bad for a pacifist, eh, Goldie ... twelve days? ..."

Follow-Through on the CDC

The first meeting of the directors of the Canada Development Corporation recently led to the formal approval of the government's choice of chief executives for the company: Mr. M. A. Crowe as president and Mr. Anthony Hampson as chairman. It is assumed that the new corporation will follow through on another government plan: to locate the head office in Vancouver within two years. The move to the West would be a belated recognition of this province's growing role in the Canadian economy.

Although Mr. Hampson (a businessman with governmental experience) had difficulty putting the philosophy of the CDC into words when questioned by reporters, the term "development finance" was used to describe the ambitions of the fledgling company. Its object will be to attract equity capital eventually from the public, and to place that capital in suitable areas of the economy where profits will be the keynote. CDC will not be another Crown Corporation or be, according to the official view, in competition with private business.

Mr. Marshall Crowe (a top level civil servant with experience in business as an economic adviser) emphasized that the role of the CDC is to build up strong "Canadian-controlled corporations." He made clear that the CDC could work in consortia with foreign enterprises from time to time. "National interest," he said, "really isn't itself a specific criterion of the legislation," although he adds, that "In the general sense, certainly what we're doing is in the interest of Canada. We'll be looking at investment situations where we think we can make a useful contribution with other elements in the Canadian market."

In the cabinet struggle over the role of foreign capital in Canada the moderate approach represented by the CDC will probably prevail. It will set a quiet tone for future action in the aftermath of the sensational leaks concerning foreign investment.

Nearing 80, but Hanging Tough

Some weeks ago, Prince Juan Carlos, heir apparent to the mantle worn by Generalissimo Franco, used a visit to the Basque country to speak as his own man, reminding hearers of the traditional links between the monarchy and the Basques, and notably failing to mention Francisco Franco.

The incident, probably over-magnified, was seen as an encouraging trend by liberals in Spain — the suggestion that after the long dictatorship, a new head of state would find it possible to initiate a less repressive regime.

As if in reply, the aging Caudillo, now moving into his 80th year, reasserted his position. He is head man. He says there is no place in Spain for political parties and, in the year now closing, he has shown a tougher attitude to dissenters than had been the case in his earlier 70's.

Whatever hope liberals of Spain may hold for a future under Franco's eventual successor, they face one fact of life here and now. Franco is still the boss and, despite advancing years, he shows little inclination to let anyone else call the tune.

MONTREAL — The rising expectations of Progressive Conservatives in recent weeks have been nowhere more pronounced than in traditionally Liberal Quebec.

Six months ago, even the most optimistic Quebec Tories conceded another Liberal sweep of their province in the next federal election as a virtual certainty.

Now they are hoping that even if the Conservatives are unlikely to capture a majority of Quebec's 74 federal seats, they may at least spoil Liberal attempts to form another majority government.

Liberals were victorious in 56 Quebec ridings in 1968, while the Creditistes won in 14. The Tories won only four seats, and a defection has since cost them one seat.

"We might win as many as 15 or 20 seats," notes Andre Lalonde, chairman of the Quebec wing's policy committee.

"It depends mainly, I think, on getting good candidates."

Mr. Lalonde, like many Tories across the country, believe that party leader Robert Stanfield's patient — seemingly plodding — style is beginning to pay off.

He believes the Conservatives would be wisest to concentrate on attacking Trudeau government policies, not Prime Minister Trudeau. They should also pay most attention to ridings outside Montreal.

Predictions Echoed

Mr. Lalonde's optimistic predictions are echoed by people throughout the province, with MP Georges Valade suggesting that the Conservatives could win as many as 40 seats if Mr. Stanfield enlists a charismatic Quebec leader like Claude Wagner.

Mr. Lalonde and other people in the party believe that while Mr. Wagner, a former Quebec Liberal justice minister, might be an asset on the hustings, the Tories should avoid the superstar syndrome.

"What we really need are good candidates. We should concentrate on that first. One superstar can't accomplish much, as we saw in 1968."

At that time, Mr. Stanfield recruited the help of Montreal financier Marcel Faribault as his Quebec lieutenant. However, Mr. Faribault's help was more of a hindrance, as his controversial "two nations" theory was roundly rejected in Quebec and other parts of Canada.

Mr. Stanfield officially buried the "two nations" policy in a speech in Quebec City last May, but he has been moving with more than his customary caution in looking for a replacement for Mr. Faribault.

The national Tory leader is reported to be worried that Mr. Wagner's appeal in Quebec might be countered in other parts of Canada because of his hard line on such issues as abortion law reform and the treatment of narcotics users.

Mr. Wagner had been actively sought by the Conservatives until several weeks ago. However, party sources indicate now that he has been offered financial backing if he will run as a Tory candidate, although he would not be officially given the title of Quebec lieutenant.

There has been no indication from Mr. Wagner whether he would accept such an offer.

One thing Quebec Conservative candidates will have in their favor in the next election that they have never had before is the backing of a permanent organization.

Heading the operation is Yvon Sirote, a former Chamber of Commerce secretary in the remote community of Ma-

Any gains by the Conservatives in the next federal election would cause deep concern among federal Liberals.

Although Prime Minister Trudeau controls 155 of the Commons' 265 seats, Quebec accounts for 56 Liberal MPs. Ontario contributed 64 and British Columbia 16. All the other provinces combined account for only 19 seats.

If, as some observers suggest, Liberal strength in Ontario and B.C. peaked in 1968 — and the Trudeau government is unlikely to pick up many more seats in the Maritime or Prairie provinces — then a sweep of Quebec is extremely important.

A small loss of seats to Conservatives or the Social Credit in Quebec — combined with Liberal losses in Ontario, the Maritimes or B.C. — could result in a minority Liberal government.

Regardless of how the Conservative optimism translates into votes in the next election, the current euphoria among members of the Quebec wing is strikingly different from the scene only six months ago.

Public Dispute

The president of the provincial Conservative association, Fernand Allie, had just resigned following an embarrassing public dispute with his own executive and Mr. Stanfield over a demand that the party recognize Quebec autonomy. Days later, Joliette MP Roch LaSalle bolted party ranks to sit as an independent over the same issue. And many of the fewer than 200 delegates who showed up for a convention of the Quebec wing were still questioning the wisdom of retaining Mr. Stanfield as leader.

At the party's recent national convention in Ottawa, it appeared for a time that Mr. Stanfield's problems with the Quebec wing might still be simmering.

A former vice-president of the national party association, Paul Trepanier of Granby, Que., and MP Martial Asselin presented a resolution calling for Quebec's right to self-determination.

However, it apparently received little support from among the 125 Quebec delegates and, perhaps more important, less attention from newsmen covering the convention.

Mr. Stanfield, who now speaks a workable brand of French after four years of intensive study, has apparently resolved major differences with the Quebecers. While rejecting the "two nations" theory and the idea that any province should have special status, he impressed many delegates with his support of a convention resolution suggesting Canada is composed of five major regions whose differences must be taken into account.

Mr. Stanfield may not have permanently solved his problems with the Quebec wing. But, for the time being — at least — most Quebec Tories have decided to put aside differences in the hope that they may help put out the Trudeau government.

asset on the hustings...

tane, Que. He has been travelling almost constantly throughout the province setting up permanent constituency organizations and ten regional councils.

Party organizers point out that despite the traditionally small number of seats won by Conservatives in Quebec — except during the Diefenbaker upset of 1958 and the 1962 election — Tory candidates have usually drawn at least 300,000 to 400,000 votes.

In 1958, John Diefenbaker led the Tories to victories in 50 Quebec ridings. In 1962, the Conservatives retained 14 seats, while the Liberals won 35 and Social Credit 26. But, by 1963, the old pattern had returned and the Conservatives elected only eight MPs in Quebec. In that election, the Liberals moved up to 47 seats and Creditiste strength was reduced to 20.

Mayoral Pledge

May I use your column to express appreciation to the voters of Saanich who supported me at the municipal election on Saturday. The extent of the mandate given at that time was particularly satisfying.

I should also like to respond to the many individuals who offered their best wishes and encouragement in the days preceding the vote. More than a dozen gave up their time to drive residents to the various polling stations while others assisted by encouraging friends and neighbors to turn out.

I pledge myself to continued service, to the best of my ability, for the people of Saanich and the Capital Region. — Hugh Curtis, Mayor, 3936 Shorncliffe Road, North.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of Dec. 17, 1911:

COLOMBE — The Rheinisch Westphalian Zeitung publishes a story of the alleged discovery of a plot on the part of Great Britain to blow up Wilhelmshaven harbor. The postal authorities, becoming suspicious of many money orders in favor of the dock officers and chief mates, finally secured one of the letters. They showed, according to Zeitung, that the plans to the entrances of Wilhelmshaven war harbor, as well as plans of the supply and contents of the secret code book, had been betrayed to the British Admiralty.

The Monetary Prop for NATO

BRUSSELS — Joseph Luns, the enormous Dutchman who is NATO's new secretary-general, has a big enough sack of troubles to suit some sombre kind of Santa Claus, but, as he made clear at the Alliance's current ministerial meeting, the most urgent among all these is monetary.

For him the question can be simply stated: If the existing currency and the economic crises in the allied world cannot be settled — and quickly — the whole defence structure threatens to fall apart.

In such a negative case the following things might be expected to happen. Mutual commercial and financial rivalries between individual NATO members would lead to retaliatory measures among them and an end to allied cohesion. This would completely undermine the American position in Washington's negotiations with Moscow on mutual and balanced force reductions between East and West.

Lose Interest

The Russians would simply lose interest in any such mutual deal. They would prefer to sit back and watch a unilateral Western force reduction develop as the alliance came apart. This, certainly would be the case if financial and trade arguments in the West were not speedily settled.

There isn't the slightest doubt, Luns points out, that the NATO position vis-à-vis that of the Soviet Union has been steadily deteriorating during the last four years. Russian naval power has advanced by leaps and bounds both in submarines and surface vessels.

Its strategic position has zoomed in the Mediterranean where base facilities were made possible in the vacuum opened by the Arab-Israeli war. Finally, the massive Soviet naval force at Murmansk has now been backed up by an impressively large assemblage of land forces breathing dangerously down the back of Norway in the far north.

The secretary-general makes no hopes about being impressed by Moscow's extraordinary accomplishment during the last 12 or 13 years. In that brief span of time it has managed to construct a huge and sophisticated new fleet, gain in relative military strength in Europe and assemble and station an enormous armed force along its Chinese frontier to the east. This investment in swift action heading away from the slough of currency crisis and the menace of widespread recession. The United States presidential election comes next year and after March, 1972, and the New Hampshire primary, he fears that American preoccupation with politics could hamper further international discussion.

But if at least the monetary problem can be resolved by then — obviously accompanied by revaluation of some currencies and devaluation of the U.S. dollar as announced — the way would be opened to accord on other matters. Then one could count on a perceptibly larger European contribution to NATO defence. But the latter is contingent on the former.

Currency First

"There is no chance — unless the currency question is settled first," he says. "But even before that happens we have seen a comprehensive decision that finds the European allies pledging about $1 billion more for NATO, half in money and half in services."

He points out that 80 per cent of all troops now in Europe to defend the alliance come from European allies; that the British have added $250 million to their defence budget, that Holland is already spending more and may revise its budget upward.

However, final implementation of all this is contingent upon one thing — that members of the alliance, who comprise so important a percentage of world finance and world trade, come to prior agreement on economic matters. If they cannot find a satisfactory formula for living happily together in peacetime it is unlikely they will find a similar formula for either deterring war or winning one.

This meeting has, in effect, been forced to devote itself to dollar diplomacy. That is to say, devising means for the dollar to survive and thereby to sustain the United States, NATO's ultimate prop.

military matters of an excess proportion of the U.S.S.R.'s annual budget has strained civilian development.

Nevertheless, Luns insists, the "minimum" strength required by NATO to maintain its basic strategy of flexible response continues — if barely. Flexible response means initial reliance on conventional defence except against all-out nuclear aggression. But there is not a millimetre of fat left on this "minimum."

For all these reasons Luns urged allied foreign and defence ministers this week to prod their governments into

Haddock Hopes For Tax Drop

Out-going Mayor Courtney Haddock said Thursday he hopes to see a tax reduction next year in the city.

In his final address to council, Haddock said the tax increases last year were "beyond council's control" but after examining the city's preliminary budget for next year, "I would ask council to seriously consider a reduction this year in the mill rate."

Causes of last year's tax increase, Haddock said, were a provincial increase in assessment throughout the residential sector, unexpected welfare costs and increases in wages to city employees.

"A broader base of assessments" plus other factors "should make a mill rate decrease possible," Haddock said. "We must remember the residents in our city are of modest income and many are on fixed pensions."

Haddock admitted making "more than a few mistakes" during his two-year term as mayor, "but I think that I can say that, even when I spoke too quickly or too incautiously, I always had the best interests of the city of Victoria at heart."

Haddock's term ends Dec. 31.

Before his farewell address, Ald. Ove Witt moved a motion wishing the outgoing mayor well, calling him "one hell of a fine guy to work with" despite "the battles we've had up and down."

The motion was seconded by mayor-elect Peter Pollen.

Ottawa Approves Saanich Projects

Two Saanich winter works projects have been approved under the federal government's local initiatives program, Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis announced today.

Total cost of the projects is $130,950 and they will employ a total of 29 men.

Work on one of the projects, employing 14 men for four months, starts Monday. The $49,625 program involves clearing undeveloped park areas and beach-accesses.

The other project allots $81,325 for beautifying publicly-owned sections of Colquitz Creek and Swan Lake Creek. It will employ 15 men for six months.

Curtis said no word has yet been received on a third proposal submitted by Saanich. This program, employing 27 men for five months, will include a study of the municipality's storm drainage system, roadside brush clearing and removal of rock outcroppings.

Telephone Calls But No Evidence

Contractor Hans Hartwig said today he has received a few phone calls but no "actual evidence" following an offer of $5,000 for anyone seeing or knowing about property damage at an Esquimalt building site.

Hartwig, owner of Wigmar Construction Ltd., made the offer after someone poured water into the gasoline tank of a backhoe earlier this week at the Esquimalt Road-Fraser Street site.

Esquimalt police said they don't know if the damage was malicious or the action of children but thought it was more likely the latter.

Hartwig's company has been a main target of a union organized drive launched two months ago by the Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council, which represents all building unions.

He said the dispute with the unions "is not settled by a long shot." He had no change of opinion about preferring to run a non-union company.

New Book Traces Railroad History

A new book being sold in Victoria stores tells the history of the pioneer Victoria and Sidney Railway.

The third edition of Cordwood Ltd. came off the press this week.

The British Columbia Railway Historical Association discovered the pictures in the book and is responsible for the publishing.

The BCHRA is working on an historical thesis of the E and N Railway during the Dunsmuir era. It is also working on a study of the B.C. Mills, Timber and Trading Company, one of Vancouver Island's earliest logging railways.

Hugh Fraser was elected president at a recent BCRHA meeting. Also elected were vice-president Elwood White, treasurer E. W. Hanning, recording secretary Patrick Hild and corresponding secretary David Wilkie.

the weather

The Pacific frontal system which produced a strong on-shore flow of mild air that broke the extended cold spell over B.C. has stalled across extreme southern B.C. and Washington. As a result rain is general over Vancouver Island. Skies are clear over the northern B.C. coast well to the north of the frontal system and this clearing will spread slowly southward through today and Saturday as the Pacific disturbance edges southward to Oregon.

Santa Sweats, Flowers Bloom

NEW YORK (UPI) — A shrub grew in Brooklyn Thursday and the natives turned out in droves to observe the phenomenon.

Outside Macy's in Manhattan, Joe Bartholomew, 65, perspired in his hot Santa Claus suit while sweat oozed from his ersatz whiskers.

Up in Central Park Zoo polar bears sought relief in their pool while not far away humans lolled on the grass.

Nature's thermostat had somehow gone awry and produced the highest temperature ever recorded in the city for the date — 63. The previous record for Dec. 16 was 60 in 1891.

The U.S. Weather Service attributed the unseasonal weather to southerly winds bringing warm air into the area.

The official explanation was little comfort, however, to Bartholomew, attired in a heavy wool, red and white suit and stocking cap.

"When you're dressed for the cold and then it's warm it's terrible," he said. "Ringing this bell and bending down to talk to all the kids in this weather; it's terrible."

The shrub in Brooklyn was a forsythia which brought forth golden flowers, "I could hardly believe it," said a horticulturalist.

agreement with government economic policy, predicted the bill would maintain an unfair tax burden on individuals, encourage foreign ownership of industry and cause greater concentration of economic power in a few corporate hands.

The Commons vote today was forced by government use of a debate-limiting rule—used twice in the debate—which cuts off discussion by MPs at 3:45 p.m. EST.

SENATORS FORCE VOTE

Meanwhile, Senators fought an unusually heated debate Thursday and staged two votes on whether to speed the 707-page bill through by Christmas, or hold off debate until after the Christmas-New Year recess.

The government has sought parliamentary passage by the Jan. 1 implementation date.

The Senate's Liberal majority succeeded in passing a resolution suspending rules so they could accept the bill today when it is passed by the Commons and go immediately into debate—without the usual one-day notice.

And it defeated a motion by Jacques Flynn, Opposition leader in the Senate, to have the Senate adjourn until Jan. 10 so the bill could be carefully studied without the pressure of a deadline.

But in the 44-14 vote, three Liberals supported the opposition.

Standing in the Senate: Liberal 66, Conservative 19, Independents 2, Independent Liberal 1, Social Credit 1, vacant 13.

Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the chamber, denied that the government was applying pressure on the Senate to forgo scrutiny of the bill in order to pass it.

But Senator Gratton O'Leary (PC-Ontario) said a vote against the motion to delay debate was a vote for the death of the Senate, which would be exposed as a mere rubber stamp for legislation if it met the deadline.

Sign Pact

VANCOUVER — Members of the B.C. Government Employees' Union at Manning Park Lodge have called off strike action after voting to accept pay increases ranging from $15 to $100 a month, it was announced today.

Union general secretary John Fryer said the demand by the 36 employees for pay parity with other government employees doing similar work resulted in a narrowing of the gap.

HIJACK DEATHS

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — A hijacker and the pilot of a Bolivian airliner were killed and the co-pilot was wounded after security agents boarded the hijacked plane during a refuelling stop.

The Eloy Aereo Boliviano plane was commandeered after it took off from Sucre. It was ordered to fly to Chile, but the passengers were allowed to get off when the pilot stopped at Cochabamba for fuel.

Officials said it was unclear whether the pilot and co-pilot were shot by the hijacker or were hit by the security agents shooting at the hijacker.

A Serene, Slate World For Every Rain-Lover

Being some selected excerpts from a man's personal diary:

Dear Diary: The Allens, our Toronto friends, here for a brief visit en route to Hawaii and, sure enough, it rained incessantly through the 48 hours of their stay.

Somehow it always does, a reminder — not of language, not politics, not even economics — is quite so divisive in a nation as climate. The Allens, Ontario-born, verge on a state of panic when the rain continues. Yet I, forced to endure the deep freeze of one Toronto winter, fled westward to the coastal downpour, knowing I couldn't endure another so cruel.

"I shall continue to praise the English climate till I die," Chesterton said, "even if I die of the English climate." And Allen, in his way, and I, in mine, are just as irrational.

There is only one way to beat the coastal rain, just as there's only one way to beat the rain in England: Love it, get out into it, under it, revel in it, be like a duck. What seems the most dismal kind of weather from your living room window will be the most exhilarating, if you are dressed for it.

I know of no more therapeutic exercise than to walk along the shore by the Esquimalt lagoon when the straits are leaden-grey and dimpled by raindrops, and you are absolutely alone in a slate world without horizon. Or, if time allows, to take the wet trail through the East Sooke Park, a leafy, chlorophyll tunnel washed and fresh, a canopied landscape that's totally invigorating. "Get out," as Pauline Johnson used to say, "what-ever the weather."

Another of my favorite women writers, Katherine Whitehorn, once ventured the opinion that weather should never be anticipated, simply accepted. "People get a bad impression of it," she noted, speaking of the English climate, "by continually trying to treat it as if it was a bank clerk, who ought to be on time on Tuesday next, instead of philosophically seeing it as a painter, who may do anything so long as you don't try to predict what."

Dear Diary: Out to Ernie's place tonight for our regular poker session and I arrived shaken and trembling, this being my first time at night traversing the new Patricia Bay highway out past Beaver Lake Park.

In all my years of driving I have never seen such a scandalous, nightmare death trap, a maze of unlit black-top with conflicting markers or no markers at all. Only an act of God prevented me from following one white line that leads directly into a concrete wall.

Those who have become familiar with the highway, including truckers, drive it boldly at bullet speed in the blackest of nights while the newcomer gropes his way in total bewilderment, a sure-fire formula for an appointment in Samarra. The road has already taken its toll and, as surely as Russian Roulette, it will take more. Let it be on the heads of the provincial highway department and the contractors.

Shook my savoir-faire so thoroughly that I dropped the bundle at the poker table.

Dear Diary: Had a little whimsy in the paper tonight about how kids learn the truth about Santa Claus and an elderly gentleman who had known Robert Service phoned me to say that the Bard of the Yukon had once written eloquently on just such disillusionment. The poem was titled "The Skeptic" and went thusly:

My Father Christmas passed away
When I was barely seven.
At twenty-one, a slack-a-day,
I lost my hope of heaven.

Yet not in either lies the curse;

The hell of it's because
I don't know which loss hurt the worse—
My God or Santa Claus.

Dear Diary: In the mail today a nicely autographed copy of "The Emperor's New Clothes" by Norman Alcock, director of the Canadian Peace Research Institute, a man I've admired these past 10 years, not merely because of his dedication to his belief that science may prevent future wars by isolating the causes of war, but because he gave up a high-paying career to devote his life to that uncertain notion.

Those of us who lead more programmed lives are always impressed and envious when a man's sense of mission causes him to make a clean break with success, as Norman did, yet we seldom concern ourselves with what that means to the women in their lives.

When I put the question to Patricia Alcock, Norman's attractive wife, a mother of four, she said that many women had asked her the same thing.

"Often they'll say, 'How you've sacrificed!'" Pat explained. "Mostly they're talking about money. But the fact is that although our income was slashed about 65 per cent by Norman's decision to set up the institute in 1961, we don't live very differently. We really haven't given up anything that matters.

"So many people, you see, tell me that they're discontented with what they're doing and they want to make a change, but they can't face the social and economic drop in status. I know now that's just rationalizing.

"What I have discovered is that money doesn't matter nearly as much as having a husband who is concerned and excited about a challenging job."

It may not be true that behind every great man there's a great woman, but it seems to fit the Allocks.

Careless Smoking Likely Caused Apartment Blaze

Careless smoking is believed to have caused a fire early today which did about $1,350 damage to an apartment building at 1063 Foul Bay on Oak Bay fire department officials said.

He said the blaze was con-

Firemen received the alarm about 4:15 a.m.

Choir, which includes bell ringers, has members from every province. It will present traditional carol service at college tonight.

BYELECTION ON JAN. 29

Saturday, Jan. 29, has been set as the date of a byelection in Victoria to elect one alderman to city council.

The seat on council is vacant due to the death Dec. 7 of Ald. Robert Baird. Term of the seat would end Dec. 31, 1972.

Council approved the new election date Thursday.

Nomination day is set for Monday, Jan. 17. Nominations must be filed between 10 a.m. and 12 p.m. in Committee Room 1 at city hall.

Only one polling station will be open for the byelection — at Senior Citizens Activity Centre off Centennial Square.

7 Years' Jail For Drug Haul

Richard V. Bird, 23, was sentenced today to seven years in prison for importing marijuana into Canada, the minimum penalty for the offence under the Narcotics Act.

He was convicted earlier this month by Judge Edmond St. Jorre of importing 74 pounds, one ounce of marijuana Aug. 29 concealed in the camper-truck he was driving that arrived in Victoria from Port Angeles on the Black Ball ferry.

St. Jorre said today the accused took a "calculated gamble" spurred on by the profit motive and lost.

He said Bird was viewing the venture as a businessman hoping to make money.

The judge noted that the accused arrived at Customs accompanied by his mother and younger brothers and sisters in the truck believing a family group would have a better chance of entering the country without suspicion. The family had come from Mexico.

St. Jorre said the presentence report presented the accused as something of a "crusader" for the legalization of marijuana but added that there were right and wrong ways of achieving law reform.

Defence counsel Edward Pollard said he urged "most strongly" the minimum sentence because Bird had no record.

He called his client "a pawn and friend" of Donald Harper who travelled to Mexico with the Bird family but did not return with them.

Pollard said Harper allegedly drowned in a swimming accident in Mexico although his body was never found.

The lawyer said the importation was "masterminded" by Harper but because of his death, he was not before the courts.

Prosecutor Mike Hutchison, appearing for senior counsel Cecil Branson, said the importation was a "carefully contrived plan" and not "a spur of the moment spree."

Revamping Studied For United Appeal

Greater Victoria's United Appeal, which looks like ending its 1971 drive more than $100,000 short of its goal, may be entirely revamped.

Community Chest president Allan Cox announced at a press conference this morning that a special committee of ex-chairmen of the campaign was formed Thursday "to look at the campaign and re-examine its aims and whole administrative structure."

The committee, headed by 1971 chairman Eric Charman, will meet almost immediately and prepare a report for submission to the chest's directors late in January, Cox said.

The committee was formed at a director's meeting Thursday which received a preliminary report from Charman on the results of the 1971 campaign, and included several of his personal recommendations for administrative and operating changes.

Also at today's press conference, Cox confirmed a report that the chest's executive director, Henry Bennett, submitted his resignation earlier this week, effective Dec. 31.

But Cox said Bennett's resignation was for personal reasons, and had no connection with the proposal to examine certain aspects of the appeal's administration.

Bennett himself, questioned on his decision today, said he had no comment.

Full Quotas to Be Met

Cox said that despite the shortfall this year, the 23 agencies involved would have their 1972 quotas met in full, by dipping into the Community Chest's contingency fund.

But he stressed this would be the last time they could make good any deficit, as most of the modest reserves had been used up.

In his preliminary report to the director's Charman said the 1971 total to date stands at $620,000 but known donations still to come in should swell that to about $635,000. Other contributions trickling in during the wind-up stages of the appeal could put the final figure close to the $650,000 actually raised last year.

Charman noted this was far short of the "enormous" $758,723 target, which had been set on the basis of the agencies' minimum requirements.

It was a departure from the previous practice of drastically pruning their demands to a realistically achievable goal, because it was felt that if the requirements could be met "there would be a far greater feeling towards the appeal with an increased participation by the agencies' representatives."

But Charman added, "This theory has been overwhelmingly disproved."

Among his recommendations for reshaping the structure and operations of the appeal were:

• Appointment of a "first-class public relations campaign director" to run a year-round campaign.

• A complete reappraisal of those agencies included in the appeal, with a view to eliminating those which "should obviously be creatures of the Crown."

• Possible consolidation of the chest's administrative structure with that of the Community Council, to avoid duplication of effort and expense.

'VIOLIN PLAYER' HERE APRIL 20

Comedian-violinist Jack Benny will perform here on April 20 with the Victoria Symphony, it was confirmed Thursday.

John Addicott, symphony society general manager, said a committee will be set up to promote the performance, from which it is hoped $40,000 will be raised to pull the symphony out of debt.

Addicott hopes to sell at least half the seats at McPherson Playhouse for $100 a couple. This "golden circle group" will be entitled to meet Benny at a champagne and caviar reception after the concert.

The rest of the tickets will go for $5 and $10.

Addicott said that Benny will be charging a nominal fee of $1,000.

Oak Bay Gets Work Subsidy

Oak Bay has received confirmation that one of its three projects submitted for federal assistance under the local initiatives program has been approved.

Mayor Frances Elford said today the federal government will pay $21,411 out of a total of $46,000 for a practice tennis court at Windsor Park; installing curbs, draining, paving and landscaping of the parking area for the new senior citizens' centre and library, and installation of curbs at Oak Bay Marina's parking area.

The project will provide 10 jobs.

The mayor said the federal government's grant would be based on $100 per week per man plus 17 per cent for other costs, such as materials.

She said she understands confirmation of a second project will soon be made.

This is for construction of sidewalks on six Oak Bay streets and the creation of an asphalt cycle path from Cedar Hill Cross Road to Woodburn Avenue. The federal government, if the confirmation comes through, will be contributing $25,400 toward a total cost of $51,200.

The third project, the mayor said, might be delayed. It involves spending $47,100 on replacement of old water mains. The federal government's share would be $25,000.

Shaker Church Rising As His Labor of Love

By PAT MUNSON

A man who was once a bishop in the Indian Shaker Church is now working each day in Brentwood on a new wooden church and community hall being built to his design.

Bert Underwood, 77, climbed down from the shingled roof of the 76-foot square building this week to explain his labor of love.

"It will be somewhere for the young people to meet as well as a place for weddings, funerals and regular services," said Underwood who started work on the building by himself early last summer.

On weekends volunteer help arrives from the Tsartlip, Tsawout and other Peninsula Indian bands and lately non-Indian students from high schools in the district have turned up to work.

The original Shaker church

burned down on the same site about two years ago, according to the local minister, Theresa Sam, who has ministered to the congregation for eight years.

Services meanwhile are held in private homes and attended by members of the Shaker faith from Greater Victoria. Often, says Theresa Sam, everyone travels to Duncan where there is a large Shaker church.

The Indian Shaker Church embodies the teachings of Christ with emphasis on racial equality, passivism and faith healing. The Shakers, a matriarchal movement, gained their name from the congregation's habit of shaking in moments of religious fervor.

"I haven't had a chance to count lately because we meet in small houses," said the minister "but I think there would be about 30 members on this reserve and about 300 on the lower island."

The Shaker Church was organized in the United States about 1910 and services are conducted in the local Indian language.

On Vancouver Island, the service is most often spoken in Cowichan.

"There are hardly any ministers using the Saanich language," said Miss Sam. Instead of music, bells are used in the church ritual.

A provincial government grant of $10,800 enabled the church to be built.

The elderly carpenter, who lives on Mount Newton Cross Road, was at one time a Shaker minister before serving for a period as Bishop.

PM Raps 'Recipe' in Tax Attacks

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau jumped on the Conservatives Thursday with accusations that they have been obstructing the tax bill debate without ever taking a real stand on the bill itself.

In his first speech during Commons debate since last May, Mr. Trudeau called the ingredients of the Conservative tax policy:

"The text of paid advertisements by affluent interest groups, seasoned with the latest statistics from some mail-in pressure campaign, then cooked for two hours in the heat of the weekly Conservative caucus meeting."

Mr. Trudeau said that at least the New Democratic Party had taken a stand on the bill.

The NDP stand has been that the government itself sold out to affluent interest groups on the tax bill.

The prime minister said the main Conservative complaint about the bill is that they had not had enough time to study it.

In a strongly partisan speech, Mr. Trudeau said the Conservative complaint that they could not study the bill during the summer was an admission of their own inefficiency.

Copies of the bill had been distributed to all MPs and the opposition research staffs July 12.

STRAYED FROM TOPIC

The Commons debate itself had gone on for 49 days. During that time, Conservative members had often wandered aimlessly on other topics.

The Conservatives, Mr. Trudeau said, had shown the essence of fiscal irresponsibility by saying they were in favor of cutting taxes for some people but they were opposed to increasing them for others.

Despite all the criticism, he said, the bill was filled with "relevance, fairness, growth incentives."

The national debate on tax change had been going on since 1962 when the Diefenbaker government had appointed a royal commission on taxation.

"The only thing in Canada that has dragged on as slowly in recent years is the heavy water plant started by the leader of the Opposition when he was premier of Nova Scotia."

The Glace Bay heavy water plant is considered a political embarrassment as it never has come into operation because of technical problems, despite the expenditure of millions of dollars since it was inaugurated.

UNFAIR TO STANFIELD

Robert McCleave (PC-Halifax-East Hants) said it was unfair to blame the heavy water situation on Mr. Stanfield.

Liberals such as Treasury

Board President C. M. Drury, Privy Council President Allan MacEachern, and Gerald Regan, now premier of Nova Scotia, had been the first to adorn themselves with halos and laurels when an agreement was signed this fall to put federal funds into the stalled project.

As for the tax debate, he said it didn't matter whether the bill was debated for 50 days or 500 days, as long as it was dealt with properly.

But the Commons, he said, had only dealt with about one-third of the bill, leaving the problems that would result to future Parliaments.

'Dream Town' Dream Shattered

VANCOUVER (CP) — The dream is over for the Gold Dust Twins settlement Society and its plan to take over the old abandoned mining town of Bralorne, 110 miles north of Vancouver, and turn it into a model community of craftsman and environmentalists.

It died Thursday far short of the $100,000 needed to buy the 1,400-acre townsite and its 200 buildings from Bralorne Can-Fer Resources Ltd., which used to operate the gold mine there.

"We set up the society last fall after reading how Bralorne was being abandoned and the company planned to burn it down," said Colin Thompson, spokesman for the 24 members of the co-operative, named after two early and failed female residents of Bralorne.

"We remembered (Prime Minister) Trudeau's statement of last spring that he felt young people should use their energies to build new cities in the North, and that the government would help them, and we thought this was the ideal place to start. "It (new cities) was his concept, and his office encouraged us for weeks. But then curiously enough, six months before an election, the answer is no."

Thompson said Bralorne Can-Fer promised to hold the town until Dec. 15, pending receipt of letters of support for the project from the federal and provincial governments.

"Dan Campbell gave us the letter and he gave us advice on how to set up a municipal government," he said.

"He said the town should be sold to us for $1 since it had been subsidized by $1 million over a 10-year period to provide the federal government with gold."

Thompson said Trudeau's corresponding secretary, John Lawless, flew to Vancouver twice to confer with the group and visited the townsite with them.

He said the company put an initial price tag of $100,000 on the site, but warned that it had found another prospective buyer — a commercial venture to establish an outdoor recreation complex.

Architect Moe Van Nstrand, another member of the group, said the society raised $10,000 for a down payment and was counting on the federal Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. for the rest.

"Then Lawless came out last Friday and said it wasn't going to happen," he said.

Publisher Charged

TRAIL (CP) — Martin Walsh, 49, publisher of a weekly newspaper, was committed to trial on a charge of making and distributing obscene literature.

He was released on his own recognizance. No date was set for trial. Walsh is publisher of the Beaver Valley Bulletin.

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police chief John Fisk said

Mud, Snow Slide

FLOOD (CP) — A large mud and snow slide early today blocked the Trans-Canada highway and the Canadian National Railways main line here, about 70 miles east of Vancouver.

Aspokesman for the provincial highways department said crews were attempting to clear debris away but it wasn't known when the highway and rail line would be clear.

"I LIKE THIS CAT 941 LOADER very much," says Len Pare, of Pare Contracting, Merritt. He uses the machine to build right-of-way and access road and to backfill and level on irrigation pipeline projects in the Okanagan. He states that the 941 "is the right size — has lots of power — can do all the jobs I need it to do. I tried a smaller machine but it couldn't handle the work." The 941 is small but it has a lot of big loader features. Plenty of horsepower from its 70 fly-wheel hp diesel. Lots of production in its 1 1/4-yd. bucket. Fast cycles with single lever, on-the-go full power shift. Easy operation with optional pedal steer. Long life and availability backed by Finning's unmatched parts and service support in your area and 32 other B.C. locations. These are the features that make the 941 a profitable machine for Len Pare and other owners like him. ## Mercedes-Benz announces a most unusual sale

This is an unusual sale because, unlike most manufacturers, Mercedes-Benz do not normally hold sales of any kind. But, right now they are offering for sale a limited number of executive driven 1972 company cars. All models at considerable savings, all on an immediate delivery basis.

The reason for this special offer is that, since their initial introduction the demand for our 1972 models has, in many cases, exceeded available supply. They are therefore placing their own immaculately maintained staff cars on the retail market — effective immediately. Your local dealer has a complete list of all cars available.

So, if you have ever considered owning a Mercedes-Benz, the car that has long been acclaimed "one of the world's finest cars", then now is the time to act.

Sample the superb performance and handling. Enjoy the luxury and security of a fine automobile. Test drive a Mercedes-Benz today.

HER FUTURE INSURED

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Isabelle Kirchner began work as a clerk in a Brooklyn branch of Prudential 30 years ago and, when the right man came along, she quit her job to get married.

A familiar story — except that marriage was more a beginning than an end to Mrs. Kirchner's business career. She has now become the first woman officer of the 97-year-old insurance firm.

The directors of Prudential, a company with assets of $30 billion, elected Mrs. Kirchner to the post of vice president and secretary.

A brunette who keeps her age to herself "because I'm female in that respect," Mrs.

Kirchner remains active as a housewife — at least according to her son John, 12, who said, "All I ever see her do is clean." She also has helped raise two children by her husband's previous marriage, Bill, 19, and Joan, 18, both of whom attend Indiana University.

Born in Brooklyn, Mrs. Kirchner said her first job with Prudential in 1941 involved "very basic secretarial work as a clerk in the district office." But while working there she attended St. John's University at night to obtain bachelor's and law degrees.

This, she explained, was done on the advice of a priest. "He told me I was sacrificing the present for the future. And now, I know he was right."

'Something I Picked Up For Xmas'

By HELEN MELNYK
Times Staff

Store owners are all for the yuletide custom of giving . . . As long as the gifts aren't on them.

This reporter went out to test the defences of a local department store and found herself a shaken but wiser woman.

Half an hour of shoplifting netted the following booty: a skirt, a blouse, a sweater, a pair of gloves, one scarf and an Eskimo carving. I had to stop because my coat and pockets were so stuffed that I was beginning to look more laden than the Santa Claus in the store's window.

Gleeful at having gotten so far undetected, I decided to sneak the things back. This done, I smugly started to hunt around for the head security officer to report how I had outfoxed his staff.

That's when a woman confronted me and sternly but politely inquired whether I had any goods on my person that I hadn't paid for. Despite my "no," she suggested I better come along to the security office.

Two Waiting

As the office was already occupied by two suspected male shoplifters, I had to wait outside. Then the two men, both in their mid-twenties, were led away handcuffed by a police officer and it was my turn in the hot seat.

My lady escort and a co-worker started to ask some awkward questions. Telling them the truth — that I'd stolen just to see what it was like — was like crying wolf. They'd heard that line too many times before.

Just when I was beginning to wonder whether legal aid was part of my employment contract, the store's head security officer verified first, that I was a reporter, and second that the whole affair was an assignment.

Four major local department stores increase their security surveillance each Christmas season. Three of the stores report that shoplifting doubles in the months of Nov. and Dec. The store mentioned above was the only one that felt no increase.

The security staff of six, hand picked and trained, had cracked down on local fleet fingers. "We have a reputation around town," said the head security officer.

Detected Early

He said that I had been detected from the first swipe and observed by half the staff while making my rounds. One parent, to avoid recognition, had changed her coat three times while tailing me.

The staff is cautious in apprehending anyone, because it is necessary to distinguish between the "careless" shopper who shoves something in his pocket with the intention of paying for it later, and one who sets out to steal.

Stores' officials said that the type of articles pilfered — cosmetics, sweaters and sporting goods — indicates that they are destined to be put under the Christmas tree.

The security officer at one store said that last week a 19-year-old girl was picked up with a gift list of all the items she was going to steal and from where. She was on welfare and had no money for family presents.

Though the security officer sympathized with her intentions, he said there still was no excuse for her action.

"If she had explained to her parents that she had no money, they would have understood," he said.

Some of the have-nots feel little guilt about helping themselves to the goodies displayed on store counters, he said. "They figure that we're a big corporation and can afford it."

Younger kids are sometimes sent off to their Christmas shopping with three dollar bills from their parents. That doesn't go far, so they steal knick-knacks when the money runs out.

Some kids not only exhibit plumsiness in their shopping methods but poor taste in what they choose to hock, he said. He quoted one girl who was picked up with 10 packs of a "horrible stinking" brand of incense.

Elderly people have also been caught stealing little things, the guard said. Their limited incomes cannot always be stretched to accommodate the expense of Christmas gifts.

One elderly woman had set her mind on a pair of gloves for her husband's present. She didn't realize that they cost $11.98 until she was to the end of a long line-up before the cashier. The price was too steep, so she stuffed the gloves into her purse on impulse.

Wasted Effort

The woman might have spared herself the trouble.

"The gloves didn't even match," the security guard said. "They were of two different colours and sizes."

"People are more tempted to steal this time of year, he said. "Christmas suddenly comes upon them; they have so many gifts to buy and not enough money to pay for it all.

"Many don't intend to steal when they come in the store, but the opportunity to do so presents itself and they take advantage of it, he said. A customer may opt to skip off without paying rather than standing at the end of long line-ups at the cashier desks.

Women shoppers sometimes take without paying as an "economy measure," he said. "By lifting a pair of pantyhose, a woman may have saved herself $3. That can mean a bigger roast on the supper table that evening."

"There is no such thing as a Christmas shoplifter," said a security guard in another department store. "A thief is a thief. A person doesn't suddenly become dishonest one week every year. He just steals more around Christmas time."

Surgery Improved

EUREKA, Calif. (UPI) — A urologist in this small northern California city has developed a technique that gives men who have vasectomies another chance to father a child.

Dr. Stanwood S. Schmidt says that about 25 per cent of the men he has performed vasectomies on and later want to regain fertility, have conceived children. Fifty to 75 per cent have been able to send sperm through their unblocked ducts.

Schmidt says he has been perfecting his new operation method for more than 15 years in Eureka, a community of about 28,000.

Dr. Donald R. Smith, chairman of the department of urology at the University of California medical centre in San Francisco, said Dr. Schmidt's new technique is extremely effective.

Schmidt's operation severs the sperm duct but instead of removing a segment and tying off the ends he cauterizes the duct's lining with an electric needle.

Is Divorcee Doctor Just a Professional?

DEAR ABBY: I am strongly attracted to my doctor. He is divorced and I am a widow. I have a hunch he feels something for me. He is very kind and gentle. He is also very ethical. He hasn't expressed any special interest in me, but he frequently brushed lint, or what have you off my clothes? Could this mean anything?

He seems concerned about my welfare in a professional way. He touches me a lot. Friendly gestures. On the arm, shoulder and hands. He listens to me attentively, however trivial my conversation.

Am I just lonely, or do you think this could develop into something more than just a doctor-patient relationship? And if so, how? Patient

DEAR PATIENT: Since he is, as you say, "very ethical," you will have to find out outside his office. The next time you need an escort, invite him to do the honors. If your hunch is right, and he "feels something for you," the next move will be his. If your hunch is wrong, you haven't lost anything, and you've saved a lot of time.

DEAR ABBY: Is it normal for a boy who is in the 8th grade to kiss his mother goodbye every morning before he goes to school, and then wave a couple of times as he goes down the street?

I have two sons, and they stopped kissing me good-bye in about the 2nd grade. Sign me . . . Wondering.

DEAR WONDERING: The boy's behavior in this one instance could suggest that he has a rather strong attachment to his mother. But that doesn't necessarily mean there is anything abnormal about it.

Assignment: Hockey Mission: Delightful

More hockey anyone? If the Cougars are looking for a skating instructor, I've got just the right party for them. And they'll listen, all right!

Perhaps general manager Eric Bishop could even appoint her the team's assistant coach. She could teach the newcomers. Fred Hucul, the senior coach, quite obviously wouldn't mind. And neither, just as obviously, would Mich Pechet, the Cougars' managing director.

And that's right. "Her".

It was Wednesday night, late, at the McPherson Playhouse when the story broke. And Hucul and Pechet had better not deny it either. Besides, how could they?

Denise Lalonde was being interviewed for what seemed the longest time; and if the reasons why were quickly obvious, the name "Lalonde" rang a bell, and got an introduction, too.

Any relation to Bobby Lalonde, the second round draft choice of Vancouver Canucks of the National League? He was from Montreal.

No, but taller... and prettier... and if you ever believed in that old adage that, like the lamp post to the drunk, statistics are more to lean on, than illuminating, forget it. Denise had hers with her.

Don't take my word alone for it. Ask Hucul and Pechet. They suddenly became true believers in Denise because of her talents. Why not? She was telling them things they wanted to hear.

A Captive Audience-In Line of Duty

Believe it, it's true. Denise was busily explaining to Hucul and Pechet what was good and what was bad about the Cougar hockey team.

They were smiling at first, (make that all the time). Because after all, Denise was easy to smile back at and, if they didn't, someone else would; and besides she knew what she was talking about. Honest.

"That number 20 — what's his name," she said. (It was Carl Cureatz). "What was he doing skating right in front of his goal like that the other night? You don't do that. You lose the puck. He lost the puck. It's not right."

Not word for word, mind, that would be too much. Besides, Denise had long, dark eyelashes that fluttered when she spoke; a delightful French Canadian accent with which she was doing much for Canadian unity; long, dark eyelashes, a flowered mini, which might have been painted on; long, dark eyelashes... and after all, she was only trying to tell Fred and Mich how to get a winner.

If there is the merest hint that this thought had crossed their minds, too, they weren't letting go. Not until Denise had told them more. About the Cougars, that is! And herself.

And it turned out (I think) that she has been with the Cougars for five years now, enjoys the travel that goes with it, the people she meets, receptions like this, and didn't really think that Victoria was "wild".

She made it sound homey when she said: "It's a nice, little town."

Fred and Mich, meanwhile, listened intently.

"More," they hinted. "I'll be right back," said Fred. Denise obliged.

If I Was Coach of a Hockey Team

"That No. 17 is a good skater; you should play him more," she explained of winger Wayne Bianchin. Hucul promised he would, and agreed that Bianchin had a good game against Edmonton, and indeed could skate very well.

"She knows her hockey," Pechet added.

"But that No. 3," said Denise, "he plays around with the puck too much... and loses it."

"It may be because he has contacts," explained Hucul. "Sometimes, it's hard to find the puck quickly, and by the time he gets it under control, he's being checked."

Which was an interesting bit of information on Blake Robinson. Denise agreed.

"He did get a goal," suggested a listener. "He has a good shot," said Denise. "Your goalie is good — has fast hands," she added.

She had more to offer, and did. "Some of the players need skating practice," she said, and quickly Hucul and Pechet noted the chief offenders.

It was getting late, and finally Denise was claimed by other interested parties; or was it Hucul and Pechet who were reclaimed? The point is not clear.

At any rate, assistant arena manager John Bate happened by, and when he was informed that Ice Capades had a Montreal oriented hockey instructor and analyst in the group, Bate said he already knew.

"There were several of them from Ice Capades at the game on Tuesday," he said. "And Denise was one who was giving it to the Cougars."

"Of one player," she said. "He skates like a constipated hot dog."

He's Ready For Rondon

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The issue of who should rightly wear the light heavyweight boxing crown should be settled soon, possibly within the next two months, Bob Foster and his manager said Thursday night after Foster had disposed of Brian Kelly with a technical knockout in the third round.

"I'm ready for Rondon," Foster beamed after the fight in which he dazzled Kelly with a flurry of punches — sending him to the canvas three times.

Foster referred to Vincente Rondon of Venezuela, who is recognized as champ by the World Boxing Association. Foster, stripped of his title by the WBA for failing to meet the then-top challenger, Bobby Dupree, is recognized in several states, including New York.

Lou Viscusi, Foster's manager, was contacted after the fight and disclosed that Florida promoters are trying to arrange a bout with Rondon for sometime in late January or February.

He said a promoter at Orlando has offered to put up $100,000 for the fight, with Foster and Rondon splitting the take.

Foster had an easy time of it Thursday night against Kelly, who was ranked No. 7 by the WBA. It was Foster's 39th knockout in 46 victories. He has five losses to heavyweights.

After a first round which featured little action, Foster went to work, knocking down Kelly twice in the second round then burying the challenger with a heavy assault of punches in the third round.

Foster caught Kelly with a blazing left hook that sent him down for the third time with 1:56 gone in the third round and referee Bob Earle stopped the fight.

Riddled Ranger Knows How Routed Gump Felt

By The Canadian Press

Riding a crest as the National Hockey League's No. 1 goaltender has its pitfalls. The decent, when it comes, can be sudden and embarrassing.

Gump Worsley held the dubious leadership last week-end. Then Chicago Black Hawks raked him for four goals in just over 12 minutes en route to a 5-1 win over Worsley's Minnesota North Stars.

Eddie Giacomin, who replaced Worsley as the league's premier goalie, took his lumps Thursday night, allowing four goals in the first period as New York Rangers, East Division leaders, fell 8-1 before the aroused Boston Bruins.

The win gave Boston 42 points, three behind New York, and a second-place tie with Montreal Canadiens.

In the only other game, Philadelphia Flyers climbed into a share of third place in the West with California Golden Seals while blanking Buffalo Sabres 5-0. The Sabres trail the seven-team East.

Giacomin can at least claim a moral victory over Worsley. The Gumper exited after the fourth goal Sunday. The New York goalie didn't depart until the end of the first period after Bruins' centre Phil Esposito had picked up his fourth point of the game, assisting on Ken Hodge's score at 19:15.

Green in another attraction. All four players received fighting majors and misconduct penalties while Ranger Vic Hadfield and Hodge were given game misconducts each for being the third man in the separate altercations.

"This just has to be our best game of the season," said Boston coach Tom Johnson. "There was nothing holding our guys back tonight," he added in reference to the aggressive play of his Bruins in front of the hometown Garden fans.

Johnson elected to go with power against power, matching up the Esposito line against New York's Hot Line of Gilbert, Hadfield and Jean Ratelle.

The Boston line, including Hodge and Wayne Cashman, set an NHL record of 336 points last season. The New York trio leads this season with 143 points in 29 games.

Johnson's Ted Irvine and Boston winger John McKenzie were ticketed with fighting majors in the first period, but their battle turned into a preliminary of the feature donnybrook at 18:37 of the middle period.

Rod Gilbert, New York's high scoring winger, and Bruin defenceman Dallas Smith started the fireworks in front of Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers.

The ill feelings spread to other players and New York defenceman Brad Park started to take the measure of Ted slipped into second place in the hotly-contested Eastern Division race by defeating Swift Current Broncos 6-4.

Goalie Terry Richardson earned his first shutout of the season in New Westminster's home-town victory, but he needed a bit of luck.

Perhaps later... maybe. Tonight, the Cougars will call on three players from the affiliated Junior "B" Cubs.

Joining the Victoria lineup will be goalie Kelly Hunter and forwards Earl O'Hara and Al McLaren. With Cougar regular Darryl Fedorak scheduled to write university exams today, Hunter will be the backup man to starting goalie Dave Maynard.

Tuition Fees Support Education of Juniors

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hockey Association Junior A teams pay a staggering amount toward tuition fees for their players, Clarence (Tubby) Schmalz of Walkerton, Ont., said Thursday.

Schmalz, the OHA president, was defending the educational standards of Junior A players as he commented on a report that a federal-provincial conference on sport had decided, with Health Minister John Munro's agreement, to investigate "some of the abuses prevalent" in amateur hockey.

"We have statistics to prove that the scholastic averages of our Junior A players are above the averages of students in almost every city in the league. Any boy who isn't doing well is provided with a tutor."

Schmalz said when a player is transferred from one city to another to play hockey, his team pays his tuition in the new city. His parents continue to pay education taxes in his home city.

"In some cases the amount a team pays is staggering—as much as $1,000. This way the government gets in both ways."

"Ottawa says there isn't enough liaison between the governing bodies of hockey and the youth and recreation department," Schmalz said. "This may be true in other provinces, but it certainly isn't true in Ontario."

He said the OHA was hiring a technical director to tour towns and conduct coaching and referee clinics.

Schmalz said neither the federal government nor the public was aware of the problems that exist in amateur hockey.

Although he stopped 29 shots, Richardson saw several deflections skitter by the goal post and in the second period Edmonton forward Curt Shokoples fanned on an attempted shot from 10 feet in front of an open net.

Don Martineau, Bernie Lukowich and Bob Stumpf were Westminster's scorers.

Gallery of Two Watches Leader

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — Bernard Gallacher, watched by a gallery of two, took a one-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the inaugural Morocco International grand prix golf tournament.

The 22-year-old Scottish Ryder Cup player, with a 71, and Jean Garaialde of France, with a 72, were the only players in the 25-man international field to better the par 73 on the new 7,501-yard Royal Rabat course nearly void of spectators.

The major drawing card in the 72-hole, $50,000 tournament, Billy Casper, commanded 10 onlookers as he fired a 71.

At par were Americans Lanny Wadkins, a former United States Amateur champion, and Jerry Heard.

The tournament was initiated in an effort to draw golfing tourists to Morocco.

NEW YORK (AP) — Protests against the playing of the National Football League's post-season playoffs on Christmas Day appear to be mounting and one legislator says he will introduce a bill to prohibit any repetition in the future.

Money To Aid Exports

OTTAWA (CP) — The trade department announced Thursday new measures to help businesses increase exports and to protect industry from "foreign import surtaxes or other actions of a like effect."

To help businesses move into world markets, the government will pay up to $50,000 for each company to help them undertake market surveys and adapt their marketing measures to meet the demands of foreign markets.

The grants, which are expected to total $1.5 million in the 1972-1973 fiscal year beginning April 1 and $250,000 over the three months before that, are for markets outside Canada and the U.S.

INCREASE IN LIMIT

The other measure is an increase in the limit on loans available to businesses under the general adjustment assistance program originally designed to help businesses adapt to worldwide tariff reductions under the Kennedy Round agreement.

The ceiling for loans insured by the federal government is being raised to $250 million from $100 million, while the ceiling for direct government loans goes to $20 million from $14 million.

Allotment of increased amounts to the loan program was made public in November when the government sought authorization from Parliament for the increase in its supplementary estimates for the 1971-72 fiscal year.

OTTAWA (CP) — British Prime Minister Edward Heath arrived here today for talks with Prime Minister Trudeau that are expected to deal largely with economic matters.

Brief talks were scheduled here today before Heath meets President Nixon in Bermuda.

The RCMP said she was walking from one friend's home to another Tuesday night in temperatures 20 degrees below zero and drifting snow.

She apparently weakened, curled up in a ball and lost consciousness on the sidewalk, and was covered with drifting snow and debris blown by the wind, the RCMP said.

Her body was discovered in the morning. Police said a pedestrian had passed near her on Tuesday night but had thought her curled-up body was only a pile of debris.

ROBBERS GUN DOWN MONTREAL POLICEMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — A veteran motorcycle policeman, who was putting a routine parking ticket on a car, was shot and killed Thursday night by three fleeing gunmen who robbed a department store and then dropped a sack containing $50,000.

Constable Jean-Guy Sabourin, 35, was caught in a burst of machine-gun fire by the trio as they ran from the Robert Simpson Co. department store at St. Catherine and Metcalfe streets.

He died later in hospital from two bullet wounds near his heart, the seventh Montreal policeman to be wounded by gunfire in the last three months and the second to die.

Police said the bandits entered the store after it closed at 9 p.m., apparently using keys they had for the outside doors. Inside, they held up accounts office employees who were sorting out the night's receipts and fled down several flights of stairs with the money in a canvas sack.

Tax Bill To Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's tax bill, with debate cut off under a time-limit rule after 36 days of argument, passed the Commons this afternoon on a final vote of 132 to 83.

The bill, which revises the system of taxing income of individuals and businesses, including introduction of a tax on capital gains for the first time, was sent immediately to the waiting Senate.

OTTAWA (CP) — Inciting the Senate to rebel against any government pressure to rush its study of the tax bill, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield issued a final denunciation of the bill in Commons debate a few hours before its passage under the guillotine rule.

The government was not only cutting short Commons debate today with the guillotine, Mr. Stanfield said, it was also trying to ram the bill through the Senate.

The Conservative leader said that if he were a Liberal senator, he would be concerned about his reputation and his record of independence.

The Senate's Liberal majority defeated a Conservative motion Thursday, that would have delayed debate on the bill until Jan. 10, delaying passage until well after the Jan. 1 date the government has set for the new law's implementation.

Mr. Stanfield also reiterated his criticism of the bill, repeating his proposal to split the legislation—implementing personal tax cuts immediately and delaying other provisions until after further debate.

Government House leader Allan MacEachen said it was untrue that the government was trying to put a deadline on the Senate's study of the bill.

On the eve of third and final reading in the House, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons in a rare intervention in debate that the Conservatives have displayed indecision and confusion on the issue. He said the majority of the public likes the bill and wants it passed. (See also Page 9.)

Skagit Study Urged by Davis

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis said today that there must be more study of possible flooding before any additional flooding of the Upper Skagit Valley in British Columbia is permitted.

He told the Commons that this position is the main recommendation contained in a report by the International Joint Commission.

Proposals have been made to raise the Ross dam in the state of Washington, thus causing more flooding in the B.C. portion of the Skagit Valley.

Mr. Davis said the commission found that raising the dam would flood 10 of the 15 miles of the upper reaches of the Skagit Valley, which comprised the best recreation area in that part of the province.

The commission also found that the valley is an "uncommon and non-restorable area" with important social values.

Mr. Davis said the commission did not have time to estimate costs of mitigating the effects of flooding.

Measures for mitigation must be fully studied before the Ross dam is raised, the commission said. This study should take up to three years.

Belfast to Form Vigilante Groups

Times News Services

BELFAST—Prime Minister Brian Faulkner said the government would help organize a force of unarmed civilian vigilantes to help protect people and homes from guerrillas.

But he stressed the vigilantes must operate under a strict code of practice which he would draw up with the British Army, which has 14,000 troops in Northern Ireland, and police chiefs.

Faulkner's action gives official recognition to a host of small vigilante outfits which have been formed in bomb-scarred streets of Belfast, the capital, in recent months.

Citizens have banded together to provide 24-hour surveillance on their streets and raise the alarm at the approach of suspicious-looking strangers.

The groups have been mainly Protestant since the insurgent warfare is being waged by the Roman Catholic-based Irish Republican Army.

LISTS CONDITIONS

Faulkner listed three conditions under which the vigilantes would be allowed to operate with official blessing: They would have no legal rights above those of ordinary citizens and must "under no circumstances" be armed, they would have to accept without reservation instructions from the army and police, and each group must allow free movement within its protectorate of official security forces and give them maximum support and co-operation.

There was no immediate reaction from the Catholic-oriented republican community to the proposals.

But independent observers were convinced the minority Catholics would regard the move as a concession to the Protestant right wing.

Many Catholics already regard the police and army as biased against them. They could regard the unarmed vigilantes as the thin edge of a third hostile force.

Meanwhile, a British soldier shot in the stomach by a sniper in a Belfast street died today.

He was Pte. Anthony Aspinwall, 22, married with three children. The ambulance which took him to hospital Thursday also was sprayed with bullets, but nobody was hit.

His wife, flown from his regiment's base in West Germany, was at his side when he died. His death brought to 198 the death toll since the Northern Ireland troubles began in 1969.

In London Prime Minister Edward Heath said his government would accept a united Ireland only if the people of Northern Ireland agreed.

Benson Stresses Trade Questions

WASHINGTON (CP) — The finance ministers and central bank governors from the 10 richest Western nations started concerted efforts today to settle world currency values, with Canada's Finance Minister E. J. Benson stressing beforehand that action on trade questions is also essential.

Benson told reporters before entering the conference at the Smithsonian Institution that he couldn't indicate whether he thought the Group of Ten could settle their monetary differences today or Saturday at the meeting.

"There will have to be some movement on the trade side," he said, referring particularly to United States negotiations with Japan and the Common Market countries over trade barriers to American exports.

A group of Canadian officials who held negotiations with their American counterparts Thursday will continue the talks today, Benson said.

NO MORE—U.S.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The United States no longer can afford to be so generous to foreign nations, U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally said Thursday night.

"We try to conduct ourselves as good friends and good neighbors, and good trading partners. But at long last, we've reached the point where we can no longer be completely and entirely generous, giving of ourselves, of our material resources, or our strength, and of our money that other nations might prosper," Connally said.

Connally, whose speech was taped and played for the Houston Chamber of Commerce in the state where he used to be governor, said other nations rely heavily on U.S. markets and trade.

"Without the markets of the United States, there would be a depression among all industrial nations of the world," he said.

But he said the United States is not looking for any special favors.

"We must speak for ourselves, defend ourselves and insist that we receive, not advantages, but equity, in our dealings with other nations."

Japan Ready to Apologize to Peking

TOKYO (WP) — Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda said Thursday that Japan is prepared to make a formal apology to the Chinese people for "what they suffered during the Sino-Japanese war" as a precondition for establishing diplomatic relations with Peking.

In a strongly worded statement viewed by Japanese leaders as a major gesture to China, Fukuda told a Diet (parliament) committee that "mutual trust must be established before we can begin negotiations, and it is for us to make the first move by apologizing formally and publicly to the Chinese people for the war. We must clarify our deep feeling of regret for having caused them such grave troubles and disturbances. This is the key point involved in opening contacts with the Chinese government."

The apology issue has long been regarded here as one of the most sensitive obstacles in the way of eventual Tokyo-Peking diplomatic ties. Memories of wartime Japanese brutality are still vivid in China.

Returning visitors tell of countless popular films and plays depicting heroic resistance exploits in the face of the scorched earth tactics used by Japanese troops during their unsuccessful effort to subdue north China from 1937 to 1945.

Until recently, Peking has suggested that Japan should pay war reparations totalling $50 billion to compensate for property damage and casualties.

This demand has now been superseded by statements to Japanese business delegations that China does not want to impose hardships on postwar Japan and would accept "moral" in lieu of "material" restitution for war crimes.

Little Joe Cartwright Hedges Bets Off Camera

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Papa Cartwright may be the wise man of the Ponderosa, and Hoss the strongest, but Little Joe is far and away the most versatile.

Off-screen, Little Joe is Michael Landon who has written 19 scripts for Bonanza and directed a dozen episodes in the series' 13-year history.

Landon is a handsome, poised man who has become a millionaire as a result of the show. Before he joined the NBC horse opera he was just another actor.

But he seized the opportunity to branch out within the show.

As an actor, Mike earns in the neighborhood of a quarter million dollars a year, an extremely conservative estimate. Some would put his salary down as in excess of a half million annually.

As a writer his hour-long scripts bring about $3,500.

As a director Mike collects roughly $3,200 per show.

It doesn't take a Rockefeller to figure out that acting is the most attractive economic course.

But when Bonanza is dry-gulched, as soon or late it must, big Ben Cartwright and Hoss need to count on other acting jobs — although they too, are independently rich.

On the other hand, Landon can turn to writing and directing as alternatives should the acting field be overcrowded which it invariably is.

Of his many talents Landon says: "I think writing is the most important. A director can help the material somewhat, as can the actors. But it helps everybody if you don't need a lot of padding with dialogue.

"My scripts are short as far as the number of pages go. People in real life don't communicate as fast as they do on most television shows. So I slow it down. And I don't put in a lot of directional notes. After all, I direct the shows I write these days.

"After writing I think directing is the next most important job in turning out a well done television show.

"It's sort of ironic that the actors, who are least vital in the make-up of a show, are paid the most. But that's the way the game is played. And I have no complaints."

Landon is as fast as he is prolific. It takes him only two or three days to write a script in longhand.

"I give Little Joe minor roles in the scripts I write so I can concentrate on directing," Mike said. "And working with Lorne Greene and Dan Blocker is a great experience.

"I can't for the life of me understand how the Emmy people have overlooked Dan for an award all these years. Lorne, too. None of us has ever been nominated for the award."

Let the Emmy go to a suffering method actor. The Bonanza bunch has reaped a more powerful emblem: the mighty dollar sign.

Rita's Special Beauty Remains With Years

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The only reasonable explanation for Rita Hayworth's beauty and appeal after three decades as a movie star is that she was born with an extra female gene.

There is something indefinably feminine about the red-haired beauty that transcends ordinary standards.

It's in her smile, the small movements of her hands, the toss of her head, the demure laugh.

FIVE TIMES

She has been married five times. It's a wonder she hasn't been wed 500 times. Old-fashioned press agents once called her — not too accurately — a sex goddess. And so she remains.

No longer young, Rita still is capable of giving lessons in femininity to, say, Jane Fonda or Mia Farrow.

Asked bluntly what quality makes her so surpassingly female, Rita reacts with surprise: "Gee, I don't know. Maybe it's because I've always kept my clothes on for the camera." Although abundantly endowed, Rita has never appeared in a movie involving anything more daring than a plunging neckline.

NO DISROBING

"I'd never think of disrobing for a picture," she said. "Not even my bra. I think all women have a certain elegance about them which is destroyed when they take off their clothes."

"What's the fun when there isn't a secret left?"

Reminded that today's younger actresses jump out of their lingerie at the drop of a studio's edict, Rita said she thought the newcomers were shortening their career.

"There isn't all that much for audiences to look forward to after all that," she said.

Rita is headed for Mexico and a six-week location stint to co-star with Robert Mitchum in MGM's The Wrath of God.

Her role is that of a tragic woman with a young son. Heavy stuff. She is pleased to be working for a major studio, and with Mitchum, an old friend.

"The last picture I did was The Road to Salinas. No one will worry about it taking an Oscar," Rita said, shaking her head.

"The last I heard of it the picture was being exhibited back east as a double feature with a pornographic movie."

Why did Rita agree to star in a second-rate film in the first place?

"I have to work," she replied. "I can't just sit around doing nothing. I'm not built that way."

"And I can't get interested in things like the women's lib movement. To me those women are not being sexy. Just the opposite. It's a turn-off."

What turns Rita on as she moves into her fourth decade of films?

"The world turns me on," she concluded, "and maybe that's why, sometimes, it's mutual."

Filming Sees Indians Protect Whites

By DAN LEWIS

ROSEBUD, S.D. — An Indian war threatened the peace of this Sioux reservation on a recent night, but unlike the ravages of the red man versus white man atrocities of the 1800s, this was: internal strife among the Indians. The white man stood on the sidelines and held his breath for orderly resolve.

Ironically, although the incident was prompted by white man's invasion of Indian privacy, one Indian tribe stood firm against the others to protect the whites and permit them to continue their pursuit.

The setting was on the Rosebud Reservation here, home of the Sioux nation. An independent movie company had moved onto the reservation to make a motion picture titled Journey to Rosebud. It is the first time that a film has been made entirely on a reservation.

The local tribe obviously relished the invasion of whites. They brought the biggest economic impact on the reservation in the tribe's history, creating jobs and a flow of sorely needed money.

This reflects the reason why

The Sioux, who had been hired by the movie company, resented a group of radical Indians who invaded the production site and threatened on two successive nights to upend the shooting schedule.

FIRST PROTEST

Their first protest was that a white man was playing an Indian in the lead role. That's Robert Forster, a native of Rochester, N.Y., probably the only movie star who lives in that city, who is in the key role of a disillusioned young Indian leader.

Another grievance, according to the protesting visitors, who represented two radical factions — AIM (American Indian Movement) and Unity — was a report that the script was unflattering to the Indians. Finally, they said the white man was taking advantage of the Indian by using too much of his land and not enough of him.

The protest and the attempt to disrupt the production schedule failed to get very far because the radicals unwittingly headed onto a warpath that brought them face to face with the local Indians, who were perfectly content with the arrangements.

In the dramatic confrontation (it was 2 a.m., chilly and breezy) the radicals were told to leave by the Sioux. Ben White Horse, one of the young locals, clenched his fist and warned the protesters: "You're heading for trouble here. You're not even from this reservation. We don't need outsiders coming in here and telling us what to do."

THREATS MADE

The Indian radicals warned they would cut the cables and upset cameras and other equipment unless certain demands were met. They wanted to see a script first. David Gil, the producer and Tom Gries, the director, referred them to the Sioux Council, which has obviously approved the project, including the script, and had made the entire reservation available to the company.

"They were Easterners who just wanted to create an incident," one of the young Indians said.

After two nights of threats, the radicals left without satisfaction.

The invading radicals should have been better prepared for the onslaught. Not only did they encounter hostile locals, but a movie crew whose sympathies for the American Indian abound. Gil, for instance, set up two college scholarships for young Sioux. Gries has been using mostly people from the reservation to fill the cast. Of the 45 actors with speaking roles, only 10 are professionals from off the reservation, and two of those are full-blooded Indians.

Forster and young Kristoffer Tabori, 18-year-old son of director Don Siegal, and actress Viveca Lindfors are the stars. Forster, a bespectacled, embittered Indian, befriends Tabori who arrives on the reservation fleeing the draft. The story centres on the efforts of bringing their two worlds together, forging a feeling of understanding. It deals more with the sociological aspect than political, Gil explained. The worlds never really come together and tragedy widens the separation at the end.

Both Forster and Tabori said they were working for small fees plus percentages because of their strong belief in the story. "It's a simple script," said Forster, who spends his off time back in Rochester with his construction company, and several other business enterprises.

"It's a movie about people," Tabori declared. "If it were political, I wouldn't be interested."

Gries, the director, was especially pleased with the fringe benefits for the Sioux as a result of producing the film on the reservation. "We not only put 25 of the Indians into speaking roles, but several hundred others have been used as extras in crowd scenes."

"Two others have been working with the prop department, and two more in transportation."

Two elderly Indian women, who obviously never acted and may not even have ever seen a movie, had featured roles.

"And will you be surprised at the result," Gries observed. "One woman's name is Olive McClosky and she plays Forster's mother. The other is Diane Running who plays a neighbor. They have marvelous natural instincts for acting. All of the Indians with speaking roles are commendable. There is an intelligence unencumbered by formal education that makes it much easier to be an actor."

Sunday

Sounds of Music. on 5 at 9:30 a.m. This is a program of holiday music performed by the Jimmy Joyce singers, soprano Leona Gordon and the Glendale (Calif.) Symphony Orchestra. The program is repeated on this channel Tuesday at 10:30 p.m.

Frosty the Snowman. on 12 at 6:30. Jimmy Durante narrates the cartoon adventures of the famous snowman who came to life one day when some children put a magic hat on his head.

Christmas Concert. on 7 at 7. The Young Americans present a concert of Christmas music. It is repeated tonight at 8:30 on 11.

Homecoming: A Christmas Story. on 7 at 7:30 is a special drama starring Patricia Neal. The play is set on Christmas Eve, 1933, and deals with a Virginia family struggling against the Depression. It is the story of family doings and fear.

Jacques Cousteau. on 8 at 7:30 sets the record straight on the widely misunderstood octopus. In Mediterranean and Pacific waters Cousteau finds the creature to be shy, intelligent and highly protective of her young. When approached by divers she usually scoots away. Sequences include a mating ritual; an octopus manoeuvring a lobster out of a corked container; and two octopi in a life and death battle over a ceramic pot. The program is repeated

Tuesday on 4 at 8.

Oral Roberts Christmas Special. on 8 at 10 features Johnny Mathis, Della Reese and Burl Ives along with Roberts in a nativity play, A City of the King. Topic of the sermon is The Space Age Christ. The special is repeated Thursday, on 7 at 7 and on 6 at 10.

A Joyful Noise. on 9 at 10. A holiday helping of carols and folk music served by the Beers Family, soprano Brenda Joyce and the teen-age trio Sounds of Joy.

Singing Sister Reveals Seamy Side of Show Biz

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Former singer Arlene Demarco has written a book titled Triangle.

The question is: is the book autobiographical, or isn't it?

The leading character is a girl in a singing sister act. Miss Demarco was a singer in just such a group.

The story depicts the seamy underside of show business, the weirdos, freaks and sickies who slink around the footlights, agency and network byways.

Almost certainly Miss Demarco is a better singer than novelist. Her book will hardly outlive Bernard Shaw or even Mickey Spillane.

Much of its content is vulgar, clinically sexual and tasteless.

But there is a story behind the story, according to the authoress, who says many attempts have been made by powerful individuals in show business to suppress the book.

"I won't be buried standing up," said Miss Demarco, an attractive woman and the mother of two beautiful young daughters.

"I've had anonymous telephone threats, but I don't run scared. A letter went to the three networks to discourage them from having me appear on the big talk shows to discuss and promote my book.

"This book isn't a vendetta. Let's just say I invented a guessing game."

To those who know little about the inside workings of show biz, and those who couldn't care, guessing could be very difficult. For those close to the picture there is almost no guessing at all. Miss Demarco appears only to have changed a few names.

"It's anybody's privilege to guess who the characters might be," she said, all innocence. "It makes the book more commercial. I wrote it to make money."

Miss Demarco once lived in a 12-room apartment on New York's Riverside Drive. She and her husband also owned a summer house at the beach and dined at the finest restaurants in Manhattan.

Now she and her daughters live in a two-room attic apartment in Solih Plainfield, N.J., living on welfare.

"I want to go back to living the way I once did," she said. "I'm hoping Otto Preminger will buy the book and make it into a movie."

Networks Cut Back on News

NEW YORK (UPI) — Television networks cut back on prime time news and public affairs programs in the 1970-71 season to a point where they make up only 2 per cent of the programming, according to a survey released this week.

The third annual Alfred I. Dupont-Columbia University Survey said music variety programs made up 20.8 per cent of prime time and situation comedies 18.1 per cent, compared to the 2 per cent for news and public affairs.

The survey showed that 33 per cent of the news directors of television stations throughout the nation reported an increase in news and public affairs programs. The figure in 1969-70 was 65 per cent.

Five stations abolished their news departments, 11 per cent said they cut back on time devoted to news and public affairs, 27 per cent reduced their news staffs, and 24 per cent were hit with budget reductions, the survey said.

However, 51 per cent of the stations reported that they made money on their news programs and 24 per cent said they broke even.

A majority of top advertisers who responded to the survey said they spent less than 10 per cent of their television budget on news and public affairs. One firm, Goodyear Tire Co., said it did not sponsor news programs because of "generally low ratings, often controversial — both detract from good commercial television."

The survey said cable television showed little interest in developing news and public affairs programming.

Although cable television could lay the foundation for a whole new era of news communications, a survey of the 2,705 cable systems in the nation showed only 78 originating daily news shows, the survey said.

TV Audience Still Loves A Circus

By BRUCE HANDLER

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Nervously, a young man takes his place behind the microphone. The TV camera zooms in. The orchestra hits the downbeat.

And in a trembling voice, the performer blurts out the words of a popular Brazilian song:

"I can't believe what happened. It was, uh, just a dream."

Honk: A fat man wearing a circus ringmaster's outfit and an oversize derby with a flower in it blasts a clown's horn in the singer's face.

"Next!" he says. The dejected contestant slowly walks away, and the audience roars with laughter.

The fat man is Chacrinha, the most famous television personality in Brazil.

The program is Chacrinha's Horn, one of the wackiest programs imaginable.

At any given moment on Chacrinha's horn, which runs for two hours every Sunday night on a nationwide network, there may be up to 100 living creatures on stage. These include an orchestra, an occasional marching band, a dozen leggy go-go girls, assorted animals, amateurs trying to break into show biz, beauty contestants, actors and singers hoping to plug their latest films and records and, of course, Chacrinha.

IGNORES CRITICISM

At 54, short, plummy, greying Chacrinha is practically a national institution in Brazil and one of the highest paid entertainment figures in Latin America. Intellectuals, government censors and even the Roman Catholic Church have criticized him for the alleged bad taste of his programs, but Chacrinha pays little attention to them.

"I may have the worst show on the air, but it's the only show that's truly Brazilian," he said in his crowded office at Globo Network headquarters in Rio.

"Other programs here all are imitations of American and European television," he declared. "I know what the Brazilian public wants, and I give it to them."

Had it not been for financial difficulties as a youth, Chacrinha today might be an obscure physician in northeastern Brazil — Dr. Abelardo Oarboza, his real name. But to earn money for medical school, Chacrinha took a job in 1939 doing commercials for a local radio station. He quickly found his true calling, abandoned his medical career, and soon was the MC of some of the top radio variety shows in Brazil.

The name Chacrinha, pronounced sha-REEN-yah, is Portuguese for "barnyard." It comes from a radio show he used to do in the 1940s.

SWITCHED TO TV

When television came to Brazil, Chacrinha made the switch easily. On the tube since 1956, Chacrinha's Horn still pulls in nearly half of the audience in its time slot, and his Wednesday night show, Chacrinha's Discotheque, also has a formidable rating.

One of Chacrinha's producers describes the show as "a Roman circus—you know, the Christians against the lions."

Here is more of what it's like: "Does anybody want this?" Chacrinha taunts, waving a huge slab of salted codfish above his head.

"Yeah!" the people in the audience shout, reaching toward the stage. "Well, go out and buy it. This stuff's expensive," Chacrinha retorts, tossing the fish into the wings.

Paul Newman Sues

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Paul Newman has filed a $750,000 damage suit against Universal Pictures, claiming that the studio released one of his films too early to television.

In the U.S. Superior Court action, Newman said The Secret War of Harry Frigg was released to network television last Sept. 20 — 3½ years after its theatre premier.

The actor contended he had an agreement with Universal not to sell the picture, which first was titled Meanwhile, Far From The Front, for at least five years.

Newman said his share of the film was to be 10 per cent of the producer's gross proceeds while it was in general circulation.

Tuesday

A Christmas Carol, on 4 at 7:30 is a cartoon version of the Dickens classic with the characters rendered as pen and ink caricatures based on 19th century etchings and illustrations. The man responsible is London animator Richard Williams who did the cartoon sequences for the 1968 film The Charge of the Light Brigade. Michael Redgrave reads Dickens' prose.

President Nixon, on 5 at 7:30. Title of the program is Dec. 6, 1971: A Day in the Presidency follows Nixon for a fast-paced 15 hours starting at 7 a.m. Events of the day include a gala dinner for Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and a relaxing wind-up to the day in the Lincoln Room of the White House.

CBS News Special Report, on 7 at 12 at 7:30. In What's Happening to the Army? television examines how the army shapes up at home and offers a study in contrasts.

For example, Fort Hood, Texas illustrates the army's ills in microcosm. GIs discuss the base's drug scene, low morale and petty discipline. At Fort Benning, Georgia, we see the new U.S. army with no reveille, KP or squalid punishment details. Instead the emphasis is on heavy field training and seminars on drugs and race relations.

Jacques Cousteau, on 4 at 8. See Sunday for details.

Sonny and Cher Nitty Gritty Hour, on 8 at 8. This hour features Sonny and Cher, comic Sandy Baron, Billy Van Jere-llyn Homer and Andrea Davidson of the National Ballet of Canada. Sketches spoof women's jib, stag parties and mothers-in-law. Songs include We've Only Just Begun, I got You, Babe, The Two of Us and Something.

NBC News Whitepaper: Vietnam Hindsight, on 5 at 8:30 examines why and how the U.S. became partners in a war in Asia against Asians. This two part report focuses on events from January, 1961, to the summer of 1963 when American forces in the country rose from 400 to 16,000. Tonight's show deals with how it began including President John F. Kennedy's decision to save the Diem regime. The program is reported Wednesday, on 5 at 10.

Land of the Small, on 4 at 9. This visit to the insect world is narrated by Gregory Peck and utilizes a process known as photomicrography which provides close-up views of such events as caterpillars metamorphosing into butterflies and the black widow spider and her deadly web.

NBC News Special: The Seven Summits, on 5 at 11:30 is the second in a series of reports on President Richard Nixon's meetings with world leaders. Tonight from Bermuda we get an account of his talks with Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain.

Caustic Canadian Show a U.S. Hit

HOLLYWOOD — Across the U.S. in states within radio reach of Canada there's a growing underground of fans for what may be the most impudent, most caustic show to be broadcast on this continent.

And the wonder of Inside from the Outside — in addition to the fact it's been running for 14 months now — is that it comes from Canada's state-controlled radio network, the CBC.

Each Sunday afternoon, the half-hour program featuring a repertory company of improvisational satirists is beamed from Toronto to some 80 English-language stations on the CBC network.

But, as the show's chief writer, Murray Soupcoff, explained, so many Canadian stations are preoccupied with Sunday afternoon hockey that the show frequently comes through by delayed tape on Sunday evenings.

Sketches from the show also are sliced up in three-minute tidbits and parcelled out to the stations to be reused as comedy fillers during their regular local shows.

GLS FIRST

American servicemen at remote bases and college students interested in communications were first in the U.S. to pick up the show and its scorching humor. Now it has become the darling of the air waves on many U.S. campuses which can receive it from the powerful Canadian stations along the U.S. border. (For instance, CBM, a 50,000-watt in Montreal, beams to much of New England.)

The show's primary target is the warts on Canada's face, but inevitably much of its sting is aimed at the U.S. and policies which directly affect Canadian, but over which Canadians have no control.

SMLIN' PIERRE

HONEST DICK

It seems to deliver its lumps equally to President Nixon and Prime Minister Trudeau.

For example, here's how it handled reports that Nixon might dump Spiro Agnew as his running mate in 1972:

"Honest Dick Nixon here with a fabulous once-in-a-lifetime sale offer from White House Sales. Yes, my fellow Americans, for an unprecedented low price, you can own your very own United States vice-president. Tell them more about it, Pat."

"Right you are, Dick. Yes, Middle America, don't miss out on the bargain of the century. The chance to purchase a fully reconditioned Spiro Agnew for a fraction of the owner's original purchase price. Comes complete with oversized mouth, 20,000-word in inflammatory vocabulary, and three-year subscription to Little Lulu comic books."

SPIRO MUST GO

Dick: "That's right, my fellow Americans, this late-model vice-president has got to go, and at a great saving to you."

Pat: "Amaze your friends as Spiro recites the entire first hundred pages of Roget's Pocket Thesaurus."

Dick: "Secretly thrill as he shouts racial epithets at your Polish and Japanese neighbors."

Pat: "Don't be part of the silent majority any longer. Purchase your own Spiro Agnew today, and put down those effete intellectuals once and for all."

Dick: "Watch the look on the face of that professor down the street when Spiro tells him Mayor Lindsay is a commie-pinko."

Pat: "Experience the secret joy when Spiro tells your teenagers to get a haircut and take a bath . . . and that all hippies are queer . . . The 1971 Spiro-Agnew — guaranteed loud-mouthed, divisive and offensive for four years."

A sketch on Soviet Premier Kosygin's visit to Canada had a reporter interviewing the man in charge of decorations.

"I see you've got a big banner sign on that bank building: 'Welcome to the Socialist Leaders on his Visit to Canada'."

CLEAR COMMIES

And later on in the same skit:

"Our main problem is keeping the streets clear of commies who might try to give him a bad time."

"But, sir, Kosygin is a communist."

"You're putting me on. According to his photo, he's had a haircut."

"The party chairman is a short-haired communist."

"Now, that's what I call sneaky."

Another sketch this fall took note that the U.S. Navy was training dolphins for underwater sentry missions against North Vietnamese frogmen. The sketch included an interview by a reporter with American dolphins who had fled to a Canadian sequestrum to escape the draft.

Still another sketch looked in on a problem common to both countries, the congenital welfare recipients.

In that one, a fuzzy-brained professor attempted to define the word "bum."

"As we all know," he said, "in our society we have the unemployed, employables. We also have the employed unemployed, sometimes known as civil servants . . ."

The sketch then moved

along to an interview with a third generation welfare family. The skit concluded:

"The main problem with the welfare system is not that there are a lot of bums on welfare, but there are too many part-timers on welfare, temporary jobless with no real, solid background in unemployment. In short, another profession ruined by amateurs."

Soupcoff said the CBS had been contacted by the newly formed U.S. Public Radio Network on the possibility of networking the show over non-commercial stations in this country, but they couldn't come to terms on price.

As for reaction to the show's repeated knocks at the U.S., Soupcoff said, "Strangely enough, we've had only one irate letter from the States against the show."

He said one particularly pithy script — comic dialogue between Lt. William Calley and Gov. George Wallace — "Drew a lot of knock mail from Canadians; but only praise letters from people from the States who heard it."

So far, he added, the program has drawn wrath from only two members of Parliament in Ottawa.

CBC Offers Christmas Fare for All

There'll be Christmas fare aplenty for everyone this year on CBC Television!

As usual, the Network's

Yuletide offerings for 1971 on Dec. 25 will include something of interest to virtually everyone — traditional carols and jesty's message to her Commonwealth subjects, to be telecast twice), nostalgic (A Time For Giving, which delves into the real meaning of this special day through the eyes of a small child), the religious (Helicopter Holy Land, a fascinating new view of history in the birthplace of Christianity), and of course, song and music (Time For Music, from Newfoundland and Centennial Christmas, a musical contribution to British Columbia's entry into Confederation).

On the previous day, CBC-TV's Christmas Eve Church Service, Dec. 24, 11:30 p.m., will originate from Christ Church Cathedral, in Ottawa (Anglican).

As in past years, Christmas Day programming will begin with the annual message by Queen Elizabeth at 10:00 a.m. (to be retelecast at 11:15 p.m.)

At 10:30 a.m., the special spirit of a Newfoundland

Christmas is captured on Newfoundland Carols, from the 180-year old Topsail United Church, near St. John's. Singers: Carl Stevenson, Donna Hamilton, Cathy Cornick and Deryck Harnett, with musical director Don Cook, are joined by the congregation in reflecting the plain, simple beauty and quiet dignity of this simple country church.

A Time For Giving, the special hour-long color film originally telecast on Christmas Day, 1970, will look at the real meaning of this special season through the eyes of a small child, at 11:00 a.m. Broadcaster Gordon Green refutes the popularly-held idea of Santa Claus as the "patron saint" of chain stores by encouraging his granddaughter to create things instead of buying them for her family.

Helicopter Holy Land, at 5:00 p.m., a fascinating new view of history from an airborne vantage point, probes into monuments and ruins of vanished empires on the trail of Moses, Abraham, Jesus Christ, and Mohammed.

Elizabeth I (Glenda Jackson) is Wooed by Duke of Alencon (Michael Williams)

Intrigue Surrounds Wooing Of Most Eligible Woman

Shadow in the Sun, the third episode in the 90-minute six-part historical drama series Elizabeth R, BBC's widely-acclaimed production, finds Elizabeth I of England at odds with France, then being wooed by the Duke of Alencon, son of Catherine de Medici and younger brother of the French King.

In the series appearing on CBC-TV on Sundays at 9 p.m., Elizabeth R is portrayed by the Academy Award-winning English actress Glenda Jackson.

Shadow in the Sun will be telecast on the network Sunday, Dec. 19, 9-10:30 p.m.

Elizabeth has broken off relations with France, because of the massacre of thousands of Huguenots in Paris on St. Bartholomew's Eve. Meanwhile, with the death of the Spanish leader in the Netherlands, France means to step in and route the Spaniards. But to retain a balance of power in Europe, an alliance with England is needed. Simier, Alencon's agent, comes to England to negotiate the marriage.

Leicester, still a confidant of the Queen, is against Alencon's suit, even though England needs an heir to the throne. Leicester, himself, has been secretly married. Despite his disapproval, Alencon comes to England and the ludicrous courtship begins. With public opinion set against the marriage, Alencon being a Catholic prince, and with the council divided, there is some delay.

Alencon, meanwhile, is offered the Dutch crown and the political alliance takes on added importance. Both England and France agree to it, but France insists that the alliance must be ratified by the marriage of Elizabeth to Alencon. Leicester again voices his objection, and Elizabeth learns from Simier that he (Leicester) has married. The Queen orders Leicester to the Tower, but Sussex intercedes and she asks for his help to extricate her from the marriage commitment to Alencon.

The French prince, though angry, allows himself to be bought off for 60,000 pounds. He returns to the Netherlands.

Elizabeth's mercurial personality and her fits of temper are well documented, in some instances by her godson Harrington who is widely quoted in Lives of the Queens of England, by Agnes Strickland. "The Queen (noted Harrington in one of his letters) seemed troubled today; Hatton (a vice-chamberlain later promoted to lord chancellor) came out of her presence with an ill countenance. He pulled me aside by the girdle and said, in a secret way: 'If you have any suit today, I pray you put it aside; the sun doth not shine.'"

Harrington continues, "Tis this accursed Spanish business, so I will not adventure highness's choler lest he should collar me also." The latter witticism was in reference to the tale that Elizabeth had once actually collared Sir Christopher Hatton. The author Strickland commented, "Elizabeth was undoubtedly a very excitable person, and allowed her animal spirits to betray her into many undignified deeds, both in the way of wrath and levity."

The third episode of Elizabeth R was written by Julien Mitchell, whose TV credits include The Alien Corn from BBC's Somerset Maugham Theatre, carried on CBC-TV last season. He was one of the co-authors of Stanley Donan's feature film, Arabesque, starring Sophia Loren and Gregory Peck.

Thursday

You for Me (xx), on 4 at 9. After insulting the benefactor of the hospital she works in, a young nurse goes all out to charm him back into the hospital's good graces—and hers. Jan Greer, Peter Lawford and Gig Young.

The Man from the Diner's

Club (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Foolish farce about a befuddled clerk (Danny Kaye) and a murderous mobster.

Bedtime for Bonzo (xx), on 7 at 4. Silly comedy about a Professor who experiments with a chimpanzee, to prove that environment plays an important part on how a child turns out. Ronald Reagan and Diana Lynn.

Meet Mr. Lucifer (xx), on 2 at 11:50. An amusing fantasy-comedy about an actor and the Devil who combine forces and declare war on TV. Stanley Holloway and Kay Kendall.

Spanish Affair (xx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. A Spanish-American-made drama about an architect who designs a magnificent hotel in Spain only to find that his plans have been rejected. Richard Kiley.

Sally and Saint Anne (xx), on 7 at 11:30. Corny but heart-warming story of a zany family — and one member in particular. Ann Blythe, Edmund Gwenn and Hugh O'Brian.

Beyond Tomorrow (xxx), on 12 at 1:05. Interesting but off-beat fantasy about the spirits of three dead men who find happiness in helping a young couple.

Evening at Pops: The Muppets, on 9 at 7. The Sesame Street regulars entertain an audience of youngsters at Boston's Symphony Hall with such time-worn favorites as Rubber Ducky, Being Green, People in Your Neighborhood, I've Got Two, Everybody Wash and Alphabet Song. A real show stopper comes when Big Bird leads the Pops in Count Five.

CBS News Correspondents' Report, on 7 and 12 at 9. Part 1 focuses on the United States with chief newsmen discussing President Richard Nixon's economic policies, the Supreme Court, prison riots and elections in 1972. The serviceable Walter Cronkite is moderator.

Oral Roberts Christmas Special, on 6 and 10. See Sunday for details.

CBS Reports, on 7 and 12 at 10 probes the techniques and scope of law enforcement surveillance in Philadelphia. The camera shows an FBI stakeout of a suspected student radical, Vietnam demonstrators monitored by plain clothes officers and an Earth Day rally observed by Army Intelligence.

Ives Named In Lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor-singer Burl Ives, who currently portrays a lawyer on a television series, soon may be in a real courtroom.

Ives and Ives Production Ltd. have been named defendants in a $15,000 lawsuit filed in U.S. Superior Court.

The plaintiff, the Doyle, Dane, Burnbach, Inc., advertising agency, claims it inadvertently paid Ives a $15,000 fee twice on behalf of the H. J. Heinz Co. The suit charges that Ives and the production company have refused to repay the second check.

It called the production company a "mere shell" dominated by Ives and said it has been "fraudulently used for assumption of debts and obligations" of Ives.

Why Hope Doesn't Need to Any More

★ This is the first of a three-part series on the man and the comic by Marilyn Beck who has spent hundreds of hours interviewing him, his associates and his friends.

By MARILYN BECK

HOLLYWOOD — Bob Hope was relaxing during a lunch break at Goldwyn Studios, where his Canceled My Reservation film was shooting. And he was in a reminiscing mood.

He began to talk of how it all began, of his days when he had been, as he put it, "a smart-ass kid," of an early period when he had flopped with audiences. And, even before: of his birth in Eltham, England; his family's move when he was four, to Cleveland where his father worked as a stonemason to support his brood of seven. And where Leslie, later to become Bob, Hope tried his luck at everything from selling shoes to amateur boxing before he took to the stage.

He has an uncanny memory for details. Dates, names from his long ago past come to mind at instant bidding.

He told of going with a boyhood buddy for tap dancing lessons, of singing with neighborhood quartets, where the performing seed was born.

"My Dad was an amateur comedian, my mother a concert singer. I suppose I in of them."

He smiled, remembering the early days and examining them against the present.

STARTING GATE

"This September I played the Michigan State Fair. I packed 'em, 25,000 at the show. And as I stood on the stage, I thought of how I started out in that city, with my derby hat, my cigar and a lead sheet — and getting $5 a performance."

He was part of a song-and-dance act then, and Detroit, for Hope and partner George Byrne, was the first step into the big time.

Later would come a Broadway booking, as part of "The Sidewalks of New York" cast, where, as Bob recalls it, "We were so bad we couldn't get a second bow."

And from there, back to the vaudeville circuit. Until the evening, during a Newcastle, Ont., gig, when the theatre manager asked Hope to announce an act.

"I gagged it up," he said, recalling, over 40 years later, the exact impromptu dialogue he had used on that Indiana stage.

"The audience laughed like hell. And so I started padding with more comedy lines. I killed 'em!"

That was the night Bob Hope, comedian, was born. He decided to try his luck as a single, parted company with his partner, and moved to Chicago where, he can recall with still-alive memories, "I nearly starved!"

SERIOUS SIDE

Off camera, away from the mike, Hope seldom works hard for laughs, as many comedians do. He's a storehouse of humorous tales which emerge when the time is appropriate. But, unique for a star, he enjoys listening to other's stories as much as his own. And when he centres on a serious subject, he doesn't try to brighten it up with snappy gags.

Reliving those early Chicago days, his face was sombre when he said, "I owed about $450 in coffee and donuts. I was going to give up, to move back to Cleveland."

He was standing in front of the Woods Theatre Building, dejected, depressed, when, bringing that moment back to life, he said: "An old buddy, Charlie Hogan, came up and asked if I'd like to play an Independence Day date for $25."

America's Ninth Richest Man

Forty-two years later, on Independence Day of 1970, a crowd of more than 400,000 would gather in Washington, D.C., to witness Bob Hope emcee an "Honor America Day" program.

But Hogan's offer was 1928, when $25 represented a fortune. And, more importantly, his first chance at work in months.

That one-day engagement led to a six-month stand at Chicago's Stratford Theatre, where he worked himself up to $250 a week.

"And that was REAL work! Who had comedy writers then? You begged your friends for material, read magazines for ideas, scrounged gags wherever you could."

LESSON LEARNED

He managed all right until the Stratford engagement ended and he once more set out on the road. It was then that he would learn they didn't love him everywhere as they had in Chicago. In small Mid-Western towns he was to experience harsh lessons in humility that would remain etched on his mind.

"In Evanston, Ind., I was billed second to the Golden Bird, a canary who picked up cards with its beak!"

That didn't hurt Bob as much as discovering he was being advertised as Ben Hope.

"I asked the theatre manager about it, and he said, 'So what's your name?' I told him, 'You know it's Bob.' And he answered, 'So who else knows?'"

Then there was the night he opened in Fort Worth, laying what he describes as, "the biggest bomb in history."

"They had bought my style in Chicago: brash; a million gags a minute, really throwing the stuff at them. But there in Fort Worth you would have thought they were deaf. No one laughed. Dead silence!"

He threw that memorable moment in time sharply as he recalled, "I stomped off the stage, marched back to my dressing room yelling, 'Get me a ticket back to my country!' I was going to quit. I was one big smart ass!"

ANOTHER BREAK

Bob's departure was halted that evening by a stranger who was to have a profound effect on his professional future.

Bob O'Donald, a Keith Circuit representative, entered the young comic's dressing room with advice that would eventually transform Hope from an overly-brash, small-time performer into a comedic master with a delicacy of timing and an uncanny gift for audience rapport.

It was a career that led to fortune. The United Press International said on Nov. 12 he was by far the richest man in the entertainment world and the ninth richest man in America with an estimated worth of $450 million.

Many years later, after O'Donald's death, Hope would raise a $802,000 grant for Southern Methodist University in memory of the good friend who had so profoundly shaped his professional destiny.

"If it wasn't for O'Donald, my whole life would have been different," the star has observed.

"Without him, I might have never gotten to the top. I might have gotten no place!"

Divorce Movie Style

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Cummings says she owes $26,269 and needs more alimony and child support from her former husband, Actor Robert Cummings.

Mrs. Cummings also said her 60-year-old former husband has not paid $1,100 in monthly support and alimony as ordered at their divorce and estimated current needs at $3,887 a month.

Cummings and his wife have five children, two now grown and married.

Lose Your Job and Make Millions

By DAN LEWIS

NEW YORK — "The last time ABC fired me, they made me a millionaire," Danny Thomas mused as he twirled the big cigar in his mouth and stretched out on the sofa in a luxurious suite at the stately Plaza Hotel.

Danny did not intend to intimate to ABC that they had done him a favor by canceling him out last year, or that he expected to become a multi-millionaire as a result. Actually, he maintained that he was so upset with the treatment from the network while doing "Make Room for Granddaddy," that he sent them notification that the series would not resume this year.

"I fired the network," Danny insisted, but if there is any animosity between the one-time standup nightclub comic turned TV and movie actor, and the ABC television network, it is not easily discernible. In fact, Danny will be back on ABC Tuesday night, 10:00-11:00, in a special titled City Versus Country.

Danny will battle with Tennessee Ernie Ford over the virtues of city living against country existence. Ernie will have Canadian singer Anne Murray to extoll his cause. Danny's helpmate will be Florence Henderson of The Brady Bunch.

NO PROBLEM

There's a powerful guest lineup on the special, too, including Jack Benny, Dean Martin, Andy Griffith, Phil Silvers, Sammy Davis, Joey Bishop, Milton Berle and Don Knotts.

Thomas has no trouble getting the super stars. When he decided to resurrect his family situation comedy last year at ABC, among the guests he lined up during the season were Sammy Davis, Frank Sinatra and Bob Hope.

Danny first went into TV with a situation comedy titled Make Room for Daddy, as he portrayed a nightclub comic with a wife and two kids involved in typical family problems. After four years on ABC, the network cancelled.

"We were rated 107th," Danny joked. "Only evening prayer and the Dow Jones stock report were under us."

But General Foods liked the show and bought full sponsorship, and moved the show over to CBS. It ran for seven more years. Danny became not only a wealthy man, but a major figure in television industry as he joined forces for production companies with Sheldon Leonard and Aaron Spelling (they have, among others, Mod Squad).

When Make Room for Daddy (by then retitled The Danny Thomas Show) finally left the air after 11 years, Danny opted for a series of specials on NBC. The first one, five years ago, was a near disaster, Danny recalled.

"We got destroyed by Andy Griffith," Danny recalled. "And we owned that show (the Andy Griffith series)," he exclaimed. "Ole took a pie to the teacher, and it killed us."

A few more specials fared much better. So good were the ratings, and the reviews — including one with the old cast from the series — that ABC and Thomas got together and decided to bring it up, an unprecedented situation with most of the cast returning, including Marjorie Lord as Danny's wife, and Sid Melton as his manager, only by now they made Danny a grandpa. So it was Make Room for Granddaddy.

The show originally was slotted for 8 o'clock on Wednesday nights, but was then moved to 8:30 on Thursdays. "They put us against Ironside," Danny complained.

Danny said he was so upset that he fired off a telegram to the network, telling them he wanted to terminate the contract at the end of the season. It was a five-year contract.

"If I hadn't sent the telegram, I might have stayed on, but I didn't want them (ABC-TV) to grind the show into the earth."

The parting was amicable, however, even though Danny was spewing fire for a few months. Nothing like an agreement on specials to curb the flames of fire.

Besides the television specials, Danny would like to do a movie with his daughter Mario. He'd like to do movies, period.

"I never was available when the good films were being offered to me," Danny said. "I was always tied up."

Now, he not only isn't tied up, but Mario is free of her own series (by personal choice) and available for movies. Mario gave notice a year in advance that she did "That Girl" series this year after five good seasons on ABC.

"I'm looking like crazy for

Johnny Ukelele Dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Johnny Ukelele, who turned from boxing and baseball in the 1920s to begin the successful Royal Hawaiians Music group, has died at the age of 70 following a brief illness.

Ukelele, who in private life was Johnny Kaahue, toured with the band for almost 35 years before the group disbanded in 1955.

In recent years Kaahue, a long time Los Angeles resident, turned to acting and performed in episodes of Hawaiian Eye and also recorded for Capitol records.
